The gaol and staff of constables have always been a heavy charge on the Consulate, and now that the new gaol has been completed the expenditure is likely to be considerably increased, owing to the much larger scale on which it has been instituted and the greater distance at which it is located from the British Consulate. A joint report on the subject by Sir Edmund Hornby and myself, under date the 15th November, 1871, has already conveyed the suggestion that, rather than maintain this new gaol on the expensive footing which is essential if it is to be kept up at all, it would be advisable to make an arrangement for its transfer to the Municipal Council of Shanghai, who possess all the appliances for working such an institution in a satisfactory manner. The expenditure of the Consulate would thus be limited to a daily charge for each prisoner consigned to the care of the Council, and to such casual medical attendance as would prove necessary.

Could such an arrangement be effected the estimates for the Shanghai Consulate would not only be relieved of the charge for support of new gaol establishments (estimated by Sir R. Alcock, in his despatch of 17th November, 1869, at £1,280, and in the report by Sir E. Hornby and myself at £830 at the very least), but the necessity of the attachment to the Consulate of any European constables at all would be obviated, thereby securing a saving upon former estimates of over £500. The services of a daily constable in attendance at the Consulate would still be needed for maintaining order in the office, sending or taking seamen in custody, &c., but it would be quite possible to enter into an arrangement with the Municipal Council to supply a daily orderly for this duty out of their very effective body of police, and so save the necessity of engaging a couple of men for the purpose.

The transfer of the gaol to the Municipal Council would further occasion a saving of the £200 per annum which is now paid to a local practitioner for medical attendance on the prisoners and constables in the gaol.

The staff of office servants at Shanghai was reported by me in November, 1869, to be capable of reduction, and the suggestion having been acted upon in the estimates for 1871-72, there appears to be no further room for economy in that portion of the establishment.

Note.—The expenditure on account of constables and office servants in 1869 was:—

Constables and gaol	525	6	0
Servants	427	2	6
In the Estimates for 1871-72, Mr. Hammond's proposed reductions, under the head of servants, took off...	164	9	6

The hospital charges for seamen and distressed subjects fall very heavy upon the Consulate at present, owing to the necessity of consigning sick men, when in the Consul's hands, to a hospital, over the direction of which the Consul has no control. There are always sufficient patients from the navy and Consulate together to support a hospital, and although there are many difficulties in the way of establishing an independent hospital on the Consulate account, yet I cannot help thinking that medical men could be found ready to fall in with a scheme for the reduction of our expenditures under this head, and the Consul should be encouraged to take steps towards introducing an alteration in the existing arrangement. Sir R. Alcock has already put forward some suggestions in this direction in his despatch of Nov. 17, 1869.

Personal.—I think it necessary to bring before the notice of the Committee the fact of Chinkiang being placed under the Consular charge of the Consul at Shanghai, without any provision being made in the estimates for an additional allowance to him on this account. This arrangement was made by the Foreign-office in 1868, when I was appointed to officiate at Shanghai during the absence of Consul Winchester on leave. I continued in charge of the post (not without serious accession of responsibility, as the Blue Book on Yangchow will show) until last year, when, being permanently gazetted to Shanghai, I represented to Earl Granville the necessity of according me some remuneration for the additional duty. My application has been met by an unqualified refusal. This is scarcely fair to me, even in a business point of view; but I feel the hardship the more acutely when I come to remember that, although my service extends over a period of thirty-two years, during which my conduct has been repeatedly commended; and although I am one of the few old servants who relied upon the pledges given by the Foreign-office to regard with special favour those who gave themselves to the study of the language, I am at this moment without the slightest recognition of my service, even in the shape of a pecuniary allowance, such as that granted to Sir R. Alcock, on personal grounds, when he was appointed to succeed Dr. Bowring as Consul at Canton in 1853, and afterwards continued to Sir H. Parkes, when he succeeded Mr. Alcock.

CHINA MEDICAL REPORTS.

We have received the new part of the China Customs Gazette, containing the Medical Reports for the half-year ended 31st March last. We give the following summary of the contents, merely remarking, that next year a little more promptitude in the publication may be observed.

From Peking Dr. Dudgeon reports only two deaths among the foreign community. Carbuncles were unusually large and frequent among the Chinese; but by far the most common affection was ague, owing to the rains, which were unprecedented; in three months the rainfall exceeded three feet. The condition of the city during and after these rains was indescribable. Communication was almost impossible; trade well nigh suspended. Several foreigners, in carts and on horseback, in proximity to the Western Hills, narrowly escaped with their lives. Great numbers of the mud-houses of the natives (Dr. Dudgeon naively says) "resolved themselves into their original constituents"—which we suppose is "medical" for being melted by the rain and heat—but it would be unfair to leave the mud out of the present report.

From Newchwang Dr. Watson reports the great prevalence and severity of "complaints of the respiratory system." In other respects health was good. In nearly all the deaths which have occurred among residents for the last seven years some distinct organic disease has been discovered, which must have caused death in any climate. The people "enjoyed immunity" from contagious fevers, with the exception of small-pox. The principal food of the people is millet, a grain which Dr. Watson thought contained all the essential elements of nutrition. Accordingly he became "anxious to try the effect of millet on European constitutions, and, a good opportunity occurring in the case of a sailor who had been guilty of several offences," Dr. Watson "availed himself of it." The sailor was sentenced to solitary confinement for forty-nine days, and Dr. Watson fed the unhappy man on millet and water throughout that time, weighing him every now and then to see how he was getting on, and promising to change his food if he seemed to suffer from his monotonous diet! It is satisfactory (for science) to learn that this gallant tar gained one pound six ounces during his incarceration. "The experiment," says Dr. Watson, "is interesting" Perhaps he will agree with us that it is so clearly demonstrated as to render any further experiments in the same line a little more than unnecessary. We may have something more to say of Dr. Watson's "experiment" in another place. Towards the close of his report Dr. Watson gives some vague information of a sporting rather than a medical character.

From Canton Dr. F. Wong reports excellent health among the foreign residents. No deaths occurred. Among diseases common to natives Dr. Wong mentions a neuralgic disorder which he calls formication, or a sensation as of ants crawling over the body. Rest and tonics seem to be the only cure.

From Amoy Drs. Muller and Manson report an unusually cold, but not unhealthy, season. Elephantiasis is a disease often met with in this part of China.

From Takow and Taiwan-foo Dr. David Manson reports favourably, describing the climate of Formosa as one of the best in China, and well suited to persons labouring under diseases of the lungs.

From Chefoo Dr. W. W. Myers reports a favourable condition of the general health. The winter, though severe, is considerably modified as to its effects by the equable temperature preserved during the day and night, and the dryness of the air. The water supply is unsatisfactory.

From Hankow Dr. A. G. Reid reports insufficient drainage, and gives an account of some cases of not uncommon disorders.

From Swatow Dr. Scott reports 394 cases of disease, excepting two cases of drowning and one of stabbing (which, though Dr. Scott includes them, we do not think can strictly be called "diseases"), there were but two deaths from disease.

From Kiukiang Dr. G. Shearer reports some selected cases, which may interest the professional reader. The rest of his remarks, he says, he "must withhold for another occasion."

Dr. Edward Henderson contributes a memorandum on Steppe murrain in Shanghai. This form of cattle disease seems to have been very fatal. The native butchers slaughter the animal as soon as they are satisfied that it is diseased, and, if this be done promptly, Dr. Henderson is of opinion that it is not possible to distinguish such diseased meat from beef taken from an animal slaughtered in perfect health.

From Shanghai, also, Dr. Jamieson reports that the health of the settlement is steadily rising. No epidemic prevailed last winter. There were thirty-nine deaths among foreigners in the half-year. Foreign children were, as a rule, healthy during the winter six months; but dysentery occurred frequently when the cattle disease broke out—no doubt on account of the milk on which the children were chiefly fed. The reputation of Shanghai for healthfulness has undergone many changes. Dr. Jamieson is of opinion that, presuming ordinary care during the heat of the summer, nobody diminishes his chance of life by leaving England and removing to this port.

THE HONG KONG CORRESPONDENT OF THE "COLOGNE GAZETTE."

A correspondent of the Cologne Gazette at Hong Kong thus describes the present state of feeling in China with regard to the principal European States:—"Of all the nations which are represented here, the sagacious and observant Chinese place Germany in the highest rank. Germany never landed a soldier on Chinese territory, never threatened China with war, and never bombarded either Peking or Canton; her sons only looked after their trade, and never took possession of a foot of Chinese soil. The Americans are also popular, though last year the foolish expedition to Korea somewhat diminished their influence. The British, on the other hand, are very unpopular, and it is only by their gun-boats that they maintain their influence, which has already reached its zenith. The complaints of the Chinese Government against England are very frequent, and no Chinese comes in contact with the brusque and arrogant 'fair-haired barbarians' without wishing in his heart that he may live to see them humiliated. Still more disliked, however, are the French, who for many years have behaved in China even more arrogantly than the British. No other nation sent so numerous an army of 'blacks' into the country, or supported the often unfair and insulting demands of the missionaries with such unscrupulousness as the French. Their conduct in the last war too, when they marched to the capital with their British allies, will never be forgiven by the Chinese. Nothing in the world is holy to a Chinaman but his family; a single glance from 'the Western devil' at the wife of any man who does not belong to the lowest class is regarded as an irretrievable disgrace, and a European may live for a quarter of a century in China without seeing any more of a Chinese house than the antechamber. During the war, while the sons of Albion were looking for silver and drink, the Zouaves persecuted the Chinese women with their attentions, and many hundreds of the latter killed themselves in consequence. This produced a feeling of bitter indignation against the French all over the country, and their defeat by Germany is generally regarded here as a judgment upon them for the acts of their troops in China." The correspondent concludes by urging the German Government to act in future with the United States in all Asiatic questions. "Now is the time," he says, "to lay the foundation for great results in the future, for it is on these waters and on this neutral Asiatic territory that the conflict between America and England for the predominance on the seas will be fought out. The struggle will not be so warm either on the Thames or the Hudson as in Eastern Asia; and in another five-and-twenty years the centre of gravity of the United States will rather be on the Pacific than on the Atlantic. The sympathies and the interests of Germany under such circumstances clearly point to an understanding with America. Washington now seeks an alliance with Berlin, in view of future contingencies, and both should place their affairs in very efficient hands, in view of the approaching struggle against England and Russia."

Monetary and Commercial.

Telegrams have been received from Singapore, announcing the failure and arrest of Joshua, a native of India, dealing largely in opium. The liabilities are reported at $300,000 to $400,000 (printed pounds sterling in some newspapers). The arrest is for the appropriation of property.

The Government have sanctioned a subsidy for a monthly postal service between Aden and Zanzibar, and have accepted a tender by the British India Steam Navigation Company for its performance. The service will be inaugurated on the 5th of next month, in connection with the arrival at Aden of London mails on the 22nd of November. By selecting the port of Aden for the starting point, India, as well as England, will be brought into direct communication with the East Coast of Africa, and it is confidently expected that the service will not only develop trade, but tend to diminish slavery by conveying information of the movements of vessels employed in that traffic, while it will also provide means of communication between Sir Bartle Frere's Mission and the authorities. It is proposed to connect this service at Zanzibar with one from Natal, and thus bring the entire ontline of the African coast under the influence of regular postal communication.

The following is the directors' report of the China Submarine Telegraph Company, to be presented at the meeting of the shareholders on the 13th inst.:—

The directors submit the accounts, showing the result of the working of the Company during the first year of its operations, ending 30th June, 1872. Since the last ordinary meeting, on Nov. 14, 1871, the Company's cables have continued in good working order, and have not suffered a day's interruption. The directors have thought it advisable to raise the rate of messages between China and London to £6, which they consider to be a fair charge in reference to the length of line traversed and the capital expended. This alteration came into effect on the 15th October, and will, it is hoped, increase the revenue. The completion of the Australian line will also add to the receipts of this Company.

The gross revenue has amounted to £69,109 1s. 6d., and the expenses to £16,328 19s. 6d., showing a balance of £52,780 2s., which, after the deduction of income-tax and interest on debentures, leaves a nett profit of £50,943 5s. 10d. The directors have already paid three interim dividends, equivalent to 6 per cent. per annum, and they now declare a dividend of 2 per cent., making a total of 8 per cent. for the year; carrying forward £8,943 5s. 10d. to reserve. The directors regret to announce the death of Mr. James Henry Crawford. They do not for the present propose to fill the vacancy in the direction thus occasioned. In accordance with Article 78 of the Articles of Association, the Baron Emile D'Erlanger retires from the direction by rotation, but being eligible offers himself for re-election. The auditors are also elected annually, agreeably to the Articles of Association. The present auditors are Messrs. W. W. Deloitte and Robert Strong, who offer themselves for re-election.

The Hong Kong and China Gas Company have announced an interim dividend for the six months ended the 30th of June at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

The traffic receipts of the Eastern Telegraph Company for the month of October amounted to £31,407 9s. 2d., against £27,251

2s. 6d. in the corresponding period of 1871. The traffic returns on the European lines of the Great Northern Telegraph Company for the month of October amounted to 130,058f., against 106,957f. at the corresponding period of 1871, and on the China and Japan lines to 90,690f., against 60,222f.

Messrs. Bowles Bros. and Co., of 449, Strand, American bankers, have suspended, and issued the following circular. The firm had some transactions with Japan. The liabilities are said to be £100,000 :—

We regret to be obliged to inform you that, owing to the non-receipt of remittances from New York, we have been compelled to suspend payment. We have requested Mr. William Freer Scholfield, who has been suggested by some of our largest creditors in London, to act as inspector of our affairs here, until some arrangement shall be made, and we shall do nothing except with his approval.

Our firm has ample resources in the United States, and we have every reason to believe that we shall very shortly be in a position to resume payment. We remain, &c., BOWLES BROS. AND CO.

It is understood that an appeal has been lodged against the decision of the Tribunal of Commerce of the Seine in the action recently brought against the Suez Canal Company by the Messageries Maritimes, respecting the increased dues for passing through the canal, and that the Canal Company's transit agents, Messrs. Mosses and Mitchell, are receiving the canal dues, as heretofore, on the gross instead of on the net tonnage, as fixed by the regulation which came into force on the 1st of July last. It is stated that the British Consul at Port Said has been instructed to protest generally, on the part of British ships using the Canal, against the payment of the increased dues. The fall in the shares of the Company occasioned by the decision in the action brought by the Messageries Maritimes has not been recovered. The present quotation is 355f.

A rule has been granted for a new trial in the case of Cator v. the Great Western Insurance Company of New York, an action tried last term on a policy of insurance on 70,000 lb. weight of tea in 1,711 packages sent by the ship Euridice from New York to London, and in which the jury returned a verdict for the defendants.

The shares of the Comptoir d'Escompte of Paris are quoted at 620f., and those of the Messageries Maritimes at 530f.

Since the 1st inst. the Liverpool Cotton Market has shown signs of weakness, which has induced buyers in the Manchester Goods Market to hold aloof, and the business transacted has been limited. Owing to the existing engagements of producers there has been no pressure to sell, and although the tone at the close is very quiet, there is no material change in prices.

The Dutch ship Sophia Konder Nederland has arrived from Bangkok, after a passage of seven months, with a cargo of sugar in concrete. The Geo. Schotton follows with a similar cargo on behalf of the Indo-Chinese Sugar Company of Hong Kong. These cargoes are consigned to Messrs. Bremner and Laycock, the London agents.

Tenders for £650,000 in bills on India were received on the 6th inst. at the Bank of England, when the amounts allotted were :—To Calcutta, £565,300 ; to Bombay, £75,000 ; and to Madras, £9,700. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10 d. on all Presidencies ; and tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10⅛d. will receive about 44 per cent., above that price in full, and on Bombay at 1s. 10⅜d. in full. These results indicate no alteration in the demand for means of remittance to the East.

Bar silver is again slightly lower, and may be quoted 59¾d. per oz. standard. The amounts to hand have been but small, and they have been purchased principally for transmission to Holland. The large amount of Mexican Dollars on the market have nearly all been sold at 61¼d. per oz. for the old and 58¼d. per oz. fo the New Coinage, the former showing a reduction in price of ¼d. per oz., the latter of 1d.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer, Pekin, which left Southampton on Thursday, was, in gold—to Galle £115 ; to Bombay, £1,225 ; to Madras, £5,000 ; to Batavia, £2,000. In silver—to Alexandria, £150 ; to Penang, £25,000 ; to Singapore, £133,200 ; to Hong Kong, £100,728 ; to Shanghai, £8,895. Total in gold, £8,340 ; in silver, £267,973.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade returns for the past month show the declared value of our exportations to have been £22,657,736, being an increase of £2,309 863, or 11 per cent. on the corresponding month of last year, and of 29 per cent. on that of 1870—a difference, however, which probably fails to represent adequately the rise in prices that has occurred during the interval. The value of the exportations of coal, for instance, was £1,301,409, being more than double that of the exports of October, 1871, while in the total quantity shipped there was an actual decrease of 8 per cent. In the exports also of steel and iron there has been an increase of 34 per cent. in value and a diminution of 10 per cent. in quantity. On the other hand, cotton yarn shows an increase of 16 per cent. in value and 20 per cent. in quantity, and cotton manufactures an increase of 6 per cent. in value and 8 per cent. in quantity. An increase is also shown of 5 per cent. in earthenware, 2 per cent. in haberdashery, 10 per cent. in hardware, and 72 per cent. in machinery, while there has been a decrease of 12 per cent. in linen manufactures, 19 per cent. in silk manufactures, 5 per cent. in woollen manufactures, and 15 per cent. in miscellaneous articles.

The duty paid entries of Tea during the month were half a million lbs. larger than in the corresponding month last year, raising the total four million lbs. above that of 1871 ; the exports were less, but the total is still nearly one million lbs. less. The imports in the month amounted to nearly eighteen million lbs., against thirteen million lbs., of which Indian comprised 2,124,880 lbs. and 1,439,440 lbs. respectively in 1872 and 1871 ; and the total for the first ten months shows a total increase of 9,700,000 lbs., and the stock at the end of October showed an enlarged surplus of eight million lbs. The imports during the ten months ended the 31st Oct. present the following totals :—

1872. Lbs.		1871. Lbs.	Difference. Lbs.

1871, 104,030,339	...	...	...	33,426,007
Increase, 4,030,730				Increase, 664,023

The stock in bond on the 31st of October was 84,410,031 lbs., against 76,469,190 lbs. in 1871, and 73,219,235 in 1870.

The following is an extract from these returns of the figures which refer to our Export trade with China and the Far East :—

TEA.

Business has been unusually small for the period of the year, but has no doubt been considerably checked by the firmness of importers, more especially for the medium to fine descriptions of Congou, which dealers will only consent to take from hand to mouth at the present range of prices. The scarcity of the good common grades from 1s. to 1s. 2d. has also tended to limit operations. The deliveries for October although good are only 14,900,000 lbs., against 17,100,000 lbs. for same month last year, making the total as compared with same period last year as follows :—

from Jan. 1 to Oct. 31	... 78,211,000 lbs.	74,574,000 lbs.
Export do. do.	... 33,348,000 ,,	29,747,000 ,,
Sent coastwise do.	... 31,072,000 ,,	33,573,000 ,,
Total delivered ...	142,631,000 lbs.	137,894,000 lbs.

Total shipments from China up to 31st October as advised by telegram reach 114,000,000 lbs., as against 109,500,000 lbs. to same date last year, but deducting the losses of the Parnassus and Lahloo the quantities will closely approximate. The quantity afloat we make 33,160,000 lbs., against 37,200,000 lbs. same time last year.

Black.—Congou : There is no change of moment to quote in Broken leaf and Siftings, which have been sparingly dealt in. Good common shipping qualities of Red leafs from 11d. to 1s. 1d. are scarce and inquired for, whilst there has been a plentiful supply of the grades ruling from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4d. Medium kinds from 1s. 5d. to 1s. 8d. have met with fair demand, but fine and finest have not been in much request, one or two of the best chops of the season having realised 2s. 5d. to 2s. 7d. A few parcels of Paklins in boxes have been sold from 1s. 8d. to 1s. 10d. Black leafs : A few sales of fair Shantam kinds are reported from 8½d. to 8¾d. ; good common to fair Blackish-leafs are saleable from 11d. to 1s., superior grades up to 1s. 1d. being scarce and inquired for; fair medium kinds from 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5d. being comparatively dear, have only met with limited inquiry ; good medium to fine from 1s. 8d. upwards have also been difficult to move, fine and finest being held for prices not yet obtainable. In Tayshan Congous but little has been done beyond the sale of a few old season's import from 11d. to 1s. Souchongs have sold rather freely at 1s. 5d. to 1s. 8d. for medium, and 1s. 10d. to 2s. 3d. for superior. Scented Teas, Canton makes, have been comparatively neglected, but Foochow Orange Pekoes have been overabundant, and prices have consequently further given way, good medium strong scented only realising 1s. 5d. to 1s. 8d., and fine 1s. 9d. to 1s. 10d. per lb. Green : Notwithstanding the continuance of large and frequent public sales, the tone of the market has somewhat improved, although no actual advance in prices can be quoted. In Uncoloured Japan there is nothing to report.

SILK.

The market exhibits a quiet tone, and business has been restricted. Manufacturers buy cautiously, but in the case of the best classes of China Silk some fair sales have been made, and for these sorts prices are a shade firmer. Japans are more inquired for, the very reasonable rates now quoted having attracted notice and have induced some important transactions. In Canton Silk the arrivals have been large, and the increased stock has had a depressing effect upon buyers; still, at a concession upon ruling rates, it is probable that business would at once result. The imports warehoused in October were :—

Bengal	869	586
China	5,164	5,459
Canton	1,902	2,615
Japan	964	1,520

Coffee.—The supplies offered by auction have been extensive, the bulk consisting of second-hand parcels, but with a continued good demand nearly the whole has found buyers at the improvement quoted last week for Plantation and a further advance for Native Ceylon. The prices paid have been Plantation, triage, 70s. to 75s. 6d. ; small, 77s. to 79s. ; low middling, 79s. to 80s. 6d. ; middling, 81s. to 83s. 6d. ; good middling to fine middling bold, 84s. to 89s. ; pea-berry, 96s. 6d. to 99s. Native, small, 72s. 6d. to 73s. ; real good ordinary, 75s. ; bold, 76s. ; pea-berry, 82s. Some business has been done in Manila ; early in the week an offer of 250 bags pale was bought in at 77s., except 96 bags damaged, which sold at 75s. 6d. for first-class, subsequently 2,013 bags have been offered, and 1,000 bags sold, good ordinary mixed pale, 74s. to 74s. 6d. ; good pale, 75s. 6d. ; Indian sort sea damaged pale first-class, 75s. ; the remainder being bought in, sound pale at 77s. per cwt. No business has been done in other descriptions of East India.

Cocoa-Nut Oil continues quiet ; Ceylon at £35 to £35 10s., and Cochin at £36 to £38 15s. ; at auction 274 pipes good to fine Cochin sold at £38 15s., and 55 casks Ceylon at £35 10s. Afloat business has been done in Ceylon, November to February shipment, at £36.

Cutch.—The market is still improving, and Pegu has further advanced, fine being quoted 22s. 6d., good 21s. 6d., medium 21s. per cwt.

Hemp.—A large supply of Manila offered at the auctions went off slowly, and only a few small parcels found buyers at about the previous value, the bulk being bought in. Of 2,272 bales of fresh import offered only 300 bales sold, fair roping at £47, good roping at £48, first class sea damaged £47 to £48, the remainder bought in, good roping at £48 10s., Boluzan (1,300 bales) at £49 10s.

Pepper.—Black : The market is dull, Penang is obtainable at 6¼d. and Singapore at 6½d. At the public sales offers were made only on lower terms and nearly the whole of the supplies have been bought in. Singapore at 6¼d. to 6⅜d., Siam at 6⅜d., and Penang at 6¼d. to 6⅜d. White : Singapore has sold steadily at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 1⅛d. per lb.

Rice.—A dull tone still prevails in the market, and business is restricted. On the spot 3,000 bags Necransie have been sold at 9s. 3d.

Spices.—Cinnamon : 6 bales Ceylon sold at 2s. 7d. to 2s. 11d. per lb., 8 cases Batavia at 76s., coarse 36s. per cwt. Cloves : 3 cases dull Penang sold at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 4½d. Nutmegs : At public sale 105 cases 54 boxes Penang of fresh import met a good demand, and nearly the whole found buyers at better prices; bold, average 69 nuts to the lb., sold at 3s. 9d. to 3s. 11d., 77's at 3s. 5d., 85's at 3s. 4d. to 3s. 5d., 90's at 3s. 3d., 116 to 104's at 2s. 9d. to 2s. 10d., 145's at 2s. 7d., 145's and 160's shrivelled 2s. 1d., limed 145 to 130's at 1s. 10d. to 2s. 1d., 160's at 1s. 8d. Mace : 24 cases Penang were held firmly and nearly all bought in at 4s. 2d. to 4s. 4d., only one case selling at the latter price.

Sugar.—There has been less demand for refining kinds than during last week, the public sales have gone off flatly, and only small sales have been effected by private contract, but prices are steadily upheld ; low brown sorts still meet a moderate inquiry at firm rates, and a limited business has taken place. China : At auction of the 4th inst. 7,366 bags low common brown were bought in at 23s. to 24s ; by private contract on the same day 2,500 bags low quality were sold at 20s. 6d. to 20s. 9d., and subsequently 800 bags have been taken at 22s. ; also in public sale 12,534 mats and 159 bags at 22s. 6d. to 25s. 6d. for low to good brown. Manila : By private contract 7,400 bags dried Ilo Ilo (duty 4s. 9d.) have been quitted at 26s. 6d. ; no public sales. Penang : In auction1, 899 baskets date sort were bought in at 22s. 6d. to 23s., also 238 bags low yellow (duties 4s. and 4s. 9d.) at 29s. to 29s. 6d. ; privately 500 baskets and 1,800 bags date sort have been sold at 22s. Java : By private contract 1,000 bags low quality have been sold at 21s. per cwt.

Shells.—The periodical sales were held on the 5th inst. Mother-o'-Pearl : Moderate supplies offered met an active demand, and were nearly all disposed of at full to rather dearer rates for all descriptions ; 9 cases fine bold Manila sold at £13. Tortoise : A good demand was experienced and fully last sale's rates were realised ; of 10 cases Singapore offered 8 cases sold at 28s. to 28s. 6d., inferior 22s. to 24s. Other Shells : 197 cases Japan Ear bought in at 20s., and 10 tons loose at 10s. per cwt., 18 baskets 7,160 loose Green Snail withdrawn, 7 cases Bull Mouth sold at 2¼d., 13 pockets ditto at 1½d. each, 430 pockets Cola sold at 14s. 6d. to 15s., 3 cases Panther at 43s., 23 mats Murex at 12s. to 12s. 6d., 22 cases Singapore Trocas at 7s. 6d., and 71 bags Turbo at 14s. 6d. per cwt.

NOTICES TO MARINERS.

CHINA.

Formosa Strait.—Fixed Light on Turnabout Island.—The Chinese Government has given notice that in March, 1873, a light will be exhibited from a lighthouse now in the course of erection on Turnabout Island, off Hai-tan Island, north part of Formosa Strait. The light will be a fixed white light, elevated 235 feet above the sea, and in clear weather should be seen from a distance of twenty-two miles. The illuminating apparatus will be dioptric or by lenses, of the first order. The tower is round, will be 54 feet high, and painted black. Position, lat. 25 deg. 26 min. N., lon. 119 deg. 58 min. 40 sec. E.

Chusan Archipelago.—Fixed Light on West Volcano Island.—Also, that from about the 1st October, 1872, a light would be exhibited from a lighthouse recently erected on West Volcano Island, Chusan Archipelago. The light is a fixed white light, elevated 93 feet above the sea, and in clear weather should be seen from a distance of 15 miles. The illuminating apparatus is dioptric or by lenses, of the fourth order. The tower is built of stone, 33 feet high, and is painted black; the keeper's dwelling is painted white. Position, lat. 30 deg. 18¼ min. N., long. 121 deg. 55¼ min. E.—Hydrographic Office, Admiralty, November, 1872.

JAPAN.

Rocks in the Channels between Misima Nada and Bingo Nada.—The following dangers have been discovered in the Aogi Seto Channel and off the north-west coast of Sikok:—1. A rock northward of Kodono-sima; it has sixteen feet of water on it at low water springs, and lies N.N.E. ½ E., 3 cables from the rock to westward of Kodono-sima. Position, lat. 34 deg. 16 min. 50 sec. N., long. 132 deg. 57 min. 40 sec. E. 2. A rock (Adji rock) off north-west coast of Sikok, lying W. ¾ S. one and a half miles from Ka-sima and 8 cables from the nearest point of mainland of Sikok. Position, lat. 34 deg. 4 min. N., long. 132 deg. 51 min. E.—Hydrographic Office, Admiralty, November, 1872.

Shipbuilding on the Clyde.—The shipbuilding trade on the Clyde has been kept busy during the past month by the work at present on hand. The result of the month's work, as sent from the yards, has reached the large total of 22,250 tons, an amount of tonnage launched in one month exceeded only twice within the last six years—viz., in May of this year, and in October 1868. The work on hand, however, is not being kept up by new orders to anything like the output. Notwithstanding the slight reduction in the price of iron, and also of coal, shipowners are still cautious in closing contracts for new vessels, fearing a reaction in the demand for freights; and only a few contracts were fixed during last month. The following is a comparative statement of the number and tonnage of vessels launched during the month and ten months ending 31st October in each of the past five years:—

	Month.		Ten Months.
	Vessels.	Tons.	Vessels.	Tons.
1872	18	22,250	160	183,000
1871	13	17,650	144	150,000
1870	8	7,200	156	144,500
1868	24	27,000	179	146,000

Rapid Voyage.—The steamship Glenroy (Capt. H. W. Auld), Messrs. T. Skinner and Co.'s Castle Line, arrived on the 3rd inst. from Shanghai with 3,100 tons tea. She left Shanghai Sept. 16, thus making the voyage in forty-eight days, including all stoppages. This is said to be the fastest passage on record between the above-mentioned ports. We may add that the Glenroy left London on the 9th July for China; she has thus completed the voyage out and home in three months twenty-four days, including all detention, amounting to upwards of twenty days at loading and calling ports. The distance sailed is 21,190 nautical miles, equal to 24,545 English statute miles, or an average speed of ten miles an hour on the whole voyage out and home.

Launch of a Steamer for the Netherland's India Steam Navigation Company.—On the 2nd inst. an iron screw-steamer was launched by Messrs. Blackwood and Gordon, for the Netherlands India Steam Navigation Company, Limited. The vessel was named the Prins Alexander by Mrs. Van Emmerik, wife of the master of the ship, and is of the following dimensions:—Length, 240 feet; breadth of beam, 30 feet; depth of hold, 17 feet; tonnage, 1,250. The steamer is built to the highest class at Lloyd's, and is to be fitted up in a very superior manner. The builders also supply the engines, of 155 nominal horse power, and it is expected she will attain a high rate of speed.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

With the darkening days and changing temperatures the digestion becomes impaired, the liver disordered, and the mind despondent unless the cause of the irregularity be expelled from the blood and body by such an alterative as these Pills. They directly attack the source of the evil, thrust out all impurities from the circulation, restore the distempered organs to their natural state, and correct all defective or contaminated secretions. Such an easy means of instituting health, strength, and cheerfulness should be applied by all whose stomachs are weak, whose minds are much harassed or whose brains are overworked. Holloway's is essentially a blood tempering medicine, whereby its influence reaches the remotest fibre of the frame, and so effects a universal good.

HONG KONG.

COMPLETION FUND.

JUST before embarking from Hong Kong, on Tuesday, Nov. 16, 1869, H.R.H. the DUKE OF EDINBURGH was graciously pleased to lay the first stone of a choir for this, the mother Church of the Diocese of Victoria. The cost of the fabric has been shared by the Executive Government and the local community; and it is proposed, by a general subscription among former residents in, and visitors to China, to provide the necessary furniture and fittings. Should sufficient funds be raised, it is proposed to erect a stone pulpit.

The Committee will gladly receive and forward any special gifts with which they may be entrusted. This scheme having received the cordial approval of the Colonial Chaplain and the Trustees, is circulated by the Executive Committee.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present French mail brings advices from this port to the 25th September, but by the Pacific mail the dates extend to the 2nd October; the P. and O. mail from London July 26 arrived out on the 8th; the French mail of Aug. 2 on the 20th, and the P. and O. mail of Aug. 9 on the 26th September.

The following summary of news is from the Japan Herald:—

The chief event since last mail has been the hearing before a Japanese tribunal of an action brought by Captain Herreira, of the Peruvian barque Maria Luz, for the recovery of the coolies who since the decree of the Court in the trial of the captain for cruelty towards them have been living ashore at the cost of and under the surveillance of the Japanese authorities. The case commenced on the 18th September, and judgment was rendered on the 27th. Mr. F. V. Dickins, Barrister-at-law, appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Davidson, barrister, appeared for the defendants. The Court gave judgment in favour of the defendants.

It is not the intention of Government to allow foreigners to lease residences in the city of Yedo. All those who were granted permission are notified that they cannot remain longer than one month from date, and are required to return to Sukidji. The mixing of foreigners with the natives is not approved of.

The Consuls have just been notified of an important departmental change. All claims of a judicial character, instead of being as heretofore, addressed to the Chiji of the Kanagawa Ken, are now to be sent to Mr. Nishi Naromori, Shio Chiu Hanji, the President of the Judicial Department of this ken, which from this date will exist as a separate department. Mr. Hill is appointed its legal aduiser, and Mr. Wills to act as interpreter in conjunction with two native interpreters.

It is some time since Yokohama was visited with an earthquake of such unusual violence as that which occurred yesterday morning. The shocks were both lengthy and severe, in one instance knocking several ornaments from a chimney-piece to the floor, and in another, half emptying some fire buckets of their contents.

It is reported that Mr. Galy has been appointed to the post of interpreter to the Judicial Department, by the Minister of Justice, and Mr. Ribérolles as principal of the newly-established Law College.

Five-rio kinsatz, of the new issue, printed on foreign paper, are already imitated, spurious notes being in circulation. The Government asserts that the paper and engraving are correct, but the ink used for Japanese seals is too light.

Mr. Enslie, Consul at Nee-e-gata, is about being transferred to Osaka, where he was formerly stationed, recent occurrences in that quarter having rendered such a step expedient.

Mr. A. M. Shillingford and Mr. W. A. J. Waters have been appointed assistants in the Okura-sho, to Mr. T. J. Waters, Surveyor-General.

A deputation of sixty persons has arrived at Kagoshima from the king of the Loochews to the Mikado, and may be expected here in a week, calling upon the Government to avenge the death of fifty six Loochewans who were killed, without provocation, at Miaca Island by people of Formosa. Four men-of-war are reported to be preparing to depart for Formosa as soon as the Loochewans arrive.

An Italian gentleman lately proceeded to Koshiu, accompanied by three Japanese. On their arrival, the authorities, having elicited from the servants that the foreigner had no permit, and that he had come for the purpose of secretly purchasing silk-worms' eggs, sent him back to Yokohama under escort.

A meeting of the subscribers to Christ Church took place at the British Consulate. The object of the meeting was to decide on certain definite instructions to be sent to those gentlemen in England who are in correspondence with the Foreign-office, in respect of the chaplain's appointment at Yokohama. Mr. Consul Robertson occupied the chair, and opened the proceedings by reading the correspondence that had passed, and said there were two points on which the gentlemen at home wished to be assured before appointing a candidate for the post of chaplain. They were:—First, the length of time that the appointment would be made for, and, second, the amount of salary the community would guarantee. A discussion took place on the matter, and the meeting adjourned, on the following motion by Mr. W. G. Howell, seconded by Mr. M. Smith:—"That, in view of the financial position of the church, which does not seem to warrant any such extraordinary expenditure as would be involved by sending for a chaplain from England, the committee appointed to nominate a successor for Mr. Bailey be requested to stay further proceedings at home for the present."

A dinner to the Consular Corps was given by Mr. Oye Tak, the Acting Governor. One of the head officials of the Foreign-office is shortly to start for the Korea, with the object, it is stated, of ascertaining what the ideas of that Goverment are in relation to Japan.

The ex-London policemen who volunteered, in answer to an advertisement inserted in the papers at the time, to accept service as guards for the British Legation in Japan, in troublous times, when the safety of the Minister and minor officials was by no means assured, are to be dispensed with as no longer necessary. Notice has also been sent by the Government stating that guards for exports furnished to the several Legations will in future not be supplied.

HUDSON, MALCOLM AND CO. versus RANGAN.—Mr. F. V. Dickins appeared for the plaintiffs, and said that the present was a motion to determine the priority between two bills of sale. It appears that about a year ago Mr. A. G. Thompson, a clerk in the employ of Messrs. Hudson, Malcolm and Co., and living at No. 75, gave a bill of sale over the movable property contained in those premises to W. Rangan, who had the bill of sale duly registered. Shortly after this had been effected Thompson removed to the premises No. 219, taking with him the property already under bill of sale to Rangan, with his consent. Application was then made to Messrs. Hudson, Malcolm and Co. by Thompson for another loan on the same goods. No notice having reached Mr. Spence, who was acting for Messrs. Hudson, Malcolm and Co., that a prior bill of sale had been given, he granted the loan required, and took the bill of sale from Thompson. Mr. Rangan, landlord of No. 219, receiving no rent, put in an execution, took possession, and was about selling the property to satisfy his claim, when an injunction, which stopped the sale, was obtained from the Court. Rangan now affirms that the property mentioned in the second bill of sale is identical with that of his, and that therefore he has a prior claim. The question was therefore one of a purely legal character. Mr. Dickins then quoted the bill of Sale Act of 1854 in support of his case, and argued that the property in the first bill of sale, described as "situated on Lot 75," was not described in such a manner as to separate it from any other property of the grantor.

His Lordship said that the fact of removing the chattels could not invalidate the first bill of sale, the property having already passed into the possession of Rangan. Had the grantee of the second bill of sale examined the register, he would have found that a previous bill of sale had been given for a similar amount to Mr. Rangan. He should therefore dismiss the motion.

THE CASE OF MR. COUSENS.

The committee appointed at the late meeting at the Club, respecting the imprisonment of Mr. Cousens, have drawn up the memorials subjoined:—

To his Excellency R. G. Watson, Esq., H.B.M.'s Charge d'Affaires in Japan.

SIR,—We have the honour to hand your Excellency herewith a copy of the Hiogo News of Sept. 4, containing a report of the trial before H.M.'s Consul at Kobe of a Mr. Cousens, for an assault on a Japanese sendo, and also the report of a committee of three gentlemen appointed by a meeting held at the United Club here on the 7th inst. to investigate the matter.

This report was adopted by a second meeting held at the United Club on the 14th Sept., and ordered to be presented to your Excellency, and H.M.'s Chief Judge of the Supreme Court.

We, the undersigned British residents of Yokohama, respectfully request that your Excellency should order a thorough investigation into all the circumstances of this case, and should you consider that the principles of law and justice have not guided the proceedings and decision of H.M.'s Consular Court at Kobe, that your Excellency should take such measures as you may deem requisite to prevent any recurrence of such proceedings, and to remove the discredit which appears to us to attach to the British Consulate at Kobe in consequence of its action in this case.—We have the honour to be, your obedient servants,

MEMORIAL OF OTHER THAN BRITISH SUBJECTS.

We, the undersigned residents of Yokohama, of other than British nationality, desire to testify our cordial sympathy with our British fellow-residents in the views they have expressed about the imprisonment of a Mr. Cousens at Kobe for a trivial assault, and also express our opinion of the extreme propriety of the investigation of the affair which they request.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

We have advices from this port to the 29th Sept.; the P. and O. mail, from London August 9, arrived out on the 15th Sept. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

Excessive dulness has marked the present season in China; a market, in fact, can scarcely be said to exist for either imports or exports, each still simply seeking to fill up the requirements of the moment. There is no doubt that, both amongst Chinese and foreigners, there is a deep feeling of want of confidence. The former, influenced on the one hand by the large stock of imports which they fear may at any moment be placed suddenly on the market, and on the other by reports of disaster from the ordinary consuming districts, have ceased to be buyers, while the latter, influenced by continual unfavourable advices from Europe, where a crisis of some kind seems imminent, are in that uncertain state of mind that they know not, to-day, what circumstances may lead them to do next. Superadded to all this, a local tightness in the money market has more or less influence on the state of trade. This has had the effect of seriously raising the rate of exchange, and thereby interfering with the export trade. Altogether, matters at the present moment wear an aspect more unpromising than they have done for some three or four years, and unless some change takes place, we fear will result in serious loss.

A notification has been published by the Officiating British Consul, Mr. Alabaster, inviting the assistance of the community in forming a complete collection of the silk manufactures of this district for the London International Exhibition of 1873. The variety of Chinese silk-piece goods, such as crapes, gauzes, silks, satins, and pongees, must be immense, but of these only a few kinds at present find a market at home, owing to the shopkeepers being either in ignorance of their existence or not knowing how to set about getting them. We believe it is intended to attach to the specimens, which will be exhibited in case portfolios, besides particulars of the length of the pieces as manufactured, the average cost, and other information specified in the notification, the names of those from whom they were obtained.

Mr. Joseph Haas, Interpreter to the Austro-Hungarian Consulate, resumes the duties of Assessor at the Mixed Court for the U. S. Consulate-General; Dr. McCartee, who has held the position of Interpreter to the Consulate-General for some months, having left Shanghai for Japan. While we may regret that we lose by Dr. McCartee's departure an able sinologue and an experienced official, we feel that the energetic and painstaking manner in which Mr. Haas formerly discharged the duties, ensures that they will continue to be well fulfilled.

The efforts made to get up an International Eight-oar race, Scotch v. English, for next regatta of the S.R.C., have failed, the English members having been obliged to withdraw. Though of considerable numerical strength, the English membership can at present barely furnish forth an eight of sufficient calibre and experience in rowing for such a contest, and defections in the team chosen have necessitated an intimation to the Scottish eight that the event cannot come off. An eight-oar race will still form part of the present programme, however, the Scottish eight having given a challenge to all the members of the Club who are of other nationalities.

A cricket match, the Club Eleven v. Racket Court, has been played. On the first day's play it looked a "moral" for the Club, which got 168 in the first innings, while the Court lost seven of its best wickets for 29. The wickets were pitched again the following day, when the Racket Court made its score for the first innings up to 44, and then went to bat again. This time it made 195 for six wickets, when the game had to be left off. A match Mi-ho-loongs v. the World is announced.

The Mih-ho-loongs have had a company drill, when about thirty men turned out. We understand that a regulation has been passed to take off the rolls of the company the name of any member who misses two consecutive drills, unless sufficient cause for absence is shown. We believe the esprit of the company is strong enough to stand this discipline; and it is certainly hard on men who have devoted time to drill, to have the good effect of it lost on parade by the awkwardness of the undrilled.

Operations for the raising of the wreck of the Lismore are in active progress. The Annie Porter, sunk in the former endeavour to raise the Lismore by buoying her to two vessels, will first be blown up, and the attempt next made to raise the steamer by means of apparatus specially imported for the purpose. The Hopewell and Arakan were placed in the Old Dock on Monday last; the former to repair the damage sustained in the collision with the Annie Gray, and the latter for a general overhaul previous to loading teas for London. The Annie Gray is still at anchor in the river, in a disabled condition, being minus her foremast.

The twelfth performance by the Wind Instrument Company has been given, and was largely attended. The night was mild and pleasant, and the music a culmination of the general excellence which has characterised the performances during the season.

Among the passengers by the last American mail, homeward, was the Austro-Hungarian Minister, Chevalier Calicé, who will be absent from China for twelve months.

Our Hankow correspondent writes:—We have been favoured, within the last few weeks, with a Post-office; a privilege which, I believe, will be highly appreciated by a good portion of the community. The duties of Postmaster are discharged at present by E. L Oxenham, Esq., of H.M.'s Consulate. A Masonic Lodge has also just been opened here; and if report be true, it is likely to have a distinguished band of members enrolled in its records. Hankow, just now, presents an ample field for the exercise of any such moral influence as Freemasonry. Let us hope its claims as a moral force will be duly verified. A fire has occurred in which the ice-house, which belongs to foreigners, alone was burned. It is undoubtedly a case of incendiarism

The following items are from the Shanghai Courier:—

The prospectus of the new company of which we have heard for some time as being in course of organisation to compete with the Pacific Mail Company—The China Trans-Pacific Steamship Company (Limited)—has appeared; Messrs. Russell and Co. are the agents, and 2,000 of the shares are reserved for allotment in China.

We learn that on the 25th Sept. the engines of the frigate launched some months ago at Kaou-Chang-Meaou Arsenal, were at work under steam for six hours. Everything has been found in the most satisfactory state, and the powerful machinery was started and went steadily on without the slightest hitch; the result being that she is authoritatively pronounced ready to proceed on her official trip.

The Italian Consul is about to take a census of all Italian subjects resident or travelling in China, and accordingly requests all such to bring or send to his Consulate, verbally or in writing, particulars regarding themselves under twelve different headings, such as—Name, surname and parentage, place of birth, age, education, religion, how long they have left Italy, &c., &c.

The first pontoon for the free ferry has been placed in position on the north side of the Soochow Creek, opposite the north end of Gnaomen-road. The abutment of the ferry on the southern side is also approaching completion.

HONG KONG.

Dates extend to the 5th Oct. The P. and O. mail of the 23rd Aug. arrived out on the 1st. Oct.

A ball was given at the City Hall by the Hong Kong Club, in honour of his Imperial Highness the Grand Duke Alexis, and went off with much success. His Imperial Highness, accompanied by his suite, and his Excellency the Governor, Lady Kennedy, and Miss Kennedy, arrived shortly after ten o'clock, and the Grand Duke led off the first quadrille with Lady Kennedy. Among the guests present were Admiral Possiet and the officers of the Svetland, and of the other Russian men-of-war in harbour, Sir Brooke Robertson, the Chief Justice, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, and other members of the Local Government. Dancing was kept up with energy until a late hour, his Imperial Highness affording much gratification by his courteous and genial demeanour. The decorations were very tasteful, and the arrangements generally very good.

Arrangements have been made for the delivery of a series of excellent lectures at the St. Andrew's Hall, in the City Hall Building. Several very interesting subjects are on the programme, the first lecture being Dr. Legge's reminiscences of life in China, and there also being a lecture from Dr. Eitel on Fung Shui. The proceeds of the lectures, for the series of which a fee of $5 will be charged, will go to the City Hall Library. We are confident that this valuable addition to our intellectual amusements will be well supported, and are glad to hear that H.E. Sir Arthur Kennedy has promised to give every assistance, and will be present at the first lecture.

A correspondent at Macao calls attention to a new feature in the coolie trade, which is worthy of notice. It appears that arrangements are being made for the shipment, in an Italian steamer, of a large number of coolies to Costa Rica, a Republican state to the North of Panama, and stretching between the Atlantic and the Pacific. The object with which the men are being sent is understood to be to assist in building a railway. The difficulty, however, is that Costa Rica has no relations either with Portugal or China, and consequently the men will be without even the moderate amount of protection afforded to the emigrants to Peru. It is understood that such an arrangement would not be countenanced by the Portuguese Government, and that the Superintendent of Emigration at Macao has protested against the step, but it appears that the Governor has not yet felt called upon to intervene. The place to which the men are being sent is described as a most difficult country, and the coolies will have great hardship in reaching their destination, whether they land on the Atlantic or the Pacific side.

Mr. T. Fitzroy Rice will proceed to Japan by the next French mail steamer, having accepted an appointment with a view to organising a police force in that country.

A fire broke out at Messrs. Reynolds and Co.'s godown in Wyndham-street, among some loose straw. The alarm was promptly given, but the fire was extinguished by the assistance of gentlemen on the spot, before the engines arrived. The damage done was not of any magnitude.

We are glad to observe that the Canton Daily Shipping News has at length blossomed into a full-blown newspaper.

H.I.H. the Grand Duke Alexis and suite, accompanied by H.E. Sir Arthur Kennedy and H.E. the Russian Admiral, visited the Sing Ping Theatre. The piece played immediately on the arrival of the distinguished visitors was that of "The Eight Genii," congratulating the Queen of Heaven on the anniversary of her birth. This piece was not very interesting, but occupied only a very short time, the object being to show respect to the distinguished spectator. Eight actors, representing the eight Genii, came out and worshipped in pairs in front of the stage. The next piece played was the State Installation of Soo Chun, an eminent politician who flourished in the Chow Dynasty, into the office of Premier or Chief Councillor for the Confederation of the Six States.

The prospectus of the China Trans-Pacific Steam Ship Company has been circulated by Messrs. Russell and Co., as agents, at Hong Kong and inviting subscribers to the capital. The Directors announced are:—Edward Henry Green, Chairman; W. Wetmore Cryder, E. M. de Bussche, W. J. Alt, Edward Cunningham, Alexander Grant Dallas, Gilson Homan, with power to increase their number to fifteen.

THE CHINA AND JAPAN MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.

The directors, in submitting to the shareholders a statement of the company's accounts to the 30th June last, are pleased to be able to report most satisfactorily on the progress of their business, the net premia taken during the first six months of the present year amounting to Tls. 143,966.68, against Tls. 116,493.32 for the same period of 1871.

The losses paid, it will be observed, amount to Tls. 97,107.99, the great portion of the same belonging to last year, to provide for which a sum of Tls. 77,536.30 was brought forward from the 31st December, 1871. After payment of the said losses, of all current expenses, and of the half-yearly interest dividend to the 30th June, and after writing off the balance of Messrs. Trautmann and Co.'s remuneration, a sum of Tls. 86 821.17 remained at debit of working account, to be carried forward.

The net Premia earned from the 1st July to the 30th Sept. are estimated at Tls. 85,000, while the losses and claims reported to date, beyond those paid previous to the 1st July, and expenses on treasure salved, ex P.M. steamer America, amount to Tls. 42,000.

Mr. Framjee Hormusjee resigned his seat on the board on his departure from China, and the selection of his successor engages the attention of the directors.

SIAM.

—o—

BANGKOK.

The Siam Advertiser has the following:—

His Excellency the Minister of Foreign Affairs gave an evening party at his residence, in honour of the King's birthday, to which most of the European residents were invited. The attendance was large, and dancing was kept up till early in the morning. The residence of the Minister, it is said, was brilliantly illuminated, and some of the Siamese nobles performed quite gracefully their parts in the dances in which they participated. For three successive nights the natives vied with each other in illuminating their residences, and on these occasions many of these places had a very fascinating and fairy-like appearance.

A dinner was given in the palace to some of the Princes, and a dinner was given to prominent Siamese officials, and to some of the Europeans in Siamese employ. This dinner was served in a new and beautiful hall in the palace. His Majesty honoured his guests with his presence, and dined in the same hall at a separate table. These demonstrations on the part of his Majesty indicate the good will of the young King to foreigners.

There is now a rumour afloat that two loads of lead pieces came to Siam not long since; one of these loads was given as a bribe to some prominent nobleman, which secured for them an entrance into the country. The rumour does not indicate whether these vessels were square-rigged vessels or native rigged craft, nor do they indicate the person who was bribed. We have no means of knowing whether this rumour is true or false; it may be wholly false; it may be partly true. This is true, however, there is at present a panic about the lead pieces; those who have many on hand are ready to sell them at a depreciated value, and many of the petty traders refuse to take them as change. What all this means we do not know. Why it is so we do not know. It behoves the Government to know whether any persons are engaged in introducing a false lead currency, depreciating the coin it has issued, and making endless trouble and anxiety to the masses of the poor people — to take effective measures to protect the value of its currency — to terrify forgers and prevent the issue of any currency that will destroy its credit and the value of its coin.

The province of Rahang was originally a Laotian region. During the wars with the Laos the Siamese conquered this region, and eventually placed over it a Siamese governor. It is now regarded as Siamese territory, and is the extreme limit of Siam proper on the north-west. Rahang on the west joins British Burmah; on the north it joins several Laotian provinces that are again subject to Chiengmai. Chiengmai is a Laotian province, and is still governed by Laotian princes. His Majesty the King of Siam usually concurs in appointing the successor of any Chiengmai Laotian prince who may have deceased. Persons who may be obnoxious to the laws of Siam often escape to Chiengmai, and while there the Siamese do not usually succeed in gaining possession of their persons. Is Chiengmai a conquered province? Is it tributary to Siam, and to what extent; or is it simply under the protection of Siam, as was Cambodia? All these are questions full of interest.

It is said that Messrs. Vrooman, and Culbertson made the distance from Bangkok to Rahang in twenty-two days. Last week the Rev. Mr. Culbertson returned from Rahang to Bangkok in four days. This is very rapid travelling by the boats usually employed for such purposes.

SARAWAK.

We learn from the Sarawak Gazette that the Quop Estate and other property of Baroness Coutts, at Lundu, was sold by public auction on the 19th September, realising about $1,500. The house and plantations at Tanah Puteh were bought for $800 by Ken What, a Chinese merchant in the Bazaar, who intends to present a large piece of ground to his countrymen for a public burying-place, and keep up the house for the accommodation of pleasure seekers from Kuching.

The steamer Firefly, formerly the yacht belonging to the Honourable the Resident of Sarawak, is to run in the Rejang river, between Sibu, Kanowit, Matu, and Rejang, a run of rather more than one hundred miles.

The Sarawak Sugar Company's creditors have held a meeting in the Court House, when a first and final dividend of 9⅜ per cent. was declared.

The Government advertise that the coal seams of Simunjan in the Sudong river and Silantek in the Batang Lupar, about four to five feet thick, may be worked by an individual or company on a payment of ten cents. per ton brought to grass. The Simunjan seams are about 3½ miles from a navigable river, and the Silentek seams are close to a small stream navigable for boats only, and about twelee miles from a large navigable river. Government offers a free passage by the S. S. Royalist from and back to Singapore to any person desirous of examining the seams.

Government propose to erect a suitable building for a Sanitarium on one of the minor peaks of the Matang mountain, if there is any prospect of invalids availing themselves of such a locality. Dr. Houghton specifies the following advantages:—A S. E. aspect, temperature ranging from 66 deg. to 88 deg., abundance of excellent water, perfect accessibility from Kuching by water, a magnificent view over Sarawak, Lundu, Sudong, &c., and a gentle ascent from the foot of the mountain, admitting of invalids being carried up in chairs by coolies, always obtainable from the Rajah's Coffee plantation, through which the road passes.

SINGAPORE.

The dates by this mail extend to the 13th Oct. No later mail had been received from London.

The following is the report of the sub-committee appointed to consider the Second Supplementary Supply Bill for the year 1871:—

The sub-committee appointed to consider the Second Supplementary Supply Bill for 1871, having examined the statements framed by the Auditor-General and published in the Blue-book of 1871, and which are separately laid before Council to-day, beg to report as follows:—

1. This Supply Bill appears necessary to cover the only expenditure which exceeds the items provided for in the estimates and supplementary estimates of 1871.

2. The sub-committee desire, however, to call the attention of the Council to the fact that the revenue for 1871 showed a net increase over that of 1870 of $26,955, and the expenditure a net decrease of $5,264.

3. The actual revenue, as compared with the estimates for the year, showed an excess of $40,111—and while the expenditure was estimated at $1,376,006, it proved to be only $1,244,111, thus showing a net saving of $121,895.

4. The actual excess of revenue over expenditure for the year 1871 was $151,592.

5. The sub-committee think this Supply Bill may be at once passed.

The Government, with a view to the public convenience, has procured a considerable quantity of silver and copper small coin, which the Treasury obligingly issues at par. The Kling money-changers, however, are turning this to account, by drawing coin from the Treasury, for which they charge 2 per cent. on issuing it in the square and elsewhere, persistently refusing to abate a single pie, on the ground that small change is very scarce. Even Chinese shopkeepers demand 1 per cent. It would be a boon to every one if a plan were devised whereby this annoying imposition might be avoided.

The state of affairs in Deli is thus sketched in the Batavia Handelsblad:—"The reports as to how matters stand in Deli are far from favourable. The troops suffer much from sickness, above all from fevers, and as we have said before from diarrhœa and swollen feet. If the Hill Battas make common cause with the enemy, the situation will become an untenable one. As to the bentings, we are informed that they call forth admiration as well by their position as by their plan and strength. Without suspecting it, one finds one's self sometimes suddenly opposite a benting barely fifty paces off. These bentings are so built that grenades scarcely do any harm; by means of a thick bamboo covering, they have been made shell proof. It will be seen that our brave troops have a hard task before them."

A writer in the Straits Times says:—In the eighth paragraph of the Governor's Minute on the sale of the land in connection with the building and repairing of the markets, laid before the Legislative Council on Sept. 26 last, his Excellency reports that at Malacca about 8 000 square feet of land near the Iron Bridge had been sold for $5,000, which sum is to be appropriated for the erection of a commodious market; I was at the spot very shortly after the sale, and was surprised to learn that a plot of land, containing, in my opinion, more than 8,000 square feet, adjoining the plot sold by Sir Harry Ord, had been given to a rich Chinese at Malacca by the Government for his sole use and benefit. The fortunate recipient of this noble gift has erected a block of substantial shops on the site, which is likely to yield a rental of $90 per mensem at least. It appears to me very desirable that the public should be informed upon what grounds such valuable public property has been given to a private individual. A commission is needed to inquire into, and report fully upon, the whole of the circumstances connected with this singular transaction, for which Sir Harry Ord is not responsible—the gift having been made, I believe, under the auspices of Capt. Shaw, the Lieut.-Governor, and Colonel Anson whilst officiating as Governor.

We cull the following items of News from the Penang Argus:—Mr. Baumgarten, the Registrar of the Supreme Court here, is about to retire on a pension, and is to be succeeded by Mr. Bradford from Penang, Mr. Harvey taking the latter's post. Colonel Anson will be back from home by February next. H.E. the Governor has applied for a further extension of his term of service in the Straits to enable him to carry out the Judicial changes which are maturing. Recent failures in Singapore tot up to $700,000, the Chetties suffering to the extent of $450,000.

Commercial Report.

(For dates see first page.)

IMPORTS.

Yokohama.—There had been a good demand for Grey Shirtings and prices showed an improvement; sales had been on a good scale, and the market at the close was firm, especially for the heavier weights. Cotton Yarn had not met with so much inquiry, and prices were scarcely so high as those last quoted. Mousselines were lower, and with the exception of Black Velvets and Lastings, which were in good demand, there had been no particular change in other Woollen fabrics. Quotations:—Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.30 to 2.35 per piece; 8¼ to 8½ lbs., $2.52½ to 2.57½; 9 lbs., $2.95 to 3. Cotton Yarn, No. 16 to 24, $40.50 to 42 per picul; Nos. 28 to 32, $47.25 to 48.25; Nos. 38 to 42, $45 to 48.

Hiogo-Osaka.—Cotton Yarn: A fair amount of business had been done, and a good demand continued for Nos. 28/32. Nos. 16/24 were saleable, but owing to heavy stocks, prices were weak. Nos. 38/42 neglected. Grey Shirtings: The market showed some weakness during part of the month, and prices declined about 2½c. per piece; they had since recovered, however, and closed firm. Taffachelas, Turkey Reds, and Velvets, in good demand; other Cottons more or less neglected. Woollens: Mousselines de Laine eagerly asked for, and settlements exceeded any previous returns; importers being well supplied, however, no advance in price had been established. Lustres: Plain and Figured in good demand; stocks small, and prices firm. Cloth: Lower qualities in good inquiry, as also were Fancy Cloths of superior qualities; the finer descriptions of Black were difficult of sale. Blankets: In demand, with no stocks. Quotations—Cotton Yarn: Nos. 16 to 24, $125 to 127 per bale; 28 to 32 $144 to 146; Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs., 38 yards 39-inch $2.30 to 2.32 per piece; 8¼ to 8½ lbs., $2.55 to 2.57; 9 lbs. 44-inch $2.85.

TIENTSIN.—There had been a slight improvement at this port, not only were the waters on the plains no higher, but the dealers had made some small profit on their late purchases of Drills, Jeans, and common 6 lbs. to 7 lbs. T-Cloths. Black Lastings and Velvets had been in some request, but Grey and White Shirtings were dull of sale, and rates unremunerative.

HANKOW.—Settling day had passed satisfactorily, but the subsequent improved demand previously looked for, had not been realised. Holders were disposed to accept lower rates for all Cotton Goods. Of Woollens: Camlets was the only fabric wanted, but this article was scarce and H.D.B., of good assortment, had been placed at Tls. 16.40 per piece, to extent of 300 pieces. Lead: L.B. was quoted Tls. 4.60 to 4.65 per picul, but business had been very slack.

SHANGHAI.—The enquiry for Plain Cottons had continued, but the result, so far, had been unimportant, and had fallen far short of the business usually passing at this season of the year. To some extent buyers had been deterred from operating—in Shirtings and T-Cloths at all events—as freely as they wished, by the quantities of goods forced upon them, and the consequent declining tendency of prices. The Woollen market had shown no signs of improvement. Grey Shirtings: 7-lb. Grey Shirtings in fair demand and scarce, 8¼-lbs. in good enquiry but easier; 7 lbs. Tls. 1.65 to 1.67; 8¼ lbs. Tls. 1.77 to 1.79 for. Mildews; and Tls. 1.78 to 1.83 for sound common to best ordinary; Dewhurst's Eagle chop, Tls. 1.88. White Shirtings: 66-reed, Tls. 2 00; 60-reed, Tls. 1.80; lowest counts, Tls. 1.50. T-Cloths: Fair sales, but anxiety to realise had caused a further fall in value. Common 6 lb. Tls. 1.13 to 1.15; Dewhurst's T. quality Tls. 1.32; Mexican qualities, Tls. 1.45 to 1.52½. A sale of 8 lbs. Dewhurst's M.T., Tls. 1.72. Drills and Jeans: Both commanded a ready market at quotations; 13½ lbs. to 15 lbs. Dutch and English Drills, Tls. 3.2 to 3.15; Jeans, Tls. 2.5 to 2.12 for English, Tls. 2.27½ for 8¼ lbs. Dutch. Fancy Cottons: Chintzes, assorted, Tls. 1.41 to 1.60; Gentian Shirtings, Tls. 2.60,; best Turkey Reds, Tls. 2.60 per piece; other articles altogether neglected. Woollens: Market dull; Camlets, Tls. 15½ to 15¾. Other goods had received no notice. Metals: Scarcely anything doing.

HONG KONG.—The demand for Raw Cotton had strengthened with the approach of cool weather, and fair sales were being made at slightly better prices. Yarns were very little inquired for, and Nos. 16/24 and 28/32 could only be placed at lower rates. In Manufactured Goods Drills only were in demand, and these were wanted at better values. In Woollens, Blankets had declined. All kinds of Iron were slow of sale. Tin Plates were $1 per box lower. Quicksilver was steady. Rice had been in some demand for shipment to Swatow, but at the close the market was quiet at former quotations.

FOOCHOW.—Sales had been effected of 1,000 pieces 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings at $2.77½; 2,500 pieces 7 lbs. T-Cloths at $2.05 to 2.65; and 400 pieces 8 lbs. T-Cloths at $3.75.

SAIGON.—Although stocks were rather moderate, sales, with the exception of 6 lbs. T-Cloth could only be effected at reduced rates. Quotations: 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, $2.62½ per piece; 7 lbs., $2.20; 6 lbs. T-Cloth, $1.70; 5 lbs., $1.42; 4½ lbs., $1.25; 4 lbs., 1.10.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—The amount of business done had about been on a par with that previously noted; settlements, chiefly of the medium grades, amounted to about 8,000 piculs, and had been made at gradually advancing prices, the market closing at fully $2 to 3 over last quotations for all except the finer grades, which remained as last stated. The quality had been fair; there was still a marked absence of common leaf, anything below medium being of very inferior quality. Supplies had been meagre, and stocks were reduced. The export had been as follows:—Per P.M.S.S. Co.'s steamer China, to New York, 199,010 lbs.; to Chicago, 42,065 lbs.; to Boston, 6,100 lbs.; to San Francisco, 109,934 lbs.; per Emulation, for New York, 500,795 lbs.; per Etta Loring, for New York, 296,761 lbs.; per Leander, for New York, 767,762 lbs.; per Emma Augusta, for San Francisco, about 200,000 lbs.; and per Ceylon, for New York, 445,000 lbs. Including these two latter cargoes and that of the outgoing steamer, the export would be nearly two million pounds in excess of that of last season at the same date. Quotations:—Common, $25 to 28 per picul; good common, $29 to 31; medium $33 to 36; good medium, $37 to 40; fine, $41 to 43; finest, $44 to 47; choice, $50 and upwards.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—A fairly active business had been transacted. Prices at the commencement of the month to within a few days of the close were easier, but owing to large purchases having been made, a hardening tendency was apparent at the close for all grades. Low grades were still scarce and dear. Settlements for the month from 15th Aug. were returned at 5,500 piculs, making a total of 26,000 piculs for the season, against 16,000 piculs for the corresponding period last year. Stocks were estimated at 5,000 piculs. The Caller Ou was loading for New York, and the Engelbert would take about 75 tons to San Francisco. The Jessie Isabel was about to sail for New York, with 293,064 lbs. Quotations:—Common, $16 to 20 per picul; good common, $21 to 25; medium, $26 to 30; good medium, $31 to 35; fine, $36 to 40; finest, $42 to 46; choice, $48 to 53; choicest, $54 and upwards.

HANKOW.—More business and a general advance of Tls. 1 per picul was reported. Settlements and reshipments for the week about 11,000 chests. Stock 3,300 packages, against about 1,400 last year. Export to date 51,000,000 lbs., against 53,000,000 lbs. last year at same time. Exchange, 6 m.s. Credit paper had advanced to 6.5½ per tael, and the rates on Shanghai had risen to 3 per cent. for sight drafts and 3½ per cent. for 10 days' paper.

SHANGHAI.—Black: The business in Congous had been unimportant, but former rates had been fairly supported by the extreme firmness of holders. Settlements for the week, 5,489 chests, at Tls. 14.50 to 30 per picul; stock, 23,120 chests. Green: No feature worthy of any special comment had presented itself; a little more had been done since exchange weakened. Attention had chiefly been turned to Moyunes, which, with a sprinkling of Fychows, formed the bulk of the settlements. Only two or three chops of Pingsuey had found buyers. The market remained quiet but firm.

FOOCHOW.—Business during the week had been on a moderate scale and there had been no alteration in prices. No transactions had taken place in Oolongs. Congou: Settlements 12,732 chests at Tls. 5 to Tls. 20½, and at Tls. 28¾ for boxes. The bulk of the transactions had been in Teas costing between Tls. 15 to Tls. 18, and the greater part was intended for the Continent. Settlements for England had been small. Arrivals, 18,750 chests. Souchongs: 1,675 chests taken at Tls. 15½ to Tls. 27. Arrivals, 700 chests. Oolongs: Owing to the continued firmness of teamen no transactions had taken place. Arrivals, 4,950 half-chests. Scented Teas: Settlements, 1,476 boxes at Tls. 17 to Tls. 20½. Arrivals, 2,000 boxes. Flowery Pekoes: Settled 86 chests at Tls 27. Arrivals, 150 chests.

AMOY.—Only about 1,000 half-chests of Ooloongs had been settled, and buyers were not operating owing to the uncertainty about the course of the exchange market. Teamen were anxious to sell, but would not make a sufficient concession to counterbalance the advance in exchange rates. The steamship Teviot had sailed for New York with about 3,000 half-chests Amoy Ooloongs; the steamship Surprise was expected, and the Anglo-Saxon was the only vessel on the berth for that destination. Arrivals of Ooloongs to date, 174,916 half-chests; settlements 158,813, and stock 16,103 half-chests.

CANTON.—There had been but little inquiry for any descriptions, and the market had continued very quiet.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—The market had continued to be fairly active, and a good business had been done, settlements amounting to about 1,800 bales, Hank sorts as usual forming the bulk. Prices for both Hanks and Oshus (with the exception of Hamatski which showed a still further decline) had advanced about $20 per picul. Quotations:—Hanks, Mybash and Sinchu, extra 32s. 6d., best 30s. 3d. to 31s. 9d., medium 28s. to 29s. 6d., inferior 24s. 6d. to 27s. 3d.; Oshu, extra 32s. 6d, best 30s. 6d. to 31s. 3d., medium 28s. 9d. to 29s. 10d., inferior 27s. 3d. to 28s.; Hamatski, medium 26s. 6d. to 27s 6d.; Coshu, best 28s. 9d., medium 24s. 3d. to 25s. 7d. Silk Worms' Eggs: Total arrivals to date about 750,000 cards, and settlements estimated at 450,000 cards; prices for green annuals quoted as follows—Best $3 to 3.75 per card, good $2.50 to 3, medium $2 to 2.50, inferior $1.75 to 2; white annuals were worth $3 to 3.90 per card.

SAANGHAI.—At the close of last mail a considerable business was done, and buying had continued, partly stimulated by a lower exchange, and about 1,700 bales had found buyers at prices varying very little from those given in our last report. Good Silk had been steady and in fair demand, while common descriptions were neglected and declining. Tsatlee: Market nearly cleared of Chop Silk, as also of good medium sorts, and in some instances contracts had been made for delivery of these latter for next mail. Hangchow: Sellers of medium at Tls. 460 to 465, but no buyers. Hainings: In consequence of the absence of demand for Raw Hainings last season, the bulk of the crop had this year been re-reeled. Export of Raw Haining little over 200 bales v 1,100 bales last year, and holders of good Silks very firm. Stock of 250 bales included 100 bales of Fatmow's chop, which were held for Tls. 520 for No. 2 Taysaam: No settlements of Kahing reported. No. 3 to 3½ Chincum bought at Tls. 400, Shaouhing at Tls. 380, and ordinary Laoyang at Tls. 345. Re-reeled: Fair Haining Tls. 560 to 570, medium offering at Tls. 540 to 550. Tsatlee still in over-supply, and prices weak.

CANTON.—Little or no change had taken place, and inactivity had prevailed. Prices were slightly easier, but no actual reduction had been made. The fifth crop, which continued to arrive, was of very poor quality—nibby but dry. The sixth crop, it was reported, will be no larger than the fifth, cold winds, which had come earlier than usual, having damaged the mulberry trees. The high rate of exchange and discouraging news from home still kept buyers out of the market, and in consequence the settlements were very small—under 50 bales; the present mail would, however, take forward some 300 bales of previous settlements. Stock, 2,000 bales Tsatlee, and with the sixth crop and remainder of the fifth at least 3,500 bales more would be offered on the market this season. Several contracts for Rereels had been entered into, but for cargo ready for shipment there was no demand; some dealers were keeping back their stocks on the strength of the inferiority of the crops to arrive.

The Messageries Maritimes Co's steamer Peiho, with the present inward French mail, arrived at Marseilles on the 12th inst. at eight A.M. She brings 68 passengers, 1,014 bales of silk, 1,912 packages tea, 309 packages copper, 1,868 bales tobacco, and 340 packages sundries for London. The cargo will be forwarded to London by the Company's steamer Copernic, and may be expected here about the 26th inst.

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.

(Before Sir J. Colvile, Sir B. Peacock, Sir M. Smith, Sir R. Collier, and Sir L. Peel.)

HART V. VON GUMPACH.

This appeal from Her Majesty's Court for China and Japan came on for hearing, and presented some remarkable features. The appellant is a British subject, and occupies an important position in the service of the Emperor of China as inspector-general of customs. The respondent is a naturalised British subject, and is an astronomer and mathematician. Both met in London in August, 1866, and it was alleged that Hart represented to Von Gumpach that he was entrusted with the formation of a college and observatory at Peking, which college was to be an institution for the teaching to the Chinese of Western sciences and learning, "with a view to the regeneration of China," and that he was to procure a library and appoint professors. In consequence of these alleged representations, Von Gumpach went to China, and his salary was to be £600 a year. He alleged that there was no such institution, and that he was willing to discharge the duties of his appointment. He alleged that Hart represented to the Tsung-li Yamen, or Foreign Board, that he had absented himself, and he received an intimation from the Chinese Government that his services were no longer required; and since the 30th September, 1868, he had been unable to obtain any salary. He brought his action against Hart in Her Majesty's Court, and claimed £3,000 as compensation besides his salary. The cause was tried before a jury, and they gave £1,800 as damages and 176 taels for money payable to Von Gumpach. There had been a demurrer and further litigation, and one point urged for the present appellant was that these were privileged communications from him as to the office he held under the Chinese Government. The Court, after further litigation, decided in favour of the plaintiff (the present respondent), and the defendant (the present appellant) had obtained special leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council. He denied the alleged misrepresentations, and stated that the Court at Peking had found in his favour as to the representations, and gave damages to Von Gumpach for the loss of his situation, and for money due on account stated. He appealed on several grounds—that the verdict was against evidence, on misdirection, and on the privileged communications.

Sir John Karslake, Q.C., with whom was Mr. F. Herschell (instructed by Messrs. Murray and Hutchins), appeared for the appellant; Mr. Benjamin, Q.C., and Mr. Myburgh (instructed by Messrs. Brooks and Co., of Doctors'-commons) were for the respondent, the plaintiff in the original action.

Mr. Benjamin discussed the several points. He urged that the appellant was liable to the respondent for the wrongs he had committed against him. The Chinese Government had not adopted the acts of the appellant as their servant, and therefore it was no Act of State. It was idle for the appellant to say that what he did was by order of the Chinese Government, and that, therefore, he was not amenable to the laws in Her Majesty's Court for China and Japan. He cited various authorities in support of his contentions that unless a Government adopted the acts of their servant, the servant was liable, and could not shield himself under the authority of an Act of State and justify the wrong he had committed. Further, the learned counsel submitted that Her Majesty's Treaty with the Emperor of China gave all British subjects a right to resort to the Supreme Court for redress; and it was no answer for the appellant (the original defendant) to say what he had done was as servant of the Emperor when malice was alleged against him. The question of privilege would not go to such an extent as to shield a man from false representations, and none of the cases cited would support the points raised by the other side. Mr. Myburgh followed on the same side.

Sir John Karslake, in reply, cited several cases in support of the view he had submitted—namely, that the original action could not be maintained, and that the demurrer ought to have been allowed. It was not an action between two British subjects, as was contemplated by the Treaty, but an action against a Minister of China for an act done as such Minister. Both parties had been in the service of the Emperor, and the reports made by Mr. Hart were privileged communications, and it was not by merely alleging malice that the protection extended to such documents was to be removed. The matter was of importance, and he asked their Lordships to allow the appeal.

Sir Montagu Smith, on the conclusion of the arguments, announced that their Lordships would take time to consider their judgment.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

IONIDES V. PENDER.

This was a case (tried last term) of some mercantile importance as to marine insurance, especially with reference to over-insurance. It was an action on several policies of insurance, on goods, on profits, on charterparty, and of commission, amounting altogether to some thousands of pounds. The defence set up was that there had been enormous over-insurance, and that the ship was not lost by perils of the seas, but had in reality been scuttled. The policies were effected by a firm at Hamburg, who had chartered and loaded the ship for a commercial adventure to a port in Siberia. On the voyage the vessel suddenly went down in fair weather without any visible or apparent cause. The trial at Guildhall before Mr. Justice Hannen lasted several days, and a great deal of evidence was given on both sides. At the close of the trial the Judge put several questions to the jury, which they answered thus:—"Were the goods loaded?—Yes. Were the valuations excessive?—Yes. If they were so, were they made fraudulently?—There is not sufficient evidence to show. Whether fraudulent or not, was it material to the underwriters to know that the valuations were excessive?—Yes. Was it concealed?—Yes. Was the vessel lost by perils of the seas?—No. Was the vessel cast away?—As to this we think the evidence was not sufficient." The learned Judge pressed them to say how the vessel came to be lost, but this they declined to state. The verdict was thereupon entered for the defendants, the underwriters, and several other actions pending against other insurers were postponed to await the result of this.

This week an application was made to set aside the verdict, on the ground mainly that the fact that the valuations were excessive was not material so that the concealment of it would vitiate the policies. After hearing arguments on both sides the Court reserved decision.

EXTRACTS FROM MEDHURST'S "FOREIGNER IN FAR CATHAY."

I have dwelt thus much upon the characteristics of the servants employed by foreigners, not only to show how they fare in this particular, but because these servants are the only natives with whom the foreign merchant comes more immediately into contact. The opinion prevalent at home that foreigners mingle in Chinese society generally is altogether a mistaken one. The conventional rules of the Chinese are so constituted, and their habits of thought and customs so peculiar, that there is little or no encouragement to court acquaintance on either part, even were the entire ignorance of each other's language not to present a serious bar in the way of an interchange of ideas. There is a class of Chinese brokers and middle-men who haunt the offices of the merchants, but they are mostly shrewd, clever upstarts, whom the difficulties of interlingual communication have introduced into the trade, and, with rare exceptions, they lay no claim to respectability even with the Chinese themselves. The language employed between these brokers and the merchants is a jargon made up of English, Portuguese, Chinese, and Malay words, tortured into unrecognisable shapes and constructions, and it is little fitted to sustain any conversation beyond what appertains to the mere technicalities of trade. I have frequently expressed to our merchants the opinion that it is a pity they do not take the trouble to learn the Chinese language. It is an acquirement in the spoken form to an extent sufficient for all practical purposes; offers no difficulties that an average intellect and a moderate share of determination cannot surmount, and familiarity with it would have the effect of freeing the foreigner from the domination of roguish brokers and compradores, at whose mercy he now lies, whilst it would open the way to a more extended acquaintance and friendly intercourse to the mutual advantage of both parties. There is perhaps no country in the world frequented by the English-speaking race in which merchants are so lamentably ignorant of the customs and resources of the locality in which they live as they are at this moment in China, and this is entirely to be attributed to a want of familiarity with the language.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

The Suez Canal Company will continue to insist upon its recent advance of tolls, and declares that it will appeal to the decision of the Government. The Ottoman Porte has protested, by order of the Sultan, against the competency of the Tribunal de Commerce de la Seine to interpret the Act of Concession of the Canal—a power which belongs to itself alone. The Turkish Government also maintains that, the company being an Egyptian association, subject to the Ottoman jurisdiction, and having its head-quarters at Alexandria, cannot admit a foreign jurisdiction in respect to its differences with third parties. There is some idea of inviting the Maritime Powers to hold a conference at Constantinople, in order to agree upon a uniform system for the measurement of tonnage.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, Nov. 12.

The sharp and somewhat bitter remarks made by certain organs of the press in England respecting the award of the Emperor of Germany in his capacity of Arbitrator in the Anglo-American dispute about the San Juan question have found a responsive echo at Berlin; and if these counter remarks have not been translated and reprinted in the English papers, it is perhaps owing to the editors remaining reticent, not to aggravate and increase the ill-feeling between the two countries. One of your contemporaries says that the award is "remarkable for being written in the German language, instead of the customary diplomatic French;" to which the Germans reply that this is an exploded idea, quite out of date; that the despatches of the German Government—even to France—are written in German, and it is only at conferences and congresses, in which the representatives of several nations take part, that French is now used, as a language common to all; and finally, they retort that the English set the example of breaking through the custom in use for many years, and writing their despatches in English, and that being the case, there is no reason why the Germans should not reciprocate, and write in their native language. It was by a circular from the late Lord Palmerston, when at the head of the Foreign-office, to all the British diplomatic representatives abroad, that they were directed only to communicate in writing with the Government with whom they were accredited in English. It was no doubt a public testimony of their incompetency to write correct French, and caused much inconvenience and delay. During my residence at Athens I was frequently applied to by the Minister for Foreign Affairs to translate for him—of course privately and confidentially—diplomatic communications in English that he had received from Sir Edmund Lyons, at that time the British Ambassador in Greece. The whole dispute might have been easily prevented had the English and American plenipotentiaries taken the precaution, when drawing up the Treaty, to append to it a map on which the exact line of demarcation should have been drawn, thus containing an authentic interpretation of the intention of the two Governments with regard to the frontier.

After what I wrote in my last letter of the negotiations between the commissioners of the two legislative bodies of this city having been broken off because they could not come to an agreement on the vexed question of the Bank Valuta, your readers will no doubt be greatly surprised to hear that, after all, the affair has been finally set at rest and disposed of by a compromise, both sides having given way to a certain extent. The draft of the Bill sent by the Senate to the Burgerschaft, but rejected by them, served as a sufficient basis for a rapprochement, and as both parties were agreed in principle, and only differed on certain, though important, points, the door was again opened for discussion. An abstract of the amended Bill as now agreed to is as follows:—

Law for the Alteration of the Hamburg Bank Valuta.

Art. 1. Closing of the Accounts based on Silver Bars.—The date is fixed for the 15th Feb., 1873, the Burgerschaft originally wishing it to take place within eight days, and the Senate inclined to keep them open for six months longer. After the above date the balances of accounts can only be repaid in silver bars.

Art. 2. Opening of Accounts in the new Imperial Currency.—Within eight days from the promulgation of the law accounts will be opened in marks, German currency, based and funded on the new gold coinage, and—as long as they remain a legal tender—on German double and single silver thalers.

Art. 3. Denomination of Payments in the New Currency made through the Bank.—In all agreements and contracts where payment is stipulated to be made through the Bank, it is required to write after the amount the letters B.Z., which stands for Bank Zahlung, or Bank payment.

Art. 4. Belehnungen (or advances on deposits).—After the close of the silver accounts the Bank is authorised to receive as deposits the foreign coin hitherto accepted, as well as gold and silver bars, and credit the depositors for the amount in the new currency, according to the regulations drawn up by the administrators of the Bank and having been approved of by the Senate.

Art. 5. Deferred fulfilment of obligations to pay in Banco.—After the closing of the silver accounts, all still outstanding engagements in Hamburg banco or in species banco, whatever may be the period of their origin and the nature of the claim, must be settled by Bank payment in Imperial gold coin, or in double or single silver thalers of German mintage, at the fixed rate of 150 marks new currency for 100 marks banco, with an agio of 1⅛ per mille for species banco. Bills of exchange falling due on the 15th of February, but not presented for payment till after that date, are to be calculated at the officially quoted price of silver on the day of their maturity.

Art. 6. Transitory Regulations.—During the period of transition, viz., from the date of the opening of the accounts in the new Imperial currency till the 15th of May, 1873, creditors of the Bank may have the amount of their balance in Banco transferred, partly or entirely, to their account in the new currency at the fixed rate of 145 marks Imperial currency for 100 marks Banco, as such transfers are to be considered as Belehnungen, or advances on deposits. The sum thus transferred may, at any time during the period of transition, be re-transferred to the silver account of the owner; but all such re-transfers must be made before the expiration of the period of transition, in default of which the Bank is authorised to realise the silver for account of the proprietor. During the period of transition only those who have paid in gold coin or silver thalers are at liberty to withdraw their balances in the same money. During the period of transition no charge will be made by the Bank on Imperial gold coin or silver thalers paid in or taken out.

The publication of this new law will take place in the course of this week, and the date to be fixed for the opening of the accounts in the new Imperial German currency is expected to be the 15th inst. But this arrangement has no effect on cash payments made in Hamburg and Lubeck currency, which retain their value as hitherto, till a sufficiency of the new money is coined, which, as the minting operations proceed but slowly, may be deferred for two or three years longer. It will be seen by the above that the Bergerschaft have abandoned one of the principal points on which they were at issue with the Senate, and that is that the loss sustained by the conversion of Banco into new currency,—the agio on silver being at present rather more than one per cent. above par, should be borne by the State. As it now stands everyone who has Banco will only get 150 marks new currency for every 100 marks Banco, and must bear the loss himself.

The emigration from this port and Bremen is assuming such vast proportions that the Governments are beginning to entertain serious apprehensions that the country will become depopulated. In order to check this rush, which is almost exclusively directed to the United States, the railway companies have received instructions to discontinue, from December 1, the facilities hitherto granted to emigrants, of a reduction in the fares—amounting in some instances to 50 per cent.—and double allowance of luggage (100 lb. per head). The number of emigrants that passed through this city to the end of October, 1871, is officially stated to be 37,324 persons, whilst at the same period this year it has risen to 65,151, and before the end of the year will no doubt have reached 80,000.

Dr. Hilgendorf, a native of this city, and formerly director of the Hamburg Zoological Gardens, and now professor at the Royal Polytechnicum at Dresden, has received a call to go to Japan to prepare young natives for their subsequent studies of medicine at German universities. A considerable number of Japanese are now studying at Berlin, Leipzig, and Heidelberg.

LONDON: MONDAY, NOV. 18, 1872.

THE CASE OF THE "DOLPHIN" AT BANGKOK.

THE Government of the United States and its representatives have generally been so conciliatory and moderate in their intercourse with the nations with which we have relations in the Far East, that it is with no less surprise than regret that we observe the singular deviation from this principle in the case of the Dolphin. This vessel, an American schooner, commanded by Captain T. S. ANDREWS, was detained by the Siamese Government in consequence of the non-payment of the firewood-tax, on entering the Patlak Creek. After a careful perusal of the case, as reported in the Siam Advertiser, we are unable to come to any other conclusion than that the commander of the Dolphin wilfully disregarded the signals of the native tax-collector to stop. In his evidence Captain ANDREWS says that he "could not "have stopped her because of her headway and the strength "of the tide"—a statement which contrasts strangely with the fact that the Siamese (only five or six in number) boarded her, and did actually stop her, and anchor her there and then. No sort of violence seems to have been used on either side. Even Captain ANDREWS, who represents himself as being so very much aggrieved by the "seizure" of his ship, and who went on shore at once, "intending to go to the United States Consul," did not carry out that reasonable intention, but stopped at a rice mill, from which he returned on board his own ship with two gentlemen and a lady! Thus reinforced, Captain ANDREWS—this is his own statement—secured the officer who had boarded his vessel, and then went to his house and asked for his wife, who was, fortunately for her, from home. This, as we have mentioned, is Captain ANDREWS'S own statement. The charge against him, we should also state, was that he attempted to seize and carry off the officer, his wife, and children. That he had recaptured his ship, which was seized for firewood-tax, was another and separate charge. It is also matter of dispute whether the United States flag was flying on the schooner at the time she was summoned, and stopped. It is however clear that no serious inconvenience was caused to anybody—though it is not explained why the wood-tax was not accounted for—and we are therefore greatly surprised to find that the United States Government should have despatched the corvette Iroquios to Siam for "an explanation." Of course we all know what this means—and the Siamese Government, under pressure of this very convincing reason for giving way, tried the case, and condemned themselves, or their officials, to pay $100 to Captain ANDREWS—who, we may presume, congratulates himself on a small triumph. Such, however, we think our readers will agree with us, is not the right way to open up, or to keep open, relations with new and strange, but friendly countries. The whole story savours of overbearingness and menace. The American captain does not even allege that he offered any explanation on the perfectly legitimate demand being made for the wood-tax. Still less does he offer to explain why he and his friends, going to the tax-man's house, should have asked for his wife and family. Miss WRIGHT, the lady who joined the party after the seizure, was not even called in evidence. It was clear that the $100 was paid, or rather surrendered, under fear of the American corvette—and perhaps few hundreds of dollars have been acquired at so grea a cost of ill-feeling. The whole proceeding is a libel on the intelligence of the age. It is totally opposed to the principles of our own Government. Our readers will not have forgotten the censure which Mr. ALABASTER brought upon himself, when our Acting Consul, for bringing up a ship of war to enforce some claim. Gunboats are no doubt an excellent argument in a just cause, when all other arguments have failed—and not till then, but we must not treat the Siamese Government as uncivilised and amenable only to the logic of big guns.

CEYLON AND ITS COFFEE.

IT is a remarkable circumstance how frequently those most accustomed to the commerce of a country are apt to be deceived, and to deceive themselves as to the probable outturn of the year's operations—the more especially if the commerce in question be the result of agricultural enterprise. This, we presume, is not more the case as regards Ceylon than other countries. But as it is the Cinnamon Isle, as it was formerly called,—it should be the Coffee Isle now—with which we have at present to deal, a few words on the fallacies which generally prevail till the season closes will not be out of place. The coffee crop of the past season was very deficient; like every other growing crop this one depends much on the weather, first at the blossoming and afterwards during the filling of the bean. A very good blossom may blow and set, exciting high hopes of a splendid crop, and yet too much wet immediately after setting may perish it, while too much drought may do the same. Again, when the berry is filling, chiefly from June to August, a long drought may prevent the filling, and thereby greatly diminish the crop. A cursory observer, passing through a coffee district during the flowering time, seeing every plantation white with its jessamine blossoms, retires possessed with the impression that there are to be magnificent crops. This idea he hugs and believes because, as he thinks, he has seen the crop on the trees. Sad delusion! It must not only be fairly set, but the bean well filled, before a blossom can ever be reckoned on as safe. Now both the drawbacks above named—a loss of blossom from unseasonable weather in the spring, and a loss of crop from the failure of the monsoon rains in their season—have fallen to the lot of the Ceylon coffee planter this year, and of course he cannot help crying out. But will any one believe him? No. The Colombo merchant first, and the London merchant afterwards, rebut the assertion, and think he is only crying "wolf" to suit his own purpose, and to force the market up—and they employ all their influence as a counter lever to press the market down. No doubt there is a difficulty in arriving at a certain estimate of the crop of a country like Ceylon, where interests are so divided, dispersed, and detached; where also a considerable quantity of crop is raised by natives, some of whom keep no accounts, while others decline to supply the necessary information. Still, when it is seen that not one or two plantations, but those of a whole district, or a whole country, have suffered from the causes named, a little more confidence might, nay, ought to be extended by the buyer to the seller. If crops have been short, the grower naturally looks for a better price, as some compensation for his deficient outturn, and he generally gets it Sometimes, however, at this season, willing buyers have held back, or hampered their orders with conditions that made buying impossible, leaving the field open to others not so trammelled.

It has been well known for several months that crops in Ceylon were to be very short, although how short it was not so easy to say. Some expected that the total outturn would not exceed 500,000 cwt., while others believed it would at least be 800,000 cwt. The highest of these, however, would have been still 200,000 cwt. below the average of the past five years, or just 20 per cent. But all were agreed that they would be short. Still it appears not to have been believed in London—for reports continued to come out to Ceylon, "Large shipments from Brazil," "Fall in Continental markets," "Reduce limits," "Price down 2s. to 3s.," &c., &c. Now this seems to be a species of short sighted suicidal policy which always defeats its own end. The season is finished now, and no doubt a good many fingers are itching for the profits that could have been made had they gone in boldly and bought at the market figures a few months ago. So far back as August last, while the London market was being borne down, we warned buyers that the crop would soon close; and that we doubted then if it would exceed 750,000 cwt. The commercial season ended on 30th September, and the total export did not exceed 758,000 cwt.! This is very nearly a quarter of a million hundredweights under the average production. Other coffee-producing countries were also proportionally short, as the following figures show:—

Java deficiency	800,000
Ceylon deficiency	250,000
	Cwt. 2,050,000

This is without reckoning India, which was also short. It is also irrespective of the West Indian colonies, which are likely to have suffered from the same influences as those that affected Brazil. This is a lamentable deficiency, and the fact is deplorable as regards those who must be the chief sufferers—the growers of the article. It is a fact, nevertheless, which must be looked in the face, and should be kept steadily in view by those who contemplate investing either in the produce in question, or in the description of property that yields it. The removal of the duty in America, too, ought to advantage the grower and the exporter; for, although the abolition of that duty extends only to coffee imported in American bottoms, still America must have a certain quantity of coffee; and even if she import this quantity all from Brazil, and does not take an ounce of Ceylon coffee from Europe, whatever quantity she so receives, relieves the European market to that extent.

We understand that the appointment of Mr. Albert Coates, a partner in the firm of Messrs. Ker and Co., as acting Consul at Manila, during the absence of Mr. Rickett, has been approved by the Foreign-office. The Consulate at Saigon is still represented by Mr. Hauschild, a partner in Messrs. W. G. Hale and Co., and no appointment for a fixed paid Consul can be made, until the cost has been passed in the next estimates.

As the non-receipt at Brindisi of letters from England, often causes annoyance to passengers proceeding to the East by the Italian route, we think it well to notify that, although the India and China mail does not leave London until Friday evening, letters intended to catch passengers at Brindisi should be posted for the Wednesday evening mail.

The Japanese Ambassadors with their suite, accompanied by General Alexander, Sir Harry Parkes, and Mr. Aston, returned to London on the 9th, too late, however, for the banquet at Guildhall, to which they had been invited. They will take their leave of Her Majesty next week, and leave for Paris, making a tour through France, and thence proceed to Germany and Russia.

The report in China that the steamers of the Messageries Company were likely to call at Naples, on their way to Marseilles is incorrect; the statement that the steamers of this company and of the P. and O. Company would call at Nagasaki is also incorrect. The Time-tables for 1873 will shortly be issued.

Admiral Dupre, Governor of Cochin China, who, as stated in our last issue, has left France on his return to Saigon, is the bearer of a letter from M. Thiers to the King of Siam, in reply to the congratulations of the latter to the President of the Republic.

Viscount Brenier de Montmorand, formerly Consul-General for France at Shanghai, has been appointed Minister Plenipotentiary to Chili.

THE COOLIE TRADE.

The Secretary of the West India Committee has addressed a letter to The Times, in which he says:—

The stoppage of Chinese immigration in 1866 requires a word of explanation. It occurred, not because the Chinese Government withdrew its permission, or was dissatisfied with the treatment of the immigrants, but because it was induced to impose certain provisions which would have greatly increased the expense of the immigration. Of course in acting thus the Chinese authorities were influenced by the emigration from the Portuguese settlement of Macao to Cuba and Peru]

It need hardly be said that the British Colonies have never received any immigrants from Macao, but always obtained them, under proper restrictions, from Hong Kong or the Treaty ports. The Macao traffic, however, raised a strong feeling against all emigration from China, and although the competition of a perfectly honest and well-conducted system like that to the British Colonies promised to be one of the best correctives of the evils complained of, it had to be abandoned, while the Macao traffic is still vigorously carried on.

The following fact illustrates the working of the immigration. On the 4th of September last the steamship Enmore left British Guiana, with over 600 immigrants (including children) on board, returning to their native country, India or China. They carried with them property in cash and jewellery, which, divided among the adults, shows an average of more than £50 sterling per head.

Now these people came to the colony as indentured immigrants, and were employed in agricultural labour. When their first contracts ran out, they either re-engaged or employed themselves in other ways by which they could make money. At the end of ten years the Indian coolies became entitled to a free return passage, and they went back, not destitute and miserable, as when they found themselves on board ship bound for the colony, but independent and manly in their bearing, and possessed of an amount of wealth that the English agricultural labourer rarely obtains after a whole lifetime of painful toil.

I would add, in conclusion, the more the question is investigated, and the real facts known, the greater will the advantages of the immigration appear, and the less feeling exist against the system of free labour in the British West Indies.

The British Consul at Havana writing on the subject says:—

Chinese labour has not been altogether a success in Cuba. On some small sugar estates, and among the tobacco-fields, the Chinese coolie does well enough; but he cannot work so hard as the negro, nor indeed as the Indian coolie used to work on Jamaica estates. Most of the Chinese brought to Cuba are of the lowest and feeblest type of inferior South Chinese coolies, such as swarm about Macao, Batavia, and Singapore, &c., and they are rarely of sinewy frame, nor much physical strength; nor have they the endurance of the Indian coolie.

Chinese immigration, as is it is carried on here, is so faulty that it can never lead to a successful colonisation of Cuba. The mistaken policy of the Government, as exhibited in the treatment of these colonists, must end in their refusal to come here. The condition of obligatory and continuous servitude to which they are now subjected, if they desire to remain in Cuba, after the completion of their primitive contract, is tantamount to slavery; and it is contrary to common sense to suppose that free men will voluntarily submit to it. The Chinese emigrant, therefore, to be induced to come here, must either do so in a fit of desperation, or he must be imposed upon; and a traffic which is based upon deceit, and which subjects him to life-long drudgery under the worst of systems, can scarcely be designated by any other name than that of Slave Trade.

It cannot be denied that proper regulations, which will prevent vagrancy, and which will organise labour, are absolutely necessary in Cuba, where there are labourers of distinct races and conditions; but these regulations should all have a decided tendency towards preparing these classes for speedy and complete emancipation. The law of 28th June, 1870, does not hasten the freedom of the slaves in this island. It virtually postpones emancipation for twenty-two years, and, in the meantime, it closes the door to any feasible arrangement for the introduction of free labourers. The Chinese under contract here on the plantations are, with, perhaps, a very few exceptions, treated pretty much as slaves, and with the compulsory engagements now before them, or the sorry alternative of seeking a home elsewhere, there can be no inducement for them to come here. If they are treated in such a manner, other colonists must expect the same, and thus, at the very moment when everything should be done by the Spanish Government to further free emigration to Cuba, it would appear as if no means were left untried to render such emigration unpalatable and repulsive.

By the mail just received from the West Indies we have the account of another departure from Demerara of time-expired coolies. The Rohilla, of London, was embarking for Calcutta:—East Indians, 257 men, 79 women, 31 boys 23 girls, 16 infants—total 406; Chinese, 21 men, 22 women, 6 boys, 6 girls, 3 infants—total 58; grand total, 464. The money deposited by the coolies in the Immigration Office for transmission to Calcutta amounted to $47,642.64. Besides this there was the usual quantity of personal jewellery, amounting in value to a considerable sum.

SIAM.

The Committee of the Diplomatic and Consular Enquiry had before them for examination Mr. Henry Alabaster, who served for many years in the Consulate at Bangkok as Interpreter, Vice-Consul, and for a short time as Acting Consul, and in the latter capacity he so displeased the Foreign Office in his conduct towards the Siamese that he is now practically discharged from the service.

In his evidence he states that the Staff at Bangkok is unnecessarily large, that a Consul, a Vice-Consul, at from £500 rising to £800, and one Assistant, at £250 rising to £400, would be a sufficient staff without Student Interpreters. That a medical officer was not now necessary, although very essential in the early days of the Consulate. Sir Charles Dilke, one of the Committee, asked:—

Is not a great deal of the work in Siam caused by the doctrine of extra-territorial jurisdiction applying to the inhabitants of British Burmah?—Yes, and to British India; I would not separate British Burmah exclusively.

There is a difficulty in following criminals from British Burmah, is there not, to Siam; do not cases occasionally occur of the escape of criminals into Siam?—I have not heard of any particular case of that sort.

Do you think that work of that kind could be decreased; it has been stated here that there has been a somewhat extravagant interpretation of this doctrine in the case of the inhabitants of British Burmah?—Well, it would be a very great comfort if the work of looking after these men could be taken away from the consul altogether, because it is a terrible responsibility having to give an opinion about cases which happen hundreds of miles away from you, and of which you cannot get any very satisfactory evidence. I do not see how we are to avoid doing it with our Treaty.

The officers of the consulate are occasionally sent great distances up country, are they not, in these cases?—No, they were not in my time; I have never known of an officer being sent beyond 60 miles about a case.

But the labour involved in these cases to the consulate is very considerable?—Very considerable, and the anxiety still greater.

Do you know whether it was the custom of other Powers for their consuls to act as agents there?—In some cases the consuls were merchant consuls, trading consuls, and in that case they might of course be agents for anything; the Lloyd's agent in Siam was a merchant.

Viscount ENFIELD: Is the cost of living in Siam very great?—It is great as compared with England, because there are certain luxuries which a man must have in a climate of that sort; I mean to say that whereas a young man in England can live very well for £150, out in Siam it is impossible for a student interpreter to live decently on the pay that is given to him.

JAVA.

MR. HARPER in his evidence before the Committee said that H.M. Consuls often acted as agent for LLOYD'S, and that the commissions paid on wrecks were at times valuable, he might instance the case £3,000 paid on one ship at Batavia.

CHINA SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH COMPANY (LIMITED).

The second ordinary general meeting of the shareholders was held on the 13th inst.; Mr. JOHN PENDER, M.P., in the chair. The SECRETARY (Mr. T. Fuller) read the notice convening the meeting, and the minutes of the last meeting, which were then confirmed; the report of the directors, given in our last issue, was taken as read.

The CHAIRMAN stated that since the opening of their line it had worked in every way satisfactorily; there had been one or two interruptions, but of a slight character. In regard to one which occurred at Saigon in shallow water, they had the satisfaction to find, in repairing the cable, that it was as perfect as on the day it had been laid down. It was also a matter for congratulation to perceive that, even taking into account the low rate of charges that had ruled for a considerable period of the company's operations, the result had been about as good as that attained by any submarine line during the first year of its working. It was proposed to pay the shareholders a dividend of 8 per cent. for the whole year. In addressing shareholders of Submarine Telegraph Companies, he had, on former occasions, expressed rather sanguine opinions as to the amount of progress that existed in such undertakings. He had never subsequently changed that opinion, and he considered the results attained by telegraphy generally not only fully bore out such a view, but gave promise of much prosperity in the future. It would doubtless be in the recollection of many gentlemen present that, at the time of the formation of that company, it had been proposed to lay a cable to Shanghai and Japan; but, owing to the state of the money market, it had been subsequently determined to carry out, in the first place, the first section of their line—namely, to Hong Kong—and afterwards to go on to Shanghai. The Great Northern Telegraph Company had, however, laid a cable between these two points.

The directors entered into arrangements with the Great Northern, by which that company was to receive interest at 5 per cent. on the capital, and the cable to be repaired by them; that all above that sum was to be equally divided; and, although the traffic had been interrupted, the amount received last year from that source was £4,752. He thought that at some future time it would be necessary to call on the shareholders to find the money to lay another cable in conjunction with the Great Northern, as the present cable seemed to be not quite so good as that company had expected it to be. He also believed that an alternate line was necessary to give the public all the accommodation they required, and at the same time to secure themselves a fair return. This company had put up its tariff to £6, whilst the Great Northern Company were working at £4 10s., but he found that they were getting as full a share of the traffic, as those who went to the expense of telegraphing sent their messages by both routes. They were, however, now negotiating with the Great Northern Company, and he trusted that that company would soon put up their tariff to the same as that of this company. He was most anxious to have cheap tariffs, but they could only have cheap tariffs when the cable was fully employed, and they could not work at a lower rate and give their shareholders a profit; and he considered that the shareholders should be looked to first and the public afterwards. He thought the line possessed all the elements of prosperity, and trusted it would be as satisfactory as the promises of the future looked to the directors. He then moved the adoption of the report and the declaration of a dividend of 4s. per share making 8 per cent. for the year. Colonel GLOVER briefly seconded the motion.

Mr. FORDE, a shareholder, said he regretted that the Board had any idea of laying a cable between Hong Kong and Shanghai in conjunction with the Great Northern Company. Such a step would be much in the interests of that company, but against their own. He must very earnestly urge on the directors the policy of amalgamating with the other companies; a low tariff was only to be obtained by amalgamation. The working expenses of this company—£16,000 on earnings of £65,000—were enormous, and the salaries paid were too high.

Mr. HOLMES agreed with Mr. Forde as to the Shanghai line, and he considered the £1,868 for the Agnes repairing ship was excessive, and a contract should be made for the repairs.

The CHAIRMAN, in reply to these remarks, said that the laying of the cable to Shanghai was merely foreshadowed, but if done, it must be in conjunction with the Great Northern in good faith, according to the bargain made. The policy of amalgamation was quite approved by the Board; but these things required time, and could not be carried out so speedily as Mr. Forde seemed to think. With regard to the expenses, he read a statement of salaries, &c., at each port, and explained that the expenses of living were so high at the stations that the salaries of proper officers must be in proportion. The expense for repairs and maintaining cable would be reduced. The directors had no objection to half-yearly meetings. The report was then put and carried, as also the re-election of the Baron d'Erlangen as a director, and two auditors. The proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman and directors.

THE JAPANESE AT MESSRS. ALLAN, RANSOME AND CO.'S.

Yesterday the Minister for Agriculture, with members of his suite, together with American and English employers of labour, visited the works of Messrs. Allan, Ransome, and Co., in King's-road, Chelsea, to view some newly-invented labour-saving machinery of remarkable construction and power. The strikes of workmen in the building trades, the increased cost of production in the carpentry and joinery branches of those trades, and the difficulties caused to employers by the restrictions of Trades Unions, have each had their share in directing the attention of engineers to find the means of meeting the pressure caused by the contracted amount of available skilled labour; and the machines exhibited yesterday were in every way so perfect that it is not easy to see how hand labour will hold its own. The first machine inspected was a portable saw frame. Any one who has seen the old saw-pits, where the "top sawyer" and the "bottom sawyer" laboured from morning to night and day after day in cutting a log into planks, would be greatly astonished to see this comparatively small machine, attended only by one man, cut up the body of a large oak into fourteen planks at once, it having twelve saws, which cut through the whole bulk of wet wood in something less than half an hour. A mortising machine, the invention of Mr. Richards, of Philadelphia, was set to work, and accurately and cleanly cut in a few moments mortises which would have taken a workman hours. A moulding machine, for cutting mouldings, did in a minute thirty-five feet of work, which would have taken a skilled workman many hours, and this work could apparently be done by a boy. In what was called a "general joining machine" there was apparently no limit to the work to be done, the one machine cutting mortises, shaping blocks, planking, carving out banisters, and turning in a few minutes a plain block of wood into a perfectly carved piece of work. Another machine, exceedingly small and unpretentious, was shown to be capable of planing any sort of work, oval or flat, and at the same time a revolving chisel cut mortises with celerity and accuracy. A very fine piece of machinery is one which cuts raised or recessed panels, in other words, which can cut the sunk or raised ornamental work in wood now so highly prized and so dearly paid for, as the best and most skilled work. By another machine, an American invention, but improved by the Messrs. Ransome, a door can be finished—that is, cleanly sand-papered on both sides—in three minutes. The planing and trying-up of work, or what would be properly called the "trueing"-up, by which is meant the nice work of making blocks of wood exactly like one another, in order to be put together "true," work which is done with an infinite deal of hand labour, is, by one of Ransome's machines, done at once and perfectly in a few minutes, all the blocks, of whatever size, being placed together and turned out as like as peas, and mathematically correct in every respect. A band saw machine, by which both fine and rough work was cut in all sorts of shapes, and a saw cutting machine, with F. Ransome's patent stone, were among the other works shown. With one or two of these machines an employer with a man and a boy as staff, could turn out as much work as twenty or thirty men, and never be troubled about the nine hours, eight hours, or any other movement. The remarkable fact about these machines is that they are not limited to the pattern, shape, or character of wood, for the knives are changed in a few minutes, and whatever the class of work required, it can be done at once. The inspection lasted for several hours, and all the visitors expressed themselves delighted with these new machines, some of which are to go to the Vienna Exhibition.

NAVAL AND MILITARY.

The screw steamer Scotland, Captain James, sailed from Queenstown on the 12th inst. for Singapore and Hong Kong, via the Suez Canal. The following are the details of the officers and men who proceed in the Scotland to strengthen the garrisons in the Straits Settlements and Hong Kong:—To Singapore, Captain Battye, Lieutenant Armstrong, and 79 men of the 10th regiment and 10 men of the Royal Artillery. To Hong Kong, Captain Stone, with 294 men and 19 women and children of the 80th Regiment; an armourer sergeant, a sergeant, and 10 men of the Royal Artillery; and 3 men of the Royal Engineers. Major Watson, of the Ceylon Rifle Regiment, Captain Hewson, 73rd Foot, and Lieutenant Chevers, of the 73rd Foot, proceed to Hong Kong on duty with the draft of the 80th Regiment, and will afterwards return to Ceylon. The medical officer in charge of the troops is staff surgeon O'Halloran, who will, after their arrival at their respective stations, proceed to Penang. We have already reported the change which is to be made in the regiments serving at the Straits and at Hong Kong by removing the 10th from Hong Kong to Singapore and the 80th from Singapore to Hong Kong.

The Mosquito, composite gunboat, 400 tons, and 360-horse power, which was commissioned at Devonport on the 30th ult., for service on the China station, by Lieutenant-Commander William Henry Bond, was moved into Plymouth Sound on the 9th inst., has made the customary trial of her engines, and has embarked her supply of ammunition preparatory to sailing. The following are the names of the officers who have been appointed to the Mosquito:—

Commander Lieut. W. H. Bond; Navigating Sub-Lieutenant William H. P. Buckner; Surgeon, Assistant-Surgeon John A. Robertson, M.B.; Engineers, John Rice, Henry G. Bourke; Assistant-Engineer, William H. C. Gale.

Lieutenant-Colonel Joseph H. F. H. Hudson, Grenadier Guards, is to be confirmed in his appointment of military secretary to General Henry Renny, in command of the forces in Ceylon, which we recorded some weeks since.

Monetary and Commercial.

The suspension of Messrs. Bowles Bros. and Co., noticed in our last issue, has caused the stoppage of the "Joint National Agency," a company formed for general financial and agency purposes in connection with the Japanese now in Europe, amongst whom we are sorry to say are the agents of the Japanese Government, who have lodged Government funds in the hands of the Company. Judging from the following circular, it seems that the company is utterly crushed, and will be dissolved. It will serve as a lesson to the Japanese Government to put their funds with bankers of known standing and responsibility:—

446, Strand, London, 9th November, 1872.

SIR.—With the greatest regret, and by order of the Board of Directors, I have to inform you that in consequence of the sudden and unexpected suspension of payment of one of the bankers of this company, the firm of Messrs. Bowles Brothers and Co., this company has also found it necessary to suspend payment.

In order at once to secure the assets of the company its immediate winding up has been determined upon, and with this view an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders will be held here at two o'clock in the afternoon, on Tuesday week, the 19th inst., when a resolution will be submitted to the effect that it has been proved to the satisfaction of the company that it cannot, by reason of its liabilities, continue its business, and that it is advisable to wind up the same.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
WALTER H. FRITH, Secretary.

Following closely on the failure of Joshua, of Singapore, we have telegrams announcing the stoppage of Chang 'Tee, Watseng and Co., and Ahsoon and Co., both Chinese firms of importance in in the Straits and Saigon trade, with heavy liabilities to European firms. The mail also brings advices of the failure and arrest for fraud of A. Velge, a commission merchant at Singapore, by which the banks will also lose. These failures have caused a fall in the shares. The Oriental quotation is £41, the Chartered Mercantile £23, Chartered of India £14.

Messrs. Joshua Brothers and Co., of Great Winchester-street, desire it to be stated that their firm, together with the firms of Joshua Brothers, Melbourne, and Joshua Brothers, Mauritius, are in no way related to or connected with the firm of Joshua Brothers, of Singapore, whose suspension has been announced.

Correspondence from Shanghai by the last two mails has been very gloomy, and failures are expected before the end of the year, notwithstanding the assistance given here to the Silk market by a combination.

Bar Silver has again declined, and the nearest quotation we can give is 59½d. per oz., at which rate some small parcels have been sold; the market is weak, and a further slight reduction may be looked for. The supply of Mexican dollars cannot be placed, and the market is decidedly weaker. We can only, therefore, quote the last rates as nominal.

The Bank of Holland has decided to buy no more silver at any price. It has hitherto bought silver at fl.104.65 per Dutch pound, and has not varied the price for years. A belief is entertained that Holland intends also to adopt a gold currency. The decision has created great flatness in the market for silver, and it has fallen to a quotation not previously touched for years.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rehden's Circular says:—

During the past few days buying, except at auction without reserve (sales of China or Indian growth taking place daily), has been all but suspended, owing to the disturbance in the money market and the advance in the Bank rate, which is now 7 per cent.; arrivals have also been on an exceedingly large scale; buyers therefore act with extreme caution. Advices from China, as to ultimate total shipments, state, "all will depend on prices paid for common Congou;" as regards this market, there is no encouragement to ship such here; demand has been "off" this class for some time, and late imports of what may be fairly classed as "good common" have not been saleable over 9½d. per lb., and a cessation of shipments will be imperative to relieve us of the heavy stock. The export trade to all quarters has been inactive. The public sales of China have comprised 16,117 packages, of which 14,449 packages have been sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week amount to 3,211,946 lbs., against 3,161,038 lbs. last year.

Black.—Red leaf: No change as to prices for siftings and leafy; good flavoury kinds at 1s. to 1s. 1½d. have been scarce, but a better selection is offering from ships now discharging; Sayune and Kaisow kinds at 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5d. offer good value; medium to fine at 1s. 6d. to 2s. are hard of sale; finest sells in small lots at 2s. 1d. to 2s. 6d. per lb. Pakling kinds: No demand. Tayshan leaf: Full supplies are in course of landing; a few sales at 10d. to 1s. for good common and fair. Black leaf: In low and ordinary common there have been occasional small sales at 6d. to 7½d.; fair to good common we quote at 8d. to 10d. per lb., and difficult of sale; preferable kinds at 1s. to 1s. 2d. are scarce; medium to good medium at 1s. 3d. to 1s. 7d. we make rather lower; fine and finest 1s. 8d. to 2s. 2d., limited sales. Souchong: Few transactions at no alteration in value. Scented Tea, Canton kinds—Caper: There has been fair trade doing, as late imports are of desirable quality, many parcels being strong scented; good common to fair 10d. to 1s, good to medium 1s. 1d. to 1s. 4d., fine 1s. 5d. to 1s. 8d., finest 1s. 9d. to 2s. per lb. Scented Orange Pekoe: Limited supplies, but sufficient for present wants, Foochow growth being in full supply, and selling at a moderate scale of prices. Green: Large sales by auction without reserve; the imports, ex Glenroy and Ajax, over 800,000 lbs., offering a varied selection, chiefly of Ping Suey leaf, which has sold at an average 1d. per lb. decline, No. 1 Gunpowder selling down to 2s. 11½d., other grades in proportion. Moyune and Fychow leaf, with the comparatively small supply, has been selling at extreme rates. Canton and Japan kinds: No change.

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co. report as follows:—

The slight improvement in demand which had shown itself recently has been checked by the movements of the money market, and buyers generally seem disposed to wait; there is no change in quotations, however, and the daily business which is doing for manufacturing wants is at firm rates. In Canton Silk there have been sales at 17s. to 17s. 6d. for fair to good market Tsatlee, with certainly more general inquiry for this Silk, very few importers, however, are found willing to accept these rates. Japan Silks remain firm at last quotations, and without any new movement of interest. Deliveries are fairly good, being from 1st to 13th inst:—China, 974 bales; Canton, 306 bales; Japan, 263 bales; Bengal, 276; total, 1,819 bales.

CAMPHOR.—China has slightly declined; of 176 cases offered in the public sales about half has been sold at £3 15s. 6d. to £3 16s, and a small business has been done privately on corresponding terms.

CARDAMOMS.—There has again been an absence of business in Ceylon.

COCOA NUT OIL.—The market for Cochin has been firm, and sales of fine have been made at £38 15s. both privately and at auction. Ceylon is steady at the previous value; viz., £33 10s. to £35 15s. per ton.

CUBEBS.—The market continues very dull, and there are no transactions to report.

CUTCH.—The advance reported last week is maintained, about 500 tons having changed hands at 20s. to 22s. per cwt.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—Little doing; 29 cases lump offered in public sale were retired.

EBONY.—Ceylon is still very scarce, no part of the supplies reported to be afloat having yet come to hand. Good quality is still quoted £24 per ton, but no transactions are reported.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed steady; about 100 cases sold privately at 9s. 6d. down to 9s. for a few cases, since which it has slightly rallied, and there are buyers at a shade advance; 13 cases at auction retired. Cassia very firmly held. Nutmeg firm; 8 cases sold at 9d. per oz. Cinnamon: Fine, scarce, and wanted. Citronelle again lower, and dull; 75 cases at auction, only a few sold at 2½d. per oz. Lemon Grass: Value nominal, and difficult of sale; 40 cases retired.

GALLS.—China are firm at the last-quoted rates, viz., £2 17s. 6d. to £2 18s. per cwt., but there is very little business doing. An offer of 50 cases at auction was quitted at £2 17s. 6d. Japan: No transactions.

GAMBIER.—Prices have declined, but at the close the market is steady; the business done has been principally privately, there having been no transactions of consequence at auction; parcels on the spot have realised 24s. 6d. to 25s.; afloat, August shipment, 23s. 9d. to 24s.; September shipment, 23s. 6d. per cwt.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Siam quiet; 20 cases at auction retired; Sumatra also quiet; of 62 cases offered, one-half sold; 2nds, dark to fair, £7 2s. 6d. to £8 2s. 6d. Copal: Cheaper and very dull; 80 cases offered and retired; small sales privately at 30s. per cwt. for good hard. Damar: Quiet and cheaper; 150 cases sold at 53s. 6d. per cwt. for good clean, but rather dusty and yellow. Gamboge: Quiet.

GUTTAPERCHA.—Market dull; 648 packages at auction nearly all sold; close reboiled and part genuine, 1s. 6½d. to 1s. 6¾d., mixed with fine white, 1s. 4d. to 1s. 4½d; white fair to good clean, part barky, 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3d.; close reboiled and part perished and weak, 1s. to 1s. 0¾d.; Sumatra, barky and part loose, 9d. to 1s.

HEMP.—The market for Manila continues weak, the supply being still considerably in excess of requirements; the small business done establishes a slight decline in prices. Of 1,992 bales offered in public sale yesterday the bulk was bought in, fair to good roping at £47 to £48 10s.; about 200 to 300 bales sold damaged third to first class at £44 to £47, fourth class, £42 10s. to £43 5s.; inferior sound at £44 5s. to £44 15s. per ton.

HIDES.—At the last sales, somewhat contrary to general expectation, there was a fairly active demand for East India Hides for both home use and export, and rather over three-fourths of the quantity offered was disposed of. Former prices were well supported for nearly all descriptions, and for some of the most desirable piles of Dacca and North-Western slaughtered an advance of ¼d. to ½d. per lb. was paid. Singapore and Penang realised about former rates. Singapore and Penang Buffalo were in full demand, and generally brought full prices; Calcutta and Java were mostly bought in.

HORNS.—Siam Buffalo firm at the last quoted rate, viz., 36s. 6d. to 39s. 6d. per cwt. for 3 lb. to 4 lb. Horns. Ceylon Deer also firm.

INDIA-RUBBER.—The market is very quiet, and in the absence of transactions of any importance prices are unaltered.

JAPAN WAX.—There is but little doing, but the market is firm, and prices are well maintained; small sales of fine saucers are reported at £4 13s. per cwt.

MUSK.—Market steady; 51 caddies Tonquin at auction sold; fair selected, well-shaped pods part horny 34s. to 34s. 6d.; and rough and bally, fair middling 17s. 6d. to 18s.; 18 tins Grain sold, fine at 56s. to 57s.; dark at 48s. to 48s. 6d. per oz.

PEPPER.—Black has been very dull, and there have been only small sales, chiefly of Singapore, at 6¼d. to 6¾d., at which the market closes with an extremely dull tone. White is also cheaper, having been quitted at 1s. 0¼d. to 1s. 0¾d.

PLUMBAGO.—Ceylon of fine quality is very scarce, but mixed is dull of sale; 133 barrels in auction sold; dust, good and very good at 12s. to 13s. 3d. per cwt.

RATTANS are scarce, and supplies would realise high prices.

RHUBARB.—The market for China is steady but quiet; of 126 cases offered three-fourths sold; sundried root fairly trimmed and fresh small to large, 2s. to 2s. 4d.; duller coat and more mixed in size, 1s. 8d. to 1s. 11d.; inferior, 10d. to 1s. 2d. per lb.

RICE.—Although there is no activity in the demand, there is a steadier tone observable in the market, and better prices have been obtained, especially for floating cargoes. On the spot Askoolie has been sold at 10s. 4½d. to 11s., old Necransie at 8s. 6d. cash, and Moulmein at 9s. 6d. ex quay. The floating cargo per Surrey, 1,200 tons Rangoon, has been sold at 9s. 6¾d. continental terms, the floating cargo, per Voltri, 760 tons Necransie, arrived off coast, sold at 9s. 3d. for a near continental port, and a floating cargo of 750 tons Maulmain at about 9s. 3d. ex ship.

SAPANWOOD.—Manila and Siam steady; 55 tons Manila sold at auction at £8 2s. 6d. to £8 7s. 6d., for good wood, sugar damaged. Ceylon firmand in demand, but no offers have been made during the fortnight.

TIN has declined £2 to £3 per ton, but the market closes steadily; quotations are:—Straits, on the spot and afloat, £140; Banca, £155; Billiton, £146 per ton.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

The advance in the Bank rate to 7 per cent. has increased the dulness prevailing at the close of last week, and the sales effected since the 8th inst. have been extremely limited. At the close the market is without improvement in demand, and may be reported with a tendency of prices in favour of buyers.

A few doses of these strengthening and purifying Pills, taken according to the accompanying directions, will, however, speedily restore order, and re-enable the stomach to digest its food without difficulty. These excellent Pills are suitable alike for the peer as the peasant, the soldier and the sailor, and particularly for home and foreign colonists. Holloway's Pills are very useful in checking feverish attacks, bilious complaints, and inflammation; they have also made the most signal cures in cases of dropsy and disease of the kidneys, heart, and lungs, when the sufferers seemed past the aid of medicine.

COMPLETION FUND.

JUST before embarking from Hong Kong, on Tuesday, Nov. 16, 1869, H.R.H. the DUKE OF EDINBURGH was graciously pleased to lay the first stone of a choir for this, the mother Church of the Diocese of Victoria. The cost of the fabric has been shared by the Executive Government and the local community; and it is proposed, by a general subscription among former residents in and visitors to China, to provide the necessary furniture and fittings. Should sufficient funds be raised, it is proposed to erect a stone pulpit.

The Committee will gladly receive and forward any special gifts with which they may be entrusted. This scheme having received the cordial approval of the Colonial Chaplain and the Trustees, is circulated by the Executive Committee.

The Rev. W. R. BEACH, M.A., Chaplain to the Forces, Canon of St John's Cathedral, Hong Kong, and late Colonial Chaplain.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

PEKING AND TIENTSIN.

The Peking Gazette of the 5th Sept. has a memorial from Li-Hung-Chang reporting the bursting of the banks of the Yung-ting, and requesting his own punishment and that of three river officials. The result of this application we have already published, but the subjoined extract from the report is of interest, from the particulars it contains of the origin and extent of the inundations. Judging from it—and we may be sure the disaster has not been exaggerated—the extent of country under water must be enormous, the embankments in many places having been destroyed, and all more or less damaged.

In consequence of the heavy rain which set in on the 1st August, and which continued to pour incessantly for several days, the plains in the neighbourhood of the Great Wall were several chang (a chang is about 10 feet) under water, the only outlet for which was the Yung-ting. The result was that the officer in charge at Shih-ching-shan had to report a sudden rise of 16 feet in the river on the 4th August; and later on the same day a further rise of 3 feet 6 inches. Next day it had risen 23 feet 5 inches, a height which it never attained even last year, the torrent also being proportionately stronger. The rush and pressure of the water against the banks were so great that it was evident they must give way. Every imaginable plan was tried by the officials to prevent such a catastrophe; but the violence of the current defied their efforts. The locks were opened, and about 2 feet 5 inches of water let off; but the bulk of water was too great to effect any appreciable diminution, the banks consequently burst in several places. Similar tidings were received from the sub-prefect of Shih Ching-Shan. There the river had so swollen that the water overflowed the banks; the latter being eventually swept away, leaving a free channel for the water to pour out on the surrounding country. The soldiers and country people were called out to repair the breach; but to no purpose. The water continued to rise, and rushed along with such fury that human effort was vain. On hearing of this, the river inspector, Li Chao-i, immediately repaired to the spot to see what he could do; but, alas! he found the breach was already from 600 to 700 feet long, and that nothing could be done.

After the bursting of the banks last year, the memorialist had locks (or sluices) erected, and the Yingho cleaned out, hoping thereby to prevent such calamities in the future. He also ordered that a large supply of material should be kept always on hand in case of emergency. The banks, however, were so saturated last year that they were still moist and loose. The rise in the river too was something extraordinary, being over 20 feet, while the rain was pouring down in torrents and the wind blowing a perfect gale. Human strength contended in vain against such difficulties. Still, the officials having failed to save the embankments, must be held culpable, and it is his duty to request their punishment. He would beg that sub-prefect Wang Mowshun and Assistant-Magistrate Tang Chao be stripped of their rank, but retained in office; and that the river inspector (or intendant), Li Chao-i, receive the same punishment. The memorialist himself having failed to properly direct his subordinates, requests that he may be handed over to the Board (of Civil Office) to be punished according to his deserts. He is making every possible effort to remedy the disaster.

In the Peking Gazette of Sept. 25 we read that Tseun Ta, Commissioner of Justice in Keangse, has been promoted to Commissioner of Finances in Kwangtung. Four years ago Tseun Ta was Superintendent of Customs (Haekwan Taoutai) at Newchwang. Shortly afterwards he was promoted to Commissioner of Justice in Keangse. He is a Manchu, and belongs to the White Banner. He is considered an able man as an official. A new magistrate, named Tseen Miu, a native of Cheekeang, has been appointed to the post of Tientsin district magistrate. He made his first visit to the foreign officials on the 1st Oct.

On the 1st Oct. Li Hung-Chang paid a visit to a Chinese gunboat which arrived from Foochow a few days before, when he was saluted by eighteen guns from the Chinese gunboats in harbour. Later he landed in the British settlement, and inspected the road-steamer. There was a rumour that his Excellency would leave Tientsin for Peking on the 3rd Oct., but his departure has been postponed to the 7th or 10th. Some of the high military officers of Li Hung-chang's Southern Legions have surveyed the elevated grounds near the village of Hankow, situated close to the north river (Peiho), and about 13 British miles above Tientsin on the road to Peking, with the view of making on it a large military encampment in which to station a body of his southern men.

A great deal of sickness still exists amongst the Chinese population in town, and a great many deaths are taking place. When the wind blows from the north-west a dreadful stench comes down to the settlement, quite sufficient to cause a pestilence.

Admiral Shadwell arrived at Tientsin from Peking on Oct. 2. The small harbour is full of men-of-war, there being present of H.M.'s navy the Salamis, carrying the Admiral's flag, the Curlew, the Midge, and the Thistle; of the French navy the Couleuvre; of the Russian the Obob; and of the United States navy the Ashuelot and at Taku the Monocacy. The Midge will leave for Shanghai on Oct. 4; the Salamis will leave on the 5th for Newcastle; the Curlew leaving at the same time for Chefoo and Nagasaki.

SHANGHAI.

We have advices from this port to the 11th Oct.; the French mail, from London August 16, arrived out on the 4th, and the following P. and O. mail of August 23 on the 7th Oct. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

A Chefoo correspondent writes that news has been received from Corea of a dreadful famine in that country. The Regent has seized all the crops for the public general benefit, but these will not suffice to feed everyone, and multitudes are dying. The Chinese smugglers from Wei-hai-wei and the neighbourhood of Chefoo have bought several Corean girls for their harems, a measure of millet being the price for a young and pretty one. The policy of isolation is bearing its fruits. If Corea were to open trade, food would be poured into it. Millet has been sold there by Chinese at fabulous prices.

The Aracan and Hopewell have both left dock; the former has taken up her berth to load teas for London, but the Hopewell still remains in the vicinity of the shipyard, and judging from t[illegible] number of operatives that are still engaged effecting her repa[illegible] we conclude that some time will elapse before she is prepared load again.

The cricket match of the Mih-ho-loongs v. the World has been played. At the end of the first day's play the former were 99 and their opponents 137. On the second day the game was resumed, and the World got 100 in the end innings against 89 for the Mi-ho loongs, leaving the former therefore victors on the whole game by 49 runs. The Mi-ho-loong match is always one of the most popular of the season, and this year has proved no exception to the rule.

The opening Autumn Regatta of the Yacht Club is advertised for Oct 12. Two events are announced, a yacht race for a club cup value $100, and a sweepstakes for ships' boats.

At the annual general meeting of the Amateur Dramatic Club the following were elected a committee:—Messrs. R. W. Little, C. Alabaster, W. Pearson, R. D. Starkey, W. Cance, and W. G. Bayne. In acknowledgment of the kindness and consideration shown by the committee of the Club Concordia for the houseless condition of the Amateur Dramatic Club, during last season, it was resolved to present a piece of plate to that Club. The Amateur Dramatic Club will be yet another season in the same position, and arrangements are being made which, it is hoped, will result in the German Club extending their favours to next winter, and enabling the corps to maintain its organisation and its usefulness as a caterer for the public amusement, till the promised new theatre has been built.

The lorcha Rover has been offered for sale, by public auction, but there being no buyers present she was bought in at Tls. 1,250. The lorcha Enterprise changed hands last week at Tls. 1,400.

NINGPO.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

NINGPO, OCT. 3, 1872.

The symptoms of ill feeling against foreigners in this province (Cheh kiang), to which I alluded in my last letter, took effect shortly after I posted that letter in an act of covert, though very unmistakable hostility. The city of Hangchow, the capital of this province, lies west of Ningpo (the Treaty port) at a distance of 140 miles. Before the T'ai-p'ing inroad in 1861 efforts had been made occasionally by European Protestant missionaries to obtain a footing there (Roman Catholic missionaries have enjoyed such with varying fortunes for about 200 years). After the expulsion of the T'ai-p'ings, native houses were rented inside the city by the English Episcopalian and American Presbyterian Missions in the spring and autumn of 1864-65, without any show of opposition or ill-will on the part of the Chinese magistrates or people, and without any explicit discouragement or disapprobation from the Consular authorities. Since that time the number of resident missionaries has gradually increased, and there are now nine or ten English and American families living within the city walls. Land and houses have been freely offered for sale or lease by native owners, and in every case but one the deeds of sale and the leases have been made out in the name of some native connected more or less closely with the different Missions. This plan was adopted at first as a supposed measure of prudence; and has more recently been made a necessity by order from Her Majesty's Minister at Peking (a policy to which I shall have occasion to draw attention presently). The mandarins, however, were so perfectly aware of the fact that all this property, though held in native name, was in reality the property of foreigners, that their subordinates declined at first to tax the different properties. When it was represented to them that one desired effect of this method of purchase was the unrestrained collection of due taxes on the part of the native tax-officers, and, moreover, that Christianity distinctly commands the punctual payment of custom and tribute, the officers consented with alacrity to put this indisputable mark of legality on the transactions. All the deeds have been duly registered; and taxes have been in most instances collected. Nothing occurred to disturb the gradual growth of "residence in the interior" till the present year 1872—(a somewhat significant coincidence)—when rumours began to be heard of the annoyance the magistrates felt at the number of foreign houses springing up in the city. In the month of May anonymous placards were widely posted, calling on the people to prevent the further increase of such buildings. These placards appeared to produce little effect, and to excite but little attention, although the fact was considered sufficiently significant to call forth remonstrance on the part of some of the Consuls at this port; and it has since transpired that the Fu-tai resident in Hangchow seriously meditated an attack, similar to that which has just taken place, at the time of the appearance of these placards.

Action on the part of the mandarins was called forth at last by that most potent of all the agencies which oppose mercantile and philanthropic enterprise in China, namely Fung-shuy. Within the walls of Hangchow lie some low hills; at the foot of one of these hills are clustered the yamuns of some of the chief mandarins, notably that of the Fan tai. A mission-house was built about a year ago by one of the American missions on a spur of the hill immediately overlooking this yamun. During the past summer the Fantai's family has suffered much from illness; and the death of his wife was followed by that of his son. The fanatics assured him that his "luck" was destroyed by the gabled foreign house above, and enraged by this information he persuaded the Futai to order the Ché-hiens to arrest all natives who had bought or sold land, &c., in the interest of foreigners. The Ché-hiens declined to arrest the buyers, knowing too well their more intimate connection with foreigners; but the sellers, either former owners or middlemen, to the number of fifteen—men, too, of some social standing and respectability—were suddenly arrested on the 1st of this month; two of them (those connected with the property on the hill) were severely beaten, and the rest were kept in close confinement.

The British and American Consuls went up to Hangchow immediately on the arrival of this news; and in the course of several interviews with the Chehiens they extracted from them a promise to release the prisoners, and to issue proclamations contradicting and allaying the rumours that the residence of foreigners in Hangchow and their purchase of land and houses was in any way illegal. These proclamations, it should be observed, were already drafted by the magistrates before the arrival of the Consuls; the state of feeling in the city having assumed so serious an aspect, that the Missionaries were compelled without delay to petition for the issue of an official utterance which might suppress the hostile rumours. The Consuls in accepting this proclamation, and in demanding the release of the prisoners, did not, of course, wish thereby to express explicitly their own views of Treaty rights, so much as to remind both Magistrates and people that redress for any supposed infraction of Treaty rights cannot be obtained by such underhand hostility and injustice; and they desired at the same time to extract from the Magistrates their own exposition of the disputed clauses in the Treaty. These promises were given at first unconditionally; but in order to save their dignity the Mandarians afterwards demanded that the Consuls should leave the city before the issue of the proclamations or release of the men, so as to avoid the appearance of pressure or compulsion. The Consuls left, though without verbally accepting this dictation, and on the day promised the proclamations appeared, and the prisoners are, we hear, gradually being set free.

Now this relation of facts, tediously but necessarily diffuse, suggests a question of the first importance, and of surpassing interest to both merchants and missionaries—namely, the right of residence and ownership of property at a distance from the Treaty Ports. Let me lay before your readers three curiously contradictory documents. The XIIth Article of the Treaty of Tientsin speaks thus, "British subjects in all the ports and in all other places, wishing to rent land and build houses for the purposes of go-downs, churches, or hospitals, or for cemeteries, must deal with the people on equitable terms; and there must not be on either side captious unwillingness to treat for such purposes."

Here, let it be observed, the right to rent in the interior should seem to be clearly conceded. The proclamation recently issued in the provincial capital, Hangchow, speaks thus. "Lying rumours have been circulated to the effect that it is illegal for foreigners to rent or buy property in this city; and with reference to these rumours, I give notice that if any ignorant fellows cause annoyance at churches or hospitals, or spread rumours to the abovementioned effect, such persons will be apprehended and severely punished." Here, it will be noticed that the right to buy as well as to rent in the interior is admitted. And albeit that this proclamation is but the utterance of one man, yet considering this man's position as local Magistrate of a provincial capital, and as acting in the present instance notoriously at the instigation of the Lieut.-Governor of the Province, it is an utterance not devoid of interest. The Right Hon. Edward Hammond, in a letter dated Foreign Office, June 7, 1872, forwards to the Secretaries of the different English Missions at work in China, a copy of a circular which had been addressed (in the spring of the present year) by H.M. Minister in China to the Consuls under his superintendence, in which it is stated that the Treaty as understood by H.M. Government does not give British subjects the right of purchase or rental of lands or premises at a distance from the Treaty Ports; and the Consuls are enjoined most positively to refrain from assisting in the purchase or rental of any property of the kind, whether in the interest of merchant or missionary; and missionaries are recommended to transfer any lands or buildings which they may be holding in the interior to individuals belonging to their congregations." From this document it should appear that H.M. Government sanction the opinion of H.M. Minister at Peking to the effect that neither purchase nor rental are legal in the interior.

To what cause then are we to attribute the strange anomaly brought to light by a perusal of these three documents, namely, that Chinese authorities interpret the Treaty in a sense more favourable to British interests than that held by Her Majesty's Goverment? Is it that they suppose the rights granted by a clause in the Chinese text of the French Treaty, and common to all by the "favoured nation clause," now generally considered apocryphal by diplomatists, as still binding? Granted. But if so, the fact is significant that the Chinese do not yet deem it apocryphal. My own impression is that they consider residence and the tenure of property in the interior as sufficiently assured by the undisputed Art XII. of the Treaty which I have quoted above. That Article follows as a sort of corollary to the XIth, in which purchase and rental are fully conceded at all the open Ports. The XIIth appears designed to secure fair and equitable terms for both buyers and sellers, and if so the simple term "renting" may probably imply purchase as well.

But one cannot in honesty ignore the strange fact (a fact which no doubt influenced H.M. Government in the view which they have adopted) namely, that though China in its length and breadth seems thrown open by the XIIth Article yet in the XIth Article certain specified places are enumerated in which purchase and rental shall be legal. And yet, notwithstanding, the equally strange fact meets us on the other side, that both plain English and plain Chinese require no other interpretation for the phrase "and in all places," that there is no restriction as to locality. Surely not without design on the one side, and not without cognisance on the other, was that Article thus expressed in the most general terms. That that design is beginning to take effect I gather from the very significant fact that the subject of residence in the interior is not raised by Mr. Wade, nor referred to by Mr. Hammond. Their silence gives, I presume, consent, however reluctantly. In the Hangchow proclamation at any rate this question is assumed to be beyond question. Indeed, the right of missionaries, a right undisputed by Chinese and English authorities alike, to preach and teach Christianity in the interior, involves of necessity the right of residence. And this being the case, missionaries have perhaps, prima facie, a better claim than merchants for the exercise of this right; though it is hard to imagine that merchants can justly be debarred from the enjoyment of equal privileges. Suppose, then, that British subjects may reside in the interior; they must, of course, have residences. Her Majesty's Minister in Peking seems to assume this; but he suggests that the nominal ownership of these properties shall be in native Christian name. In case of action being taken against these native owners, Mr. Wade suggests that interference will be available on the ground of the toleration clause in the Treaty. This policy, however, correct and judicious though it is as far as ownership is concerned, has received a severe blow from the events described above. The missionary properties in Hangchow all satisfy the demand of Mr. Wade's circular; natives are the nominal owners, and these natives the magistrates feared to touch. They attacked the sellers, however, but distinctly admitted that had foreigners been the ostensible buyers, the sellers, too, would have been unmolested; the one excuse, in fact, and the only line of defence adopted by the mandarins was, that the apprehension of these men had nothing to do with foreigners. The interference of the Consuls was thus rendered extremely difficult. The Christian owners had not been touched, the missionaries had not been directly attacked, and yet a heavy and most serious blow was aimed at their admitted rights—a blow rendered possible and effectual, through the very fact of this native ownership. It was only by extorting from the magistrates the admission that the property was known to belong to foreigners that the Consuls were at length able to obtain the very considerable concessions which I have described above.

The question therefore presses for a settlement. May British subjects, or may they not reside in the interior; and if so, may they or may they not lease or buy land or houses at a distance from the Treaty Ports? H.M. Government surely must speak out. The order must be given to withdraw from all inland stations—an order pregnant with serious, perhaps dire consequences to foreigners generally in China. If this order be withheld, the promise of protection in the inland stations must be openly stated and not merely tacitly implied. The earnest and most laudable desire to avoid needless collision with the Chinese influenced no doubt H. M. Government in the adoption of the view which they have enunciated. But now that local gun-boat pressure is superseded by the reference of all questions to Peking, I cannot but believe that magistrates in inland cities, such as Hangchow, are quite as much within the reach of consular and ministerial action as those at the open ports. Neither can I admit that residence in the interior and the ownership of property at a distance from the coast or from the river stations will, of necessity lead to more serious complications, nor to more threatening magisterial or popular action than have already resulted from residence at the Treaty Ports.

AMOY.

We hear from Amoy that tens of thousands of Chinese at that place, Chio Bay, Haiten, and elsewhere have been suffering from an Indian fever called Dengue. Luckily, the fatal cases have been few. The disease is very painful, being accompanied by rheumatic pains in the limbs, swelling of the face, &c.; in many instances the effects of these pains remain, and the convalescent is unable, for weeks, to freely use his limbs. The fever, from want of fresh subjects, has exhausted itself at Amoy, but it is still raging in the surrounding districts, and the native quacks are helpless to arrest it. Many of the foreign community and numbers on board ships have been laid up with it. Mu Ch'en the Haifangting (a district magistrate), died, and being a Mahomedan, some curious rites were observed in preparing his body for the grave. A murder was committed by a Malay-Chinese named Tajit, who had resided at Amoy, off and on, for several years. His victim was a China-woman, whom, from jealousy, he had threatened to shoot some days before. He stabbed and cut her to death, and, although the alarm was given, escaped knife-in-hand, the spectators fearing to seize him. Being a British subject, search was made for him, later on, by the British consular constables, but without success.

A correspondent at Amoy states that a disturbance has taken place about thirty miles from Chang-poo, in the Changchau prefecture, consequent on a powerful clan resisting the imposition of a tax and beheading two mandarin runners. Some force was sent down to reduce the village, and it is reported that this has been successfully accomplished, but it is said that it was done by negotiation rather than fighting, and that a reverend gentleman was intermediaire in these diplomatic proceedings.

HONG KONG.

Dates by this mail are to the 17th Oct. The outward French mail of Aug. 30 arrived on Oct. 7; and the P. and O. mail of Sept. 6 on Oct. 13. The following items are from the China Mail:—

The Douglas Memorial Window is at length in its place at the eastern end of the newly-erected chancel of the Cathedral. It is a work of considerable beauty, in the gothic style, somewhat wanting, according to our idea, in breadth of treatment, but otherwise very satisfactory. The upper or rose section of the window contains a picture of the Ascension, the compartments beneath it containing the Crucifixion. Below this again are four compartments of Scripture views, such as Abel sacrificing, Abraham about to offer up Isaac, &c. The framework is of Bath stone, and the whole work, which cost, including freight, about a thousand pounds sterling, is a worthy gift to the Cathedral and memorial of the deceased donor.

We are very sorry to learn that the new chancel, which has been most creditably built, will not be utilised for sittings. It was supposed that a portion would be allotted to the Governor and other dignitaries so as to increase the number of eligible sittings in the body of the church—there being none now available for applicants. That this is not to be done will be much regretted. At all events we hope that the pulpit will be moved a little, so as not to cut off the whole view of the chancel from the North nave.

A numerously attended meeting of the Kyfong, at which there were more than a thousand persons present, took place yesterday, to discuss the proposed petition to Government on the subject of passing an enactment against adultery, and making it a punishable crime; a draft ordinance on the subject was discussed. Some amendments to the Bankruptcy Ordinance, so far as Chinese bankrupts were concerned, were also suggested, and finally, resolutions were passed to raise subscriptions for the erection of a "Kungsho" or Town-hall, the opium farmer heading the list with a donation of $2,000.

There is a report that H.M.'s 10th Regiment will be moved about Nov. 15 to Singapore, and that the 80th Regiment, at present at that place, will come here. We understand that the Commodore received a telegram on Friday to re-commission the Adventure in order to make the necessary changes. The telegram says the 18th Regiment (at present at Malta), but this must be a mistake.

The matsheds at Messrs. Spratt and Co.'s new dock at Sam-si poo, nearly opposite Stonecutter's Island, caught fire early this morning, and in half-an-hour the whole were burned down, before any assistance could be rendered. The fire, as viewed from Hong Kong, seemed more extensive than it really was.

The remains of the great Portuguese sinologue, the Rev. Joaquim Affonso Gonsalves, author of the only Chinese-Portuguese and Portuguese-Chinese dictionary (which is now out of print), and of several other valuable works, are to be removed from the old Cemetery of St. Paulo (Macao), to the church in S. Jose Seminary, where the Reverend gentleman lived. A programme of the ceremony to be performed during the exhumation and conveyance, which is to take place on the 8th instant, has been published.

We learn that the Police Court building has been condemned by the Surveyor-General, who considers it unsafe in case of a typhoon. The Magistracy is to be removed to the bungalow immediately under the police officers' quarters, and opposite the Hotel d'Europe on the other side of Pottinger-street.

We have been shown a specimen of the new crystallised sugar produced at the Hong Kong Sugar Refinery by a process initiated by the new manager, Mr. Dickie. It certainly appears to equal anything produced in Europe, and, under its altered condition, the refinery bids fair to effect a revolution in the China sugar market.

The Gazette of Saturday (12th) contains an announcement of the Hon. Mr. Pauncefote's appointment as Acting Chief Justice. As Mr. Smale is expected here by the next American Mail, Mr. Pauncefote's present tenure of office will not, it seems, be long. The Gazette also has a notification making the new one-dollar notes a legal tender, and the usual monthly report of the superintendent of the fire brigade.

The following is the account, duly certified, of the average amount of bank notes in circulation in Hong Kong during the month ending 30th Sept., 1872:—

Banks.	Average Amount.	Specie in Reserve
Oriental	$352,817 ...	$200,000
Chartered Mercantile of India, London, and China	302,197 ...	125,000
Chartered of India, Australia, and China	326,376 ...	150,000
Hong Kong and Shanghai ...	1,183,413 ...	400,000
Total	$2,164,857 ...	$875,000

We are glad to observe that the Gazette of Saturday notifies the appointment of Lieutenant McHardy, R.E., as Acting Surveyor-general, in place of Mr. Moorsom, resigned. Lieutenant McHardy is also named a Cathedral trustee. Mr. Fitzroy Rice's resignation of the post of Assistant Superintendent of Police is also officially announced.

From Foochow we learn that a steam launch has been at last started to run between there and Pagoda Anchorage, thirteen miles, and bring up mails, &c., a service which has hitherto been carried on by sampans, and is partly so still. Business in Congous has continued fairly active at previous quotations.

It is rumoured that Mr. Bowra, Commissioner of Customs at Canton, goes home in the spring, and is to be succeeded by Mr. James Hart, brother of the Inspector-general.

The Courier hears, on what it takes to be good authority, that a new steamboat company is about to be organised, with a capital of Tls. 500,000, into which is to be amalgamated the steamers of the North China Company, and others now trading on the coast.

CANTON INSURANCE OFFICE.

A general meeting of shareholders was held on the 10th, to pass the report and accounts presented by the general agents. There were present, the Hon. J Whittall in the chair, Hon. H. Lowcock, Hon. P. Ryrie, Messrs. Pyke, Weller, Melchers, Sassoon, W. Ray, Cordes, Buxey, McDouall, and H. Lemann. The following is the report:—

The general agents have the pleasure to submit to the shareholder the usual statement of accounts, viz.:—

Office 1870:—Balance sheet showing a net profit for the year of $332,100, which has been distributed, as following:—

1st dividend of $750 per share	$150,000
2nd and final dividend of $357 per share ...	71,400
Reserved third of profits	110,700

Office 1871:—Open statement showing the total receipts for the twelve months to be $778,243.31. Unfortunately, owing to the heavy losses in the early part of the year, referred to in the last report, and subsequent claims, the estimated profits $188,254.78, compare unfavourably with previous results of the office; nevertheless, the general agents are glad to be able to recommend a dividend of $400 per share to be paid at once.

Office 1872:—Open statement of accounts to date, which, notwithstanding heavy losses to commence with, still shows a fairly satisfactory result, say $255,525.39 at credit, and an increase in the gross premia received of about $100,000 as compared with last year. It must be borne in mind, however, that the shares in this office have been increased from 200 to 300, in accordance with the extraordinary general meeting held on Dec. 13, 1871, and that in future two-thirds of the nett profits are to be divided amongst contributing shareholders.

Mr. Pyke proposed, seconded by Mr. Sassoon, that the report and accounts should be passed.—Carried unanimously. Mr. Ryrie proposed, seconded by Mr. Pyke, that the general agents should be authorised to wind up the office of 1871 without convening any further meeting.—Carried unanimously. Mr. Weller proposed, seconded by Mr. Pyke, that the retiring pension of $1,200 to Captain Ricketts, the Company's surveyor, should be continued for 1872.—Carried unanimously.

The Chairman then said that the whole of the increased numbers of shares had been satisfactorily allotted, with the exception of two, which had not been taken up, but for which there were numerous applicants. The question of registering the office had been brought forward at the last general meeting, and had since been under the careful consideration of the general agents. A new deed had been drawn, and possibly before the year was over, it would be submitted to the shareholders. Under the present deed, he noticed that the consulting committee must be appointed for next year.

Mr. Lemann proposed, seconded by Mr. M'Douall, that the present consulting committee, consisting of Messrs. Lowcock, Ryrie, Pyke, Weller, and Sassoon, be reappointed for the ensuing year.—Carried unanimously.

The chairman added to his remarks on the new deed, that the object had been not to alter the constitution of the office if it could be avoided. They had now got a deed drawn which would allow the office to be a yearly one as before, and still would only have to be registered once, as it would renew itself. They had had the best advice on the subject, and that was the result of it, the difficulty with a yearly office having been the necessity of registering it anew every year. Now, however, they would only have to do so at once.

Mr. Ryrie proposed a vote of thanks to the general agents for the satisfactory manner in which the business of the office was transacted by them. This was carried, and the meeting then separated.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

HONG KONG, October 16, 1872.

Nothing very remarkable has transpired during the past week. With the departure of the Grand Duke Alexis our little burst of gaiety has come to an end, and people are now looking forward to the winter for the next bout of amusement. It is said that a project is on foot for again starting the China Punch, but not being in the secrets of the printing-house, I cannot say if this be true. It is proposed to illustrate by photographs, according to my informant. If the Punch does start again, it will have plenty of matter.

Mr. Greig goes away to-morrow and vacates his seat as M.L.C., Acting Judge Pauncefote's return making him de trop. Some people seem to think that the snub administered to Judge Ball in appointing Mr. P. for a three weeks' tenure (as Judge Smale is "positively" announced to arrive by the next American mail) was rather uncalled for. For my own part, as we have a European murder case on at sessions, I agree with the majority, and am glad to see some one on the bench who is not incapacitated by an affliction from forming a clear judgment. Judge Ball is no doubt a good lawyer, but has fits so frequently, that a very strong mistrust of his mental acumen is beginning to arise in the public mind. The worst of it is that one can never tell the precise extent to which he comprehended what passed, as for some minutes before a fit comes on nothing but a peculiar circular motion with his pen intimates to those present that anything is amiss. A short time since there was the greatest difficulty in getting an adjournment of the Court, as at first it was impossible to make his Lordship understand, and when he did come to himself, he insisted on going on with the case.

The Governor is developing rather a strong will, which the China Mail calls "Cæsarism." I think myself that we want a little more of it. Mr. Cecil Smith has been getting pretty severely hauled over the coals by some correspondents of the above-named paper. Some irreverend dog has actually been calling the Postmaster-General "our friend Stamps," in print, and has called attention to his rather peculiar style of shirt collar—whereby you will guess that our silly season is now on.

The Emperor is supposed to be getting married to day—very much married indeed if he takes as many wives as have been selected for him. A native pamphlet is being hawked about at Canton giving full details of the ceremony.

A big dinner is being given this evening to Dr. Magalhaens, ex-editor of the Oriente a Macao journal. You will see all about his quarrel with Governor Jarmain in the papers, so I need not repeat it. The doctor has a strong party in his favour, and many who don't agree with his views have taken his part against the despotism of the Governor. About 500 people accompanied him to the wharf when he left Macao this morning. He is ordered to Timor, and leaves by this mail steamer.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

We learn from the Siam Advertiser that H.N.M.'s steam corvette Vice Admiral Koopman, conveying his Excellency H. J. C. Hoogeveen, the Dutch Ambassador to the Court of Siam, arrived off the Meinam Bar on the 2nd inst. His Excellency's reception by the Siamese appears to have been most pleasant and courteous. After making and receiving visits to and from the Ministers of State, the Ambassador was received in public audience on the 4th inst. by his Siamese Majesty, to whom his Excellency presented the insignia of the Grand Cross of the Netherlands Lion. Mr. Hoogeveen, after the public reception, had a private interview with the young King, and report speaks very highly of his intelligence, bearing and deportment. On the 6th, the Ambassador dined at the Supreme King's Palace, in the New Public Hall, by invitation of his Majesty. Before dinner, the Ambassador and suite were invited to another private audience, when his Excellency took occasion to deliver to the King the decorations designed by his Netherland's Majesty for the Second King, his Grace the Regent, H.E. the Minister of War, H.E. the Foreign Minister, and other high Siamese officials, praying his Majesty to distribute them as designated.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates extend to the 24th Oct. The outward P. and O. mail of 20th Sept. arrived on the 21st Oct. The following summary is from the Straits Times:—

The Legislative Council has not yet got through its business, which appears, however, to be drawing to a close. It is rumoured that its session will close on the 15th proximo. There have been several matters under consideration, of which the Summary Jurisdiction Bill is the most important to the community, and will, we fear, if not much modified, press rather hardly upon the poorer classes, as well as cause inconvenience to many others who have for years been in the habit of doing things which are therein declared to be finable offences. The great objection to the measure is that it places too unlimited power in the hands of the police peons, whose predilection for making the most of their authority is too well known. We do not hesitate to say that this Bill is uncalled for, and, any way, sufficient time has not been given for its proper consideration.

The revenue of the colony appears to be falling off, while the expenditure is steadily increasing—a fact that should lead to the enforcement of the most rigid economy in every item of expense. The late day at which the estimates are issued prevents that careful revision and attention they require, and the consequence is that they are usually adopted without much attention to the items.

The merchants and traders of Penang not long ago sent in a petition to the Legislative Council, praying for a return to imprisonment for debt; and as a similar petition had long before been sent in by traders here, the Council took them both into consideration at once. It has decided to do nothing in the matter until an opportunity has been afforded for further experience in the working of the ordinances. Though we not agree entirely with the petitions, yet they set forth two or three facts deserving of consideration by Government, one of the most important being the statement that proceedings against a bankrupt are so trammelled by obstacles, and attended with so great expense, that creditors prefer to accept even the smallest composition rather than have recourse to the Court.

The failure of Velge Brothers, with liabilities to the extent of $150,000 or more, mostly to European firms here, occasioned considerable surprise, but there having been many failures of late, after a day or two little more was thought of it, until it was discovered that the managing partner, Mr. Abraham Velge, who had hitherto been believed to be a merchant of good standing and unblemished reputation, had by producing the Dock Company's receipts drawn advances from the banks on goods stored at Tanjong Pagar, and had afterwards shipped off the goods on his own order, and it was also ascertained that he had sometimes drawn from two, it is even said three, banks on the same goods. The three banks found themselves defrauded in this way to the extent of some $40,000. Mr. Velge was thereupon arrested on a warrant, but was admitted to bail for $10,000, in two sureties of $5,000 each, to appear on Thursday, the 19th inst. His bail failed to produce him when called upon to do so, and a further warrant having been issued against him for forgery, in having altered a Dock receipt to procure a larger advance on the goods, a reward of $200 was offered, which has since been increased to $500, for information that will lead to his arrest. Meanwhile, the firm has been declared bankrupt, and all available property has been seized on behalf of the creditors. The developments in connection with this affair have created the greatest sensation here. Bank managers will know better than to take bail again when once they have a culprit safe. The Government has taken the matter up, and every effort will be made to have justice executed in this most painful matter.

The criminal session of the Supreme Court closed on the 22nd. There have been a number of cases tried for the heavier crimes, and the severity of the sentences, added to the fact that a more rigorous discipline is shortly to be introduced in the jails, will, it is earnestly to be hoped, act as a deterrent to others. There were three or four cases of murder, in only one of which, however, sentence of death was passed. Considerable interest was felt in one case, in which several natives were charged under an Indian Act for "waging war," in enlisting men and procuring arms and supplies for Rajah Mahdie and his adherents for the war in Klang. The defendants' counsel demurred to the indictment, and the Chief Justice gave judgment on the demurrer, holding that the indictment was not good; the prisoners were accordingly discharged. Certain letters found in possession of one of the prisoners gave this case more importance than it would otherwise have possessed, as tending to show that Mahdie had high countenance and support.

Affairs at Klang and Salangore are in a most unsatisfactory condition. Information has been received here of the murder by Mahdie's adherents of several Europeans in the service of Tunkoo dia Oodin, among the latest being Lieutenant Hagen (formerly of the Netherlands Army) and a Mr. Cavaliero (a former employé of Messrs. Guthrie and Co., of Singapore), whose throats were cut in cold blood. The barbarous atrocities perpetrated by Mahdie and his followers deprive him of all claim for sympathy from a civilised power.

The arrivals via the Suez Canal have been the Saltee on the 7th from Glasgow, Agamemnon on the 11th from Liverpool, Canton on the 18th, Menzaleh on the 19th, and Glengyle on the 22nd, from London. The only departures by this route have been the Atalanta for London on the 14th, and the Correze (from Saigon) for Toulon on the 19th. The Antenor and Odessa leave for London.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—The demand for Cotton goods had been disappointing and, with some pressure to realise, rates for most descriptions had become materially lower. For Woollens the demand had been considerably less active, and only a small business had transpired. Grey Shirtings: 7lbs. 4 to 5 candareens lower, favourite chops could not be placed at better than Tls. 1.68 per piece. In 8¼lbs. dealers contented themselves with supplying immediate wants, and a decline of 2 to 3 candareens was noted. Heavy Shirtings no enquiry. White Shirtings purely nominal. T-Cloths remained in much the same position as last advised. Demand of a most trifling character, and the offers of dealers absurdly low. Drills, fair average business done, but prices showed a further slight fall. Jeans quite neglected. Fancy Cottons in very limited request. Woollens and Worsted: Few transactions reported, quotations quite nominal. Metals: Lead, small sales at Tls. 4.70 per picul. Quicksilver, Tls. 80.00 per picul.

SHANGHAI.—A small general business in Cottons had been transacted daily, but the trade in Woollens had been confined to Spanish Stripes, a few Lustres, Lastings, and an inquiry for Camlets. Grey Shirtings: A steady demand had absorbed supplies of 7 lbs. as they arrived at 1c. to 2c. advance; good Lie Eagles placed at Tls. 1.67; Dewhurst's Cloth at Tls. 1.68; 8¼ lbs. Mildew's and ordinary chops had received more attention than best; values maintained at about last mail's figures, resales of Dewhurst's Eagles at Tls. 1.82 to 1.83; market closes with some inquiry. White Shirtings: Very little inquiry and a few settlements; sellers refused offers of Tls. 1.85 and Tls. 1.60 to 1.63 for fair 64 and 58 reeds. T-Cloths: Market had not changed; ruling rates Tls. 1.12 to 1.15 for low count 6 lbs.; Tls. 1.30 to 1.36 and Tls. 1.41 to 1.48 for common and Mexican 7 lbs.; and Tls. 1.60 to 1.68 for 8 lb. cloth. Drills in active request throughout, and transactions in English and Dutch to extent of about 30,000 pieces as recorded; former quotations readily paid for good to best English; Dutch showed a trifling rise had been obtained. Jeans: Sales reported at rates ranging between Tls. 2.05 and Tls. 2.12 for English. Sheetings: English quitted at Tls. 2.80 to 2.90. Fancy Cottons do not call for comment; Gentian and Turkey Red Shirtings, Velvets, Brocades, and Chintzes were the only articles in which business had been done—Gentian Shirtings, Tls. 2.50 to 2.60; Chintzes, Tls. 1.32 to 1.70; Turkey Reds, 8 lbs., Tls. 2.15. Woollens: Spanish Stripes in good demand at advanced prices; T.T.B. import held for Tls. 0.71, C.P.H. sold at Tls. 0.64 to 0.69; Lastings, Black, in good request at Tls. 12.40 to 12.50; for H.D.B. Assorted not so much sought after; Camlets, very few changed hands. Metals: We have nothing of importance to advise regarding this branch of trade, market for everything having been in a quiescent state. Coals: Market weaker, with but few purchasers. Quotations from ship side—Cardiff, Tls. 10.75 to 11; English, Tls. 9.50 to 10; American, Tls. 9.25 to 9.75.

FOOCHOW.—Sales had been as follows:— Grey Shirtings, 8.4 lbs. 8,500 pieces, at $2.72 to 2.75 per piece; T-Cloths, 7 lbs., 500 pieces, at $2.05 per piece; Mexican T-Cloths, 7 lbs., 2,300 pieces, at $2.65 to 2.70 per piece; 8 lbs., 100 pieces, at $3.75 per piece; Lead, 1,000 pigs, at $6.75 to 7.00 per picul, against Tea.

HONG KONG.—The mail steamers had brought small supplies of manufactured goods, but stocks had been further increased by the following arrivals. From Liverpool, Antenor, Hector, and Patroclus, steamers. From London, Sunda, Benledi, Hongkong and Gordon Castle, steamers, and Carricks and Constantine, sailing vessels. The tendency of prices for manufactured goods during the interval had been downward, caused in a great measure by the continued anxiety of importers to realise, and the scarcity of dollars which had existed for some time. Values in Manchester had also had a depressing effect, and buyers, in the face of the numerous arrivals, had only operated to fill actual orders, the declining tendency of prices offering no inducement to speculative purchases. Stocks were not considered excessive, but the rapid communication existing with England required that a much lower range of supplies should exist than formerly.

CANTON.—Lead had declined 15c. per picul; sales had been on a more liberal scale for the common brands, but owing to free supplies, stocks were still too heavy. Quotations:—Common quality, $6.30 to 6.35; WB quality, $6.55 to 6.60.

MANILA.—There had been but little demand for imports during the interval; but little business had consequently been done, and prices were without alteration.

BATAVIA.—There had been great inactivity in the demand for nearly all descriptions of Cotton goods, and the business done had been on a very limited scale. The steadiness of the home markets, as reported by telegram, had however a hardened effect on prices here, and while values generally had been maintained, in one or two instances some little improvement was noticed. Holders, though anxious to reduce their stocks, were not disposed to make any further concessions to buyers in the meantime, as a more active demand was anticipated about a fortnight from date, which would be the commencement of the Native new year.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead and Co. report as follows:—The arrivals with general cargoes are the Agamemnon, steamer, from Liverpool, the Canton and Glengyle, steamers, from London, the Hammonia from Hamburg, and the Jonge Jan from Rotterdam. 39-in. Grey Shirtings: Good makes 8¼ lbs. continued in fair inquiry at $2.50, better demand for 7 lbs., at $2.07½ to $2.10. 6 lbs., in some request at $1.90. 45-in. little inquiry. 32-in. Grey T-Cloths: Light weights in poor request; 6 lbs. in fair inquiry at $1.60 to 1.62½, a few sales of 7 lbs. effected at $1.82½ to 1.85. 32-in. Grey Madapollams neglected, and no sale reported. 36-in. Grey Supers: Inferior forced off at low prices and ordinary taken to small extent at former rates. Nothing doing in best qualities; 36-in. White Shirtings: Excellent demand for fine. Medium quiet at steady prices. Low meets with little demand. White Spots and Brocades quite neglected. White Cambrics: Ordinary, 15-16s in less inquiry, and declined to $32 to 32½, stocks heavy. Other descriptions slow of sale. Dyed Spots and Brocades: No demand. Nothing doing in Camlets and Long Ells. Blue Lastings wanted, and there were occasional inquiries for Black, but at low prices. Assorted, unsaleable. Bombasettes, in few hands, and firmer. Scarlet Spanish Stripes, asked for to small extent, but the stock is ample. Grey Yarn: 40s in some demand at $128 to 130. No inquiry for 30s, but 18-24s saleable at $105.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

HANKOW.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer and Co.'s Report says: "Considering the advanced stage of the season a good business has been transacted. Settlements amount to 7,982 chests 10,525 half-chests. In the corresponding period last year only 4,916 chests and 2,513 half-chests were settled, the range of price being this year Tls. 10½ to 20 against Tls. 9 to 15½ then. We closed our report at this date last year, and there is now little of interest to say regarding the leaf beyondgiving statistics. Our market opened on the 13th May, the earliest season on record. The second crop leaf arrived about the 24th June, the first settlements being reported on the 26th, and the third crop leaf was first shown about the 6th Aug. Particulars of total arrivals, settlements and shipments on native account, to date show that 35,797,400 lbs. were settled here this year against 31,175,600 lbs. last year, while of Ningchows 5,112,707 lbs. were settled, against 3,353,524 lbs. then; or a total increase in the settlements at this port of nearly 6,500,000 lbs. The shipments to Shanghai for sale on native account show a decrease, as compared with last year, of 7,200,000 lbs., the figures being this year, 16,900,300 lbs., and last year 24,112,500 lbs. The favourable out-turn of the second and third crop teas on the London market last year made prices for these kinds much higher in the present season, and throughout they have commanded from 2 to 4 Tls. over the rates of 1871, and this with no improvement in the quality of the teas. Although, owing to the heavy simultaneous arrivals and the haste to sell, the first crop teas have not done well on the home market, we think they were relatively much the cheapest, particularly the medium kinds costing here Tls. 20 to 25, prices paid afterward for inferior second crop teas. We require at present 6,000,000 lbs. to make up our export of last year and native estimates of the quantity still up country do not exceed 30,000 chests. In the face of the high prices still current here, however, every available leaf is certain to be packed, and if the export shows any decrease at all it will not be a material one. We estimate total arrivals to date, exclusive of Ningchows, at 53,016,700 lbs., against last year 55,488,100 lbs. Customs export to 2nd Oct., was 52,767,120 lbs., against 53,437,022 lbs., or including Ningchows 57,879,827 lbs., against 56,790,546 lbs."

SHANGHAI.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer and Co. report as follows: Black.—Owing to the change, made as usual at this season of the year, in the time of departure of out-going mails, it is nearly three weeks since we reported; settlements do however aggregate more than 8,000 chests and 19,000 half-chests. During the early part of the period under notice a moderate business was transacted at about previous rates; latterly settlements have been more restricted, and whenever holders have shown anxiety to sell a decline has been conceded; we quote rates 1 to 2 taels lower. Shuntam packed have been taken at Tls. 13.5 to 15.5.0; common Hohows, Tls 17 to 18, and fair to medium Oopacks and Ningchows Tls. 20 to 24; a few parcels, a little better in quality than the generality of Teas on offer, have realised Tls. 25 to 30, they are relatively dear. Stock is moderate; it is estimated at 24,500 chests against about 20,000 at same time in 1871. Export, including cargoes of Parnassus and Lahloo, is 53,338,703 lbs., against 57,099,960 lbs. at corresponding date last year. Supplies coming to hand are of inferior quality, and it is pretty certain that there is now but little Tea of desirable quality to go forward. Green: Settlements amount to about 47,000 half-chests. We do not make any change in quotations, although a short time since a few purchases were made on easier terms: closing rates, quality considered, are fully equal to those current at date of our last. Finest chops have nearly all been taken, and have ruled relatively cheap, the demand being principally for medium to fine grades. Prices paid have been Tls. 38.0.0 to Tls. 47.0.0 for country Teas to Tls. 53.0.0 proportion for parcels of good proportion, Pingsueys have been neglected, only a few having changed hands at Tls. 38.5.0 to Tls. 53.0.0 per picul proportion.

AMOY.—Oolong: A settlement of 2,055 packages was reported, showing a decline of $2 to 3 on last rates, but as Teamen were unwilling to make further sales at this concession, the subjoined quotations were somewhat nominal:—Common to fair, $18 to 23; good, $25 to 27; superior, $28 to 30; fine to finest, $32 to 40. Formosa Oolongs: Late arrivals showed a slight decline, and the quotations were — Fine to finest, $38 to 48; good to superior, $30 to 34 in Amoy.

FOOCHOW.—The market had remained quiet, the chief settlement in Congou being for the Continent and the colonial markets. Notwithstanding the large stocks, holders showed no disposition to accept lower rates, except for the "common to good common" grades, which were about ½ to Tl. 1 easier. Souchong: Sales small; Common kinds, rather easier. Oolongs and Flowery Pekoes: No sale. Scented Teas: No change in prices; sales, 5,500 boxes. Sales for the fortnight and prices summed up as follows:—Congou: Dust and broken leaf kinds, Tls. 4½ to 10.5; ordinary common, Tls. 11.5 to 13.5; Good common, Tls. 14 to 16; Light flavoury, Tls. 17 to 21; Good flavoury to medium Kysow kinds, Tls. 22 to 26.5; sales, 28,400 chests. Souchong: Common to medium, Tls. 11 to 20.5; good to fine, Tls. 23 to 30; sales, 3,350 chests. Oolongs: Common to good Cargo, Tls. 18 to 24; Fine to finest, Tls. 34 to 47; sales nil. Flowery Pekoes: Common to medium, Tls. 24; sales, 50 chests. Scented Teas: Common to medium, Tls. 15 to 23.5; sales, 4,100 boxes.

CANTON.—The market had been quiet, and prices had generally declined. Scented teas: Orange Pekoes, previously firmly held, were obtainable at a reduction of about Tael 1 per picul, but having in view the large export, buyers were few. Capers, of good medium to fine quality, would readily find purchasers at full rates, but such were difficult to meet with, the stock consisting chiefly of common to medium class, which were seeking buyers on same basis as quoted for last P. and O. mail. Canton greens: Gunpowder had been largely dealt in, but only a small portion had been taken for the English market; common had realised Tls. 11, and fair to good medium Tls. 18 to 23. Imperials had been taken for the Continent at Tls. 18 to 21 per picul. Settlements for the fortnight:—Canton District Congous: none. Scented Orange Pekoe: 4000 boxes at Tls. 19 to 31. SILK.

SHANGHAI.—Messrs. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular says:—The continue receipt of unsatisfactory telegrams is now begineing to have some effect with native dealers, and prices for medium, common and re-reeled Silks are gradually declining although not with that rapidity which might be expected, while for all good qualities and chops but little change can be noted. Dealers with a view to press sales are shipping largely in joint account and so relieving the market of a quantity of rubbish, which they otherwise would not be able to place. A fair business has been doing for America mostly in re-reels, ranging from Tls. 540 to Tls. 580 per piul. Koo-fong-sings and Dragon chops have been placed at Tls. 575; Gold Lion, Tls. 535; Kin Jan and Blue Elephant, Tls. [illegible] and Red Peacock, at Tls. 490: Fatmow's No. 2 Hainin have brought Tls. 507½. Settlements since 21st Sept., Chinas, 3,500 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 1872, 37,000 bales; 1871, 35,300 bales; 1870, 23,000 bales. Comparative unsold stock, 10th October, 6,500 bales; 1871, 4,500 to 5,000 bales; 1870, 3,000 to 3,500 bales.

CANTON.—In Tsatlee Reel and Loongkongs, only a small business had been done, and settlements during the fortnight were computed at 385 bales, 35 of which were for French Mail. Fine and finest kinds had been mostly sought after, and had been bought about $10 cheaper than last quoted. No. 4 Tsatlee had been firmly held for $460, and only a few small lots had found purchasers at that figure. Re-ree had been in good request, and settlements are said to be nearly 1,00 boxes. Stock—200 bales Loongkongs, 2,000 bales Tsatlee reels, 40 bales Kowkongs 150 bales Cumchucks, Lacklows, &c., and 350 bales of inferior descriptions.

DEATH OF SIR JOHN BOWRING.

Sir John Bowring died at Claremont, his residence, near Exeter, on the 23rd inst. He was born at Larkbeare, in the suburbs of Exeter, on the 17th of October, 1792, so that at the time of his death he had just completed his 80th year. He was the eldest son of Mr. Charles Bowring, of Larkbeare,—a gentleman whose ancestors, for some generations, had been engaged in the woollen manufacture, which in the last century was the "staple" trade of the West of England. His mother was Sarah, the daughter of the Rev. Thomas Lane, of St. Ives, Cornwall. He received the rudiments of a sound practical education, under the Rev. J. H. Bransby, at Moretonhampstead, in his native country; but at the age of 14 he was taken from school and placed by his father in his trade, which at that time consisted principally in the preparation of coarse woollens for export to China and the Spanish Peninsula. As a youth he was of studious and reserved habits, devoting almost all his leisure hours to the study of modern languages and of natural history and chymistry. Before he was of age, he was sent abroad to represent and attend to his father's commercial interests in the north of Spain while the Peninsular War was going on, and received consignments of merchandize to very large amounts. He next visited Northern Europe, remaining for a considerable time in Russia, whence he travelled through Sweden, Finland, and Germany, making it his rule, wherever he found himself, to live, not among his own countrymen, but with the natives, and to make himself acquainted with the country by adopting its usages and speaking its tongue.

In early life his mind derived another bias from his connecion with Jeremy Bentham, whose political pupil he became; and it is well known to the elder part of the present generation that, as the first editor of the Westminster Review, he became the principal exponent of Bentham's opinions on legal and social questions. He lived on terms of intimacy with his great master, whose works he edited and published in upwards of 20 octavo volumes, and whose executor he eventually became. At this very period, too, he was exhibiting a proof of his intimate acquaintance with European literature, and particularly with its lyrical element, by the publication (in 1821-23) of his Specimens of the Russian Poets, which he followed up in 1824 by his Batavian Anthology, and the Ancient Poetry and Romances of Spain. In 1827, too, he published Specimens of the Polish Poets, and a volume on Servian Popular Poetry, and in 1830 a work on the Poetry of the Magyars. As far back as the year 1829 he had gleaned at Copenhagen the materials for a collection of Danish poetry, and, at the suggestion of Adelung, he translated into English the German Story of Peter Schlemihl. Being brought into personal acquaintance with most of the eminent authors and poets of the last generation, he was assisted by them in a design which, however, was never completed, for compiling the History of the Popular Poetry, not only of the Western, but also of the Eastern world, with specimens translated from various sources. We may mention here that a privately printed memoir of Sir John Bowring's literary services gives a list of upwards of 30 languages and dialects from which he published translations in one shape or another; and the large Catalogue of the British Museum will serve to show that his translations, songs, hymns, original poems, and other works distinctly of a literary and non-political character, amount to more than 50 volumes.

His public career may be said to have commenced from the year 1828, when we find him visiting the Low Countries, being commissioned by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Herries, on the recommendation of Mr. Alexander Baring (afterward Lord Ashburton) and the Parliamentary Finance Committee, to report on the public accounts of Holland. This report had the honour of being laid before Parliament; but its author received nothing beyond his expenses. On Lord John Russell's appointment to office, we find him next discharging the unpaid duties of a Commissioner to inquire into the state of records of births and deaths in extra-parochial places; and in that capacity he examined and reported upon more than 7,000 volumes, a work which occupied several months of his time. In 1830 he was sent with the late Sir Henry Parnell to France, upon a mission similar to that which he had already discharged in Holland. In 1832 he was appointed secretary to the Commission for the Reform of the Public Accounts, of which Sir Henry Parnell, his old collegue, was chairman. On this occasion he examined in the greatest detail the Comptabilite of the French Government, presenting two reports, which were published by Parliament, and which form the groundwork of our present improved system. Sir John Bowring and Sir Henry Parnell between them wrote also the reports of the Exchequer, and prepared those resolutions which, after long delays, have become the law of public accountants in Great Britain and in the Colonies. About the same time he was nominated, jointly with the late Lord Clarendon, Commercial Commissioner to France, being ordered, along with two French Commissioners, to examine minutely into the tariffs of France and England with a view to the extension of commercial relations between the two countries. This mission, or rather its result, was placed on permanent record in the shape of two elaborate reports by the Commissioners, and they are now Parliamentary documents.

On other occasions Sir John Bowring was sent on commercial missions to Egypt, to Syria, to Lombardy, to Tuscany, to Rome, and to Switzerland; and each mission was followed by a separate report, which was published in the shape of a Blue-book. On two occasions he visited Belgium, with a view to procure certain modifications of the existing commercial system, and he represented Great Britain at the meeting of the Zollverein in Berlin in 1838. He also assisted in the formation of the "Manchester Leauge," which aided in effecting the abolition of the Corn Law. We may mention here that Sir John Bowring wrote a large part of the report of Mr. Joseph Hume's Committee on the Import Duties—a report which has been translated into all the commercial languages of Europe and circulated in hundred of thousands of copies. Many of his recommendations were adopted by Sir Robert Peel. The Parliamentary life of Sir John Bowring began in 1834. Having been an unsuccessful candidate for the representation of Blackburn in 1832, he entered the House of Commons as member for the Kilmarnock boroughs at the general election of December 1834, but he had no seat in the Parliament which met in 1837, after Her Majesty's accession, being defeated by the late Mr. Campbell-Colquhoun, mainly on a No-Popery cry. He succeeded, however, in obtaining a seat for Bolton in 1841 and retained it until 1849. In St. Stephen's he was a frequent speaker on commercial and fiscal questions and on subjects connected with Reform, both social and political; but his great fluency made him not very popular in the House.

In 1822 Sir John was in Paris, and on his way back was arrested at Calais by orders from the Government, the Bourbon King of Charles X., on suspicion of being connected with the plot to release the conspirators of La Rochelle. Sir John was cast into a prison at Boulogne, amongst the worst criminals, and confined there for nearly a month, notwithstanding the efforts of our then Minister in Paris, Sir Charles Stuart, and Mr. Hamilton, the Consul at Boulogne. Sir John conducted a most vigorous correspondence while in prison, and most nobly defended the doctrine of "Civis Romanus Sum." He was released without any sort of explanation or satisfaction, and he roundly upraided our then Foreign Secretary, Mr. Canning, for not insisting on satisfaction. A pamphlet was published at the time containing all the correspondence. It was only last year that one of his grandsons visited the prison in which Sir John was confined.

In 1849 he accepted the British Consulate at Canton. He soon found difficulties placed in the way of his proper official reception, and matters came to a "dead lock;" complaints met with no attention; grievances were unredressed.

After a short visit to England and France, in order to ascertain how far the views of the French Emperor were in accordance with our own, Sir John Bowring, who had received the honour of knighthood in 1853, returned to China as Her Majesty's Plenipotentiary, Chief Superintendent of Trade in China, and Governor of Hong Kong. Again he sought a formal and official reception from the Viceroy, but his proposals for a meeting were declined. Difficulties increased, and culminated in the well known Arrow war, but his China career will form the subject of another notice. Sir John—after a visit to Siam, subsequently described by him in an entertaining volume—returned to England in 1859, being shipwrecked in the Red Sea on his passage. His last public employment was in 1861, when he was sent to Italy to report on our commercial relations with that newly-established kingdom.

Sir John was twice married—first, in 1816, to Maria, daughter of the late Mr. Samuel Lewin, of Hackney, Middlesex, who died in 1858 from the effects of poison administered to her by some of the "Celestials" at Hong Kong. He married secondly, in 1860, Miss Deborah Castle, daughter of Mr. Thomas Castle, of Bristol, who survives him without issue. By his former marriage Sir John had a family; his eldest son, Mr. John Charles Bowring, of Larkbeare, Exeter, is a magistrate for Devonshire; his name is known as the donor to the British Museum of a magnificent collection of Coleoptera, consisting of more than 84,000 specimens, and styled the "Bowringian Collection;" another of his sons, Mr. Lewin Bowring, lately an eminent member of the Bengal Civil Service, was private secretary to Lord Canning and Lord Elgin in India; and his fourth son, Mr. Edgar A. Bowring, C.B., for many years Registrar to the Board of Trade, and Secretary to the Royal Commission for the Great Exhibition of 1851, is the colleague of Sir John Duke Coleridge in the representation of Exeter.

IMPORTANT BANKING CASE.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH—November 19.

THE HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION V. CHALMERS, GUTHRIE, AND CO.

This was one of the many cases arising out of the bankruptcy of Messrs. Lyall, Still, and Co., of Hong Kong. The facts which gave rise to this action are as follow. In the year 1866 the defendants were the correspondents in England of Lyall, Still, and Co., who had with them a credit, or margin of £25,000. Lyall, Still, and Co. were in the habit of consigning goods to the defendants and of drawing upon them, not specifically against goods consigned, but generally on account, and at the time when the complications re-ulting in this action existed, the credit of Lyall, Still and Co. with the defendants was largely overdrawn, and gave rise to remonstrances from the defendants, but the credit of Lyall, Still and Co. with the public generally in China still remained unimpaired.

It was the custom in China for merchants either to draw clean drafts, that is, simple drafts on their correspondents, or documentary drafts, that is, drafts having bills of lading and powers of assurance annexed, forming a security for the payment of bills in addition to the ordinary acceptance. In the ordinary course of business, when these drafts were purchased by the banks or others, the documents were annexed to the drafts, and were forwarded by the purchasers to their correspondents with the drafts to be presented for acceptance, but it not unfrequently happened that the documents were not ready when the mail departed, in which case the drafts went forward, and the documents followed by the next mail. If the seller of the drafts was in good credit, his word was in such cases taken, that the documents should follow in due course.

In October, 1866, Mr. Kresser, the manager of the plaintiffs bank in China, purchased of Lyall, Still and Co., at different times, two bills for £5,000 each (being the bills which are the subject of this action), and in his evidence taken on Commission he says that he purchased them as clean bills on the assurance of Mr. Maclean, the resident partner of Lyall, Still and Co. in China, that documents would be sent by him direct to the defendants, representing goods which were to cover the bills. Mr. Kresser sent one of the drafts for £5,000 with others having documents annexed, to the London Branch, with advice that documents would follow, meaning, as was contended for the Bank, the documents which were to be sent direct to the defendants. Lyall, Still and Co., by the same mail, advised the draft with others to defendants, but did not say whether it was clean or documentary; but with the advice they sent bills of lading for 65 bales of silk, of the value of about £10,000 ($48,000), against which nothing was drawn specifically, unless the bills for £5,000 in the hands of the plaintiffs, and another for the same amount in the hands of the Comptoir d'Escompte, which were advised by the same letter, could be considered as so drawn. The defendants accepted both bills in the same form, viz.: "Accepted, payable on delivery of documents to follow." The Comptoir d'Escompte refused to take a conditional acceptance, and their draft was accepted clean and paid after Lyall, Still, and Co.'s bankruptcy. The plaintiff did not insist on an absolute acceptance.

The second draft for £5,000 came forward by the next mail, was advised as clean, but by an oversight was supposed to be bracketted in the advice with other bills marked documentary. This draft was accepted in the same form by the defendants, although they had no advice from Lyall, Still and Co. that it was documentary, and no objection made by plaintiffs. When the bills became due they were refused payment, on the ground of no documents having been delivered. It turned out, on enquiry, unless the bills of lading for the 65 bales could be considered as the documents to follow, that in fact no documents existed which could possibly follow. In these circumstances, plaintiffs were advised that either the conditions had been fulfilled in fact by the documents having come to the hands of the defendants, or in law by the fulfilment of the condition being impossible, and therefore the condition void.

This action was accordingly brought, and came on for trial, when it was withdrawn from the consideration of the jury and ordered to be turned into a special case. A long delay occurred in settling the case, as the parties could not agree upon the facts, and ultimately it was referred to an Arbitrator to settle the facts of the case, upon hearing the parties and having all the evidence taken in the cause before him. He accordingly settled the case, in which he referred to the evidence taken in the cause, and made an appendix of it. The case came before the Court last year for argument, when the Court objected to the form of the case, and required the facts to be found by the arbitrator, and stated on the case, instead of being referred to in an appendix. The arbitrator found as a fact (notwithstanding the evidence of Mr. Kresser), that the bills were purchased as documentary bills, with documents to follow, but he did not set out or refer to any part of the evidence, nor annex it to the case. The evidence, therefore, could not be looked at by the Court, and there was some difficulty in finding enough upon the face of the case for the Court to come to a decision.

Mr. Brown, Q.C., and Mr. Watkin Williams, for the plaintiffs, contended that the condition had been fulfilled by the delivery of the 65 bales, or that the condition was void, and the acceptance must be treated as absolute, as there never were in fact any documents in existence to which the condition could apply.

Sir J. Karslake, Q.C., and Sir G. Honiman, Q.C., for the defendants, contended that the plaintiffs were bound by the Arbitrator's finding that the bills were documentary, and that having acquiesced in the conditional acceptance, the onus lay on them to show that it had been performed.

The above statement of the case will serve to make intelligible the judgment of the Court which follows.

JUDGMENT.

The Lord Chief Justice: The result of the discussion has been to make it clear to my mind that the judgment in this case ought to be for the defendants. The action is brought by the plaintiffs as a Banking Company and as discounters or endorsers of two bills of exchange drawn by the firm of Lyall, Still and Co., upon the defendants, Messrs. Guthrie and Co. The bills were accepted by the drawers in a conditional form, that is to say, they are accepted "payable on delivery of documents to follow."

Now we know what is the meaning of that term with reference to a possible course of dealing which existed between the drawers and the defendants, the drawers and the Bank, who were in the habit of discounting these bills. The great majority of the bills drawn by Lyall, Still and Co., were covered by shipping documents relating to cargoes to be consigned to the defendants. They remitted bills, and when they went to the bank to get the bills discounted, and just on the eve of the departure of the mail, if the shipping documents were not ready on the moment, it was understood that the shipping documents were to follow by the next mail. That being so, in the first place were the plaintiffs, the Banking Company, aware of the course of dealing with these parties. Certainly, because they were themselves parties to that course of dealing. They knew perfectly well what was the meaning of the terms "shipping documents to follow," they knew perfectly well what was the meaning of an acceptance conditional on that event. That being so, we have the fact of these two acceptances on the delivery of the shipping documents as a condition of the payment. Were those documents to have reference to specific cargoes? That is understood to be the meaning of the term as expressly found by the case, and one can understand that such a course of dealing would be advantageous to both parties concerned, advantageous to the banker, the discounter, and to the endorsee of the bills because it secured him, having the shipping documents in his hands, against the possibilty of the acceptance, the bill not being accepted when it was presented by the drawee of the bill. On the other hand it would have been so to the party on whom the bill was drawn and accepted, because he would have those shipping documents, and the person who discounted the bill on the security of those documents would transfer them to him, so that he would have an opportunity of realising the cargoes to meet the acceptance which he had made. That being so, we have next to consider whether, when these bills have been accepted conditionally on the "delivery of shipping documents," those shipping documents have ever reached the defendants, who accepted them on those terms. That would have been for the plaintiff to show. Here is this condition. It is a conditional contract. This acceptance was not according to the ordinary custom of merchants, but according to a specific agreement between the parties. "I accept on condition of your giving me those documents." It is for the plaintiff to make out that condition. Mr. Brown submits, first, that it is established by the correspondence. Sir John Karslake has succeeded in showing that it is not so, because the letter shows just the contrary. In the first place, with regard to the bill No. 1218, which is the first bill for £5,000, that is accepted conditionally. Was it a bill discounted by the plaintiffs at Hong Kong, upon the condition that they should have shipping documents to transmit to England? I think on that there cannot be the slightest doubt. The defendants accepted upon the conditional delivery of shipping documents. Were they right in so doing? That depends on what was the nature of the transaction between the drawer of that bill out there and the plaintiffs, the banking company, out there. We cannot have the slightest doubt, when we look at the correspondence, that the nature of the transaction out there was that the bill to be discounted should be accompanied by shipping documents relating to a specific cargo consigned to the defendants, because the very letter written by the banking company out there to their correspondents here referred to this bill as a bill as to which the shipping documents are expressly stated to follow. Therefore it is quite clear that was a case in which the shipping documents were to follow, and on which the defendants were quite right in so accepting.

Then comes the question whether it was a transaction in which the plaintiffs had a right to demand the defendant's acceptance of the bill, except upon the condition which had been attached to the acceptance? Certainly not, because it is plain upon the letter of the plaintiffs out there to their correspondents here that it was a transaction in which the acceptance of that kind of bill was to depend on the shipping documents. Then, as to the second case, it appears from the correspondence what the arrangement was. In both cases specific consignments were referred to specific bills, and there is nothing to cover the particular bill in question. In the second case, there is a bill of lading, generally an open consignment, but it is quite clear that the defendants never considered that as covering this particular bill, the second bill, because they say, after enumerating the various documents, here is a bill for £5,000, which you say is in the hands of the Hong Kong Bank, but you do not tell us whether it is that bill as to which the shipping documents are to follow or not. Of course, therefore, we must presume, according to the general course of dealing, that the shipping documents are to follow, and we accept on those terms. The plaintiffs have chosen to take the acceptance on those terms, and the defendants have accepted it only on those terms, and if they have not been complied with, Lyall, Still, and Co. are liable to the plaintiffs for not enabling the defendants to fulfil the conditions of the acceptance. The defendants understood from the nature of the transaction, and the dealings between them and Lyall, Still, and Co., that where a bill was not referred to in the letter of advice, as being an open and clean bill, it must be taken as being a bill where the documents were to follow. They accepted accordingly. They have done nothing wrong. They would not have accepted it as a clean bill as having nothing against it. There is no moral blame to them. It is for the plaintiffs to show that the conditions were fulfilled; that is not shown either by the correspondence or by the facts of the case; and under those circumstances our judgment is for the defendants.

Mr. Justice Blackburn: I am of the same opinion. The plaintiffs are the holders of a bill of exchange which, upon the face of it, is a mere ordinary bill of exchange drawn by Lyall, Still, and Co., and endorsed by Lyall, Still, and Co. to the plaintiff. Now the plaintiffs, being the holders of the bill of exchange as between them and the drawers, would have a right to go to the drawee and demand acceptance. If the drawee refuses the acceptance there may be matters between the drawee and the drawer which would make the drawee liable to the drawer; but there is no privity at all between him and the holder of the bill. The holder of the bill's right is to get a simple, clean, unconditional acceptance of the bill of exchange, and if he does not get that he has a right to treat the bill as dishonoured, give notice of the dishonour, and send it back to the person who endorsed it. Now in this case the defendants did not get a clean acceptance because they wrote across the bill, "accepted payable on delivery of documents to follow," making it a consideration that they were not to pay until the documents did follow. I apprehend that was not an acceptance at all. I take it that the plaintiffs had a right to say, "we will not take this; if you do not give us a clean acceptance we will treat the bill as dishonoured, and give notice." But the plaintiffs do not choose to do so. I will state, presently, why they do not. The bank do not do it, but choose to say, "we are content to take it as it is." I apprehend that is not an acceptance of the bill; but between the plaintiff and the defendants it was a very good contract. The defendants, in consideration of that, enter into a contract that if the documents follow, and are delivered, they will pay the bill. There is no reason whatever why that is not a perfectly good contract; but then comes the question, have the documents which were to follow been delivered? Has that condition been fulfilled, or not? That is the point, and the only point.

The second bill is exactly similar, but I will deal with only one at present. Now whether the condition has been fulfilled or not depends upon what is meant by "documents to follow." That arises in this way: that it is a usage, which used to be the usage only in times of trouble and distress, but apparently, latterly, it has become common practice. At first when I knew mercantile usage a merchant would have considered himself affronted if they had offered to endorse his bill, and had said, "we will take it, provided you attach bills of lading." That was, at that time, considered as casting a slur. But recently the practice has grown up, and I am not sure that it is not a wise one (and people do not now take affront in that way), to attach bills of lading, as a matter of course. However, at Hong Kong, Messrs. Lyall and Co. do it; and the general practice seems to be to attach the documents to the bills of exchange, or draft. Then, when they attach the documents to the draft, and hand them to the bank, the holders of the draft send it on, as they ought to do, for presentation, and thereby the documents are in pledge to them. They have, therefore, good security for the draft being duly honoured. If the acceptance was a clean acceptance, without anything more, they would run a risk. If the holder of a bill of exchange had got a clean acceptance, and endorsed the bill of exchange away to another person who was to raise money, he would not do it with dishonesty, but he might do it effectually, and the acceptor of the bill of exchange would be forced to pay the draft that was in the hands of a bona fide holder, but he would not be able to get the bill of lading as a security. In order to avoid that difficulty the practice seems to have arisen for a man to accept a draft payable on delivery of the shipping documents specified, and then he is quite safe, for then, if the documents are not delivered the original holder would have no right to sue unless he gave up the documents. That is plain and intelligible. Where the documents are attached to the bill which is pledged, they become specific documents of title. There is no difficulty in dealing with them.

Now it appears there was a further laxity at Hong Kong, which was this: a draft is taken, and the person says it is drawn against certain goods, of which the documents of title are not yet to hand. If the documents of title were complete, they would be attached to the bill, if the documents were complete, they would have attached them to the bill, but, I promise they will be attached to the bill, and I will give them to you as soon as I get them, and they shall be considered as part of the bill, and the practice is in that case for them to come by the next mail. The draft comes, but there comes with it a statement that the documents are to follow by the next mail, and in pursuance of that arrangement the documents do come by the next mail. Now in order to give a security for such an executory promise as that the documents would follow, it seems absolutely necessary and essential that there should be specific documents. If it were a mere general promise "I will give you some sort of security afterwards," that would go no farther than if it had been the personal security of the man. If there is given a specific promise "I will give you the documents of title as soon as they are ready, they are not yet complete," that is an imperfect security. It partly depends on the man's honesty, and partly on his following out his engagements with precision. It is still a security, though an imperfect one. In such a case as that where the documents have yet to come, the person on whom the draft is drawn has reason to consider that that will be the case, and he considers what he will do. If he accepts generally he knows he will have the security of all the funds in his hands as factor. It appears, in this case, the defendants allowed Lyall, Still and Co. to draw to the extent of £25,000, and Lyall, Still and Co., without the defendants' consent, had overdrawn to the extent of about £4,000, for which the defendants made a severe complaint in their last letter. The sum was short of £4,000, £3,017 was the amount, consequently the defendants were not at all anxious to accept further, but the defendants had reason to believe that the documents were coming. They would naturally say, if we accept simply, we accept without security, for all that was in our hands has been exhausted; but if the documents are coming we may safely do it, and we will trust to the Hong Kong Bank, who took these from Lyall, Still and Co., to see that the documents were such as to give them reasonable security, and therefore give us reasonable security. They might very reasonably say, "We will accept this draft payable if the documents that are to follow do follow, and come to our hands." Now, if it had turned out that the documents had come to hand unpledged (and I should have said myself that there was a good deal of doubt and difficulty in saying that), I should have thought that condition fulfilled, but if it were otherwise, and they had come already pledged and earmarked, that would be a different thing, because I do not think in any sense that would be within the condition. Now, unfortunately, the arbitrator has left it uncertain as to what it was that Lyall and Co. had engaged to give when they said "the documents are to follow in these two cases." He says nothing about it, and leaves it uncertain. If there was no engagement as to anything specific, I think he ought to have said so. He simply leaves it uncertain, and says "the documents are to follow." Then the question is whether the documents that were to follow have in any way come into the hands of the defendants. I think it rests with the plaintiffs to show what documents were to follow. Shipping documents attached are pledged to one of those bills, and they come to hand. The next invoice states that bills of lading were pledged to two of the bills in the hands of the Hong Kong Bank: they come forward. Then the third simply states, here is the bill of lading, but it says nothing about its being pledged to anything; and then there are two bills drawn in favour of different persons for £10,000, and Mr. Brown's argument was that the one bill was the bill for which the documents were to follow. I can see no reason why they were to be appropriated any more to that one than the others. It therefore seems to me to be perfectly clear from the letter which has been read that it could not be the bill of lading for the invoice for $43,000, and I have no reason to suppose that that was the document that was agreed to be given. Every document that is in that letter advising them is specifically appropriated to other and different bills. Not one of those could be for that bill. The defendants in their answer complain in this way: "You had before overdrawn £600, now you overdraw £800, and now you overdraw £1,400, altogether £3,000; this is intolerable." And they might reasonably say so. If there had been documents to come, the documents would have probably covered the £3,000, and the defendants would have been safe, but it is because that was not so that they have a ground of complaint. So that it comes back to this one question—do the plaintiffs show that the documents which were to follow have come to the defendants' hands. The plaintiffs have failed to show what the documents here were. They have failed to show, as it seems to me, that the documents that came to the defendants' hands were the documents intended to follow. Taking it, therefore, that the documents never did come to the defendants' hands at all, it seems to follow from the conditional contract that the condition has not been fulfilled.

Mr. Justice MELLOR: I am of the same opinion. It is perfectly clear that the condition cannot be rejected on the ground suggested by Mr. Brown. It is neither repugnant nor ambiguous, and it is the only foundation of the liability of the defendants. It is the very ground on which they make the bargain between themselves and the person who brought the bill for their acceptance. That is very clear as it appears to me. The only other difficulty that has arisen is from some alleged obscurity in the evidence, or some want of evidence, or some want of inference to be drawn from the facts as stated. It appears to me that it lay upon Mr. Brown to show that. If there really is the defect which Mr. Brown suggests, it was the duty of his client to make it clear. I can see no evidence myself, when the facts are carefully considered, which tends to show that these documents, the foundation of the defendants' liability, had ever come to their hands.

Judgment was then entered for the defendants.

THE SILVER BURNT IN THE "AMERICA."—The San Francisco Bulletin states that a portion of the treasure recovered from the remains of the steamer America has arrived in that city, and on the 25th of October was shown to a few persons in the office of the San Francisco Assaying and Refining Works. 23 boxes of melted coin, weighing from 200lb. to 400 lb. each, were scattered about the floor of the room, and there were piles of bars and irregular masses of valuable metal lying around loose. Two pieces of the melted mass, with a length each of about three feet, a width of 18 inches, and weighing 100 lb., looked like a section of frozen clay bristling with oysters. These oysters were twenty-dollar pieces, Mexican dollars and half-dollars of American coinage, with dimes and half-dimes for young oysters, and iron spikes, bits of brass and steel, to represent the shell-fish that are wont to burrow in the bed of the ocean, the whole forming a valuable specimen of crustacea. In some instances the coins are only welded together in rolls, and at other times they form one lava-like lump. The melted matter and the coins are of a deep green colour. The large bars of bullion were less affected by the fire than the coin, and do not appear to have lost much in weight. The metal is to be re-coined. $300,000 worth of treasure, half-melted, coloured by fire and the action of the water is a curiosity which few people have an opportunity to see.

THE BURMESE EMBASSY.—The Chief Ambassador and the other members of the Burmese Embassy left Dover on the 15th inst. in their screw steam yacht. His Excellency and suite were escorted from the Lord Warden Hotel by Captain Bruce, R.N., Admiralty superintendent; Mr. W. Forster, Vice-consul for Belgium, and others. Prince Arthur was on the pier to witness the departure. A large number of people were also on the promenade.

The steamer Altona, which is announced for despacth to China, goes out for local service, and is consigned to Messrs. William Pustau and Co.

A TESTIMONIAL has been presented by the Mayor, Aldermen, &c., of Brighton to Mr. William Curtis, late proprietor of the Brighton Gazette, who proceeds to China.

The small steamer Sea Gull, for Hong Kong, passed Malta on 12th, all well. The captain and crew were sanguine of getting out safely.

A DENIAL is given to the statement that an Italian flotilla has left for Borneo to establish a penal settlement.

THE SUEZ CANAL TARIFF CONTROVERSY.

THE position taken by the Turkish Government with regard to the disputed question of the calculation of tonnage on vessels passing through the Suez Canal is one which cannot be regarded without regret by all who have watched the progress of the great work of the greatest engineer of the day, and all who have the interests of the shareholders who entrusted him with their capital really at heart. On the very eve of financial success, and in the face of a continually increasing traffic, the country which must most largely benefit by the development of the Canal seems bent on checking the traffic, and risking the very existence of the work, by a course of ruinous litigation, based on a mere quibble, which no thoughtful man can believe will be determined in its favour. "The "Porte does not recognise the right of a French tribunal to "place an interpretation upon a concession granted by the "Turkish Government." In other words, the most unpractical and uncommercial Government in the world—the "sick man" whose loans are regarded with the greatest distrust—refuses to have its own contract interpreted according to the rules of common sense and commercial usage. And this decision has been arrived at at the very time when the financial embarrasments of the Suez Canal Company have long ceased to be a secret. No doubt M. DE LESSEPS is responsible for this suicidal policy. It must rest with the shareholders to set him right, if they would preserve their property to themselves. It was an error from the first that the designer of the work should be the Chairman of the Board. No one will suspect us of disrespect to the great engineer, but it is a matter of history that constructive and administrative ability seldom go together. The so-called "concession" of the Turkish Government was as plain as A B C. It was on the strength of its being based on European principles, and subject to European interpretation, that it attracted European capital. What, then, becomes of M. DE LESSEPS's proposal to "invite the Powers to send representatives to a Congress to determine "—what was distinctly laid down, and never doubted—"an uniform system of tonnage?" It is tempting fate for the shareholders to permit this state of things to continue. The company is declared to be French, and it is in good credit—the Porte and M. DE LESSEPS want to prove it Turkish, and if they succeed they will reduce the value of the shares to nil. Our greatest steam company—the P. and O.—stands aloof, and have, we believe, suspended operations which would have been of benefit to the Canal, in sheer astonishment and disgust at the prevarication of the directors. The obstinate action of M. DE LESSEPS is no doubt attributable to the effete Protectionist doctrines which were lately galvanised into circulation in France only to be repudiated by the unanimous voice of commercial men. That M. DE LESSEPS will persevere in the compliant and ignorant Eastern kingdom is likely enough. It is for the shareholders to prevent him if they would save their property. The expenses of litigation alone will be enormous, to say nothing of the cost of the proposed "Congress"—and all the Congresses in the world could never alter the terms of a contract. They could only confirm them in their integrity; and, if the shareholders insist on their being confirmed without delay, they will give an impetus to the construction of vessels which will soon fill their Canal with a continuous stream of shipping, and recoup themselves for the apparent losses which are attendant on the commencement of all great speculations.

THE FAILURE OF BOWLES BROS. AND CO. AND THE JOINT NATIONAL AGENCY.

IT is a trite proverb that "experience must be dearly bought,"—but we do not envy our American cousins the very costly lesson they have given the Japanese in the failure of the above-named concerns. The figures submitted to the meeting of creditors at the Cannon-street Hotel will go far to shake the confidence in our new friends in the Far East in those who have made them the warmest protestations. The Americans have bidden high for the good opinion of the Japanese, and we are far from confounding such transactions as those of the Messrs. BOWLES with the general commercial principles of the merchants of the United States. But the effect is the same; £83,000 of liabilities against £3,500 of assets—putting aside items "which it is impossible to estimate" —present a miserable prospect for the creditors, to say nothing of the appropriation of securities to their own use, for which Mr. ROBERT BOWLES has been called to account at the Mansion House Police-court. We believe the amount of deposits lodged with the Joint National Agency, and other Japanese now in this country, amounts to £20,000, and the sudden stoppage and cutting off of their funds has inflicted the greatest possible hardship on the various students scattered over the country. It has been a game of bowls in more senses than one, and now the BOWLES have gone, the Japanese will certainly think themselves the "green" on which the game was played. We can but note these things—remedy is out of the question. The loss of prestige and confidence through such occurrences cannot, however, be over-estimated. Had due inquiry been made, the present loss might have been avoided. The Messrs. BOWLES were directors of the Agency, and held 100,000 shares of £1 each, of which they had only paid up one shilling.

LI HUNG-CHANG.

IT is an ill wind which blows nobody any good, and it now appears to be possible that the floods which have of late been desolating the country in the neighbourhood of Tient-sin may indirectly exercise a beneficial influence on the relations of foreign countries with China. It will be remembered that in a memorial worded in terms of almost more than usual self-glorification LI HUNG-CHANG recently announced to his Imperial master that the embankments of the rivers of Chili, which last year gave way by reason of the swollen currents, had under his superintendence been substantially repaired; and he even went so far as to petition that honours should be distributed among his subordinates in the work. Scarcely had the vermilion pencil signed the magic words "Respect this" to the usual postscript of approval of his memorial, when the floods again rose, and again the banks of the Yung-ting river gave way, and again the waters emptied themselves on the plain. Fortunately, in the cause of truth, there exists among the officials of China a class of men who are to the EMPEROR much what the "King's Eyes" were to the rulers of ancient Greece, and one of these, PIEN PAO-CHUEN by name, took upon himself to enlighten his Imperial Majesty on the real value of the work performed by LI HUNG-CHANG and his underlings, the consequence of which was that in spite of the presentation to the Throne by the VICEROY of a very "felicitous omen" in the shape of some double-eared corn, which he reported as having sprouted in the Province under his control, he was handed over for punishment to the Board of Civil Office, "for not having better directed his subordinates regarding their work." The importance to be attached to this rebuke will doubtless depend on the line of policy which Prince KUNG and his associates may be intending to adopt towards foreigners. It may mean nothing, or it may mean a great deal. Should the Government be inclined to meet the wishes of the Foreign Ministers on the subject of the Audience Question, his reprimand thus publicly administered might become a powerful lever in their hands with which to depose this great anti-foreign leader from the prominent position he at present occupies.

In another column will be found a correspondence on the Coolie trade, which brings up again the convention entered into by Sir Rutherford Alcock restricting the terms of service to five years, and which practically stopped the orders from our West India Colonies. We do not think that the writers on the subject are just towards the West Indian Committee. It is well known that they employed Mr. Sampson, of Canton, to engage their Coolies, and we have always heard that the Coolies shipped by him were perfectly aware of the nature of their agreement. We understand that a joint protest has been sent by the British and American Government to Portugal against the Macao Coolie traffic.

His Excellency Iwakura and the other chiefs of the Embassy, Sir Harry Parkes, General Alexander, and a distinguished company of city bankers and merchants, were entertained on the 19th by the Goldsmiths' Company, at their fine hall in St. Martin's-le-Grand. As soon as possible now that Her Majesty has returned to London the chief members of the Embassy will be presented and take formal leave. We understand that Sir Harry Parkes, accompanied by Lady Parkes, will leave for Japan next January, to resume his post at Yedo as our Minister and Plenipotentiary Extraordinary.

We understand that Mr. Douglas, who was specially engaged by the trustees of the British Museum to catalogue the Chinese and Japanese works in that establishment, has made considerable progress in the work. We believe that the catalogue will contain in Chinese or Japanese characters the exact title of every work, and when we say that many of these characters have to be specially cut for the printers, our readers will not be surprised to learn that the catalogue will probably occupy two years in passing through the press.

The negotiations between the Dutch Government and the Netherlands India Steam Company for running an alternate monthly line between Batavia and Australia have not yet been completed. In addition to the steamer which we noticed as launched for the Company's service, we hear that a purchase has been made of the Lord Elphinstone, a steamer of about 700 tons and 150-horse power. It is expected that both these vessels will be despatched by the end of the year. Another one is also on the stocks on the Clyde.

We understand that the Rev. W. A. Russell, of Ningpo, now in this country on leave, is likely to be shortly consecrated Bishop of North China. The salary of this appointment has for the present been undertaken by the Church Missionary Society. No decision has, we believe, been arrived at in regard to the Bishopric of Victoria, Hong Kong, or the Chaplaincy of Yokohama.

The Directors of the Pacific Mail Company have chartered three screw steamers, under the British flag, to supplement their fleet on the China, Japan, and San Francisco route. They will probably load out from here, passing through the Suez Canal.

THE COOLIE TRADE.

In our last issue we noticed a letter from Mr. Ohlson, Secretary to the West India Committee. Mr. Jenkins, who conducted an Inquiry into the Condition of the Coolies about three years since, now makes the following comments on it; and a writer, signing himself "Veritas," whom we take to have been in Peking, takes up the question in the interest of the Chinese Government. We are astounded that "Veritas," who must be well acquainted with the facts, should so far misrepresent the action taken by the Americans to suppress this horrible coolie trade. The Americans were really the first to engage in and profit by it, and not until Sir Harry Parkes (then Consul at Canton) took action in 1860 to expose its enormities did the United States Government move and finally pass the Act of Congress of 1862 prohibiting American vessels from engaging in the trade. "Veritas" does not make any allusion to the "Chinese Passenger Act" passed by us some seven years previously, which completely stopped the traffic in British ships.

"Mr. Ohlson's letter reproduces the worn-out fact which he and others have given us ad nauseam. Dr. Underhill has done duty I know not how often. Canon Kingsley observed the system in the best coolie-worked colony in the world, under the auspices of his friend Arthur Gordon, whose ability and decision enabled him to force upon the planters such legislation as the planters of British Guiana are now opposing tooth and nail. The gentlemen who make such plausible professions of anxiety for the coolies' interests are endeavouring to thwart the Colonial-office in its efforts to put the coolie on a fair footing with his master—a position which I assert, and the report proves, he does not occupy. I challenge Mr. Ohlson and the whole West India Committee to disprove this assertion. When Mr. Ohlson declared that the report 'sufficiently indicates the system' now existent, I should like to know the meaning of this peremptory despatch from Downing-street (Sept. 13, 1872) to Governor Scott:—

"The course taken by you respecting the Immigration Bill is entirely in accordance with the wishes and intentions of Her Majesty's Government. The elective members of the Court of Policy are under a serious misapprehension if they believe that Her Majesty's Government could consent to relinquish the leading provisions of the Bill. You should distinctly explain to the Court of Policy that Her Majesty's Government regards this legislation as indispensable, in consequence of the report of the Coolie Commissioners; and that when they 'strongly recommended the Draft Ordinance to the early and favourable consideration of the Court of Policy' they did so in the confident expectation that the Court would understand that it was necessary that no time should be lost in passing it, and that they would cheerfully co operate in measures which are so essential to the welfare of so large a part of the population of the colony. The Court must remember that the coolies are placed under contracts of a very peculiar nature, by which they forego during a term of years to dispose freely of their own labour; and that Her Majesty's Government, however desirous they may be to secure to the colony adequate supplies of labour, are bound to insist upon such conditions as they may deem necessary for the protection of the immigrants. It is my duty to state that if undue delays are interposed in the way of the legislation now proposed, or if the decisions arrived at by Her Majesty's Government after full consideration of the Commissioners' report are rejected, it will be impossible to permit the continuance of coolie emigration to British Guiana.

"In this grave determination the Colonial-office is warranted by the facts, and ought to be supported by the public opinion of England."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE TIMES."

Sir,—In The Times of the 12th inst. a letter appeared from Mr. J. L. Ohlson, secretary to the West India Committee, on "Coolie Immigration," in which the following passage occurs:—

"The stoppage of Chinese emigration in 1866 requires a word of explanation. It occurred not because the Chinese Government withdrew its permission, or was dissatisfied with the treatment of the immigrants, but because it was induced to impose certain provisions which would have greatly increased the expense of the immigration."

It is to be regretted that the West India Committee, in putting forth this statement, did not complete the information offered by telling the public what those "certain provisions" were which would have greatly increased the expense of the immigration, in order that we might judge whether the provisions so imposed were reasonable and just or otherwise. I trust you will allow me to complete the records by the addition of the following facts.

In 1861, it being matter of notoriety that the regulations under which Chinese coolies were shipped for the American continent and adjacent islands did not suffice to prevent a traffic from Macao and elsewhere in the China seas being carried on under foreign flags which was only a slave trade in disguise, negotiations were entered into at Peking by the British and French Governments with a view to the better organisation of the whole system. In pursuance of this object a joint Convention was ultimately entered into by the British and French representatives at Peking with the Government of China, by which increased security was given for the shipment of such coolies only as were willing to go, with a full knowledge of the conditions of their contract for their better treatment on the voyage, and a return passage at the end of five years, the longest term of servitude being limited to that period. This latter mainly was the provision objected to by the planters in their own interest as greatly increasing the expense of the immigration. In consequence of the opposition from the colonies and of the French shipowners, who feared it would interfere with almost the only freight they ever earn in China in the transport of these live cargoes, both the British and French Governments refused to ratify the Convention. The Chinese, though much pressed, have ever since refused to strike out these provisions, and the results have been the stoppage of emigration from the Chinese ports, but not from Macao or Hong Kong, each claiming to be foreign territory under Portugal and Great Britain, and free to disregard all Chinese legislation. From the former of these colonies there has been no interruption to the nefarious traffic, and each year from 15,000 to 20,000 unfortunate Chinese take their departure. Each year, too, can show parallels to the horrors so lately perpetrated on board the coolie ship, the Dolores Ugarte, sailing from Macao for Peru, in which the whole living cargo was left to perish in a burning ship with the hatches battened down by the crew. And from Hong Kong, notwithstanding all the humane legislation and care to insure that none but voluntary emigrants leave the harbour, and only under conditions of food and space calculated to insure their safety on the voyage, it cannot be denied that we lay ourselves open to grave suspicion on the part of the Chinese that we encourage and lend a certain sanction to the shipment from the Portuguese colony in sight, so fruitful in tragedies and revolting cruelties. Even assuming that no abuses are practised under our own supervision (rather a bold assumption, perhaps), is it not an evil example, and an abuse of our privilege, to convert our colony into a depot for coolie emigration under conditions formally disapproved by the Chinese Government, whose subjects these coolies are, and with which we have a treaty of amity and commerce?

As to the provision of a return passage and a limitation of five years for the term of service—unless the coolie chose of his own free will to engage for a second term—the planters may claim to be the best judges of the increased expense, and whether, under such conditions, it will pay, or is otherwise worth their while, to have labour from China. But, on the other hand, the Chinese Government have the undoubted right to insist upon such condition if they think it necessary, and there is a remarkable consensus of opinion among all not directly interested in the employment of such labour, after having had abundant opportunities of judging on the spot, that without this provision, honestly carried out, there is practically no difference, save in name, between coolie labour under contracts for longer terms and with no facilities for return, and slavery. There are, moreover, other Governments besides the Government of China, which have the same opinion, and have acted upon it, in this matter of coolie emigration. Great Britain and France, as late as the year 1860, entered into Conventions, the object of which was to permit France to engage Indian labourers from our territories for terms of labour in Reunion. The first was signed at Paris, July 25, 1860. In this it is provided by Article 8 that the contracts to be entered into with the labourers shall make stipulation for the duration of the engagement not to exceed five years, "at the expiration of which the emigrant shall receive a return passage to India at the expense of the French Government," and "if he consents to contract a new engagement he will be entitled to a bounty, and will retain his right to a return passage at the expiration of such second engagement." It is further stipulated that "the right of the immigrant to a return passage extends to his wife and his children who quitted India under the age of ten years, as well as those born in the colony." In a second Convention between the two countries relative to the emigration of labourers from India to the French colonies, signed also at Paris, July 1, 1861, the same principles are reaffirmed, and similar stipulations expressly insisted upon. See Hertslett's Treaties for these years. How is it possible that two of the foremost nations of the civilised world, both Christian, the one representing the Protestant faith and the other the Roman Catholic, could, after signing two such Conventions with each other, refuse to recognise on the part of the Chinese Government a right to stipulate for similar provisions for the protection of their own subjects? And what must the Chinese rulers and people think of two European nations thus comporting themselves—with one measure of protection and justice for the Indian and another for the Chinese labourers?

I am very sure the public opinion of this country once enlightened as to the true facts will never endorse a policy so utterly unworthy of a civilised nation. If we cannot act with common honesty or consistency in our dealings with an Eastern race, let us at least cease to set ourselves up as humanitarians, animated with an earnest desire to put down slavery, whatever specious form it may take. Let us, above all, cease to declaim at public meetings with eloquent rhetoric on the horrors of a traffic carried on under our own flag by British agents and with the aid of British capital. Such is the existing state of things in the South Seas and the Chinese alike; such, with slight modification in minor particulars has been the slave trade of Eastern Africa, which at the end of a long series of years only we have at last been shamed into an effort to stop. Why have all these horrors of kidnapping and slavery been allowed to continue year after year without any real or honest effort on the part of civilised States to put a stop to them as effectually as by a united effort they stamped out piracy as soon as it was found to be inconvenient and injurious to commerce? Each nation in turn has seemed to say, "Am I my brother's keeper?" while deeds worthy of the bucaniers on the Spanish Main two centuries ago have been done in open day, and under every flag in succession, without a hand being raised to stop them or execute justice. Each in turn has had some interests to serve at the expense of all this wrong and suffering, and so the world has shut its eyes and looked the other way, while the man who had fallen among thieves was allowed to perish by the roadside without one good Samaritan to have pity upon him and come to his rescue, though at his own cost. The United States of America alone have taken any step to mark their honest disapproval by passing an Act of Congress making it a penal offence to carry any indentured Chinese under their flag. Why does Great Britain not follow so good an example, and at least purge the country of all overt complicity with the acts of slavers and kidnappers? Were we to do this, and stop all shipment of coolies under contract from Hong Kong, we might then with clean hands seek the co-operation of all other European Powers to join in a common effort to stop slavery in every form on the high seas by treating all ships found engaged in the traffic as pirates. In less than two years a slaver or a coolie ship would be quite as rare as a pirate. Then, and not before, it would be time to see whether by common consent such ample security could not be taken for the efficient protection of labour voluntarily supplied by Asiatic races, and to decide whether labourers could be safely draughted from the overcrowded labour markets of the East to the fertile lands of the West suffering from a dearth with mutual benefit. I believe a system of emigration could be so organised as to secure all the beneficial results with few, or none, of the abuses which now make it a reproach to civilisation wherever it has taken any large development. But one condition, I am convinced, is essential to this end, and that is the condition twice insisted upon in successive Conventions by England and France—a limited term of service (not exceeding five years) and a return passage. Were emigration from China carried out on this basis, and with adequate security for fair wages and good treatment, there would within a very few years be no need of kidnapping to secure as large a supply of labour as all the West could employ, and this without any expense of engagement, or passage, either out or back. If a few of the many thousands of those who have been violently or fraudulently taken from their homes were enabled to return with the accumulated savings of five years' well-remunerated labour, and bringing back good accounts of their treatment in those distant colonies whither they had been carried, the difficulty would before this have been one of selection, not of search. I found this conclusion upon the following facts, perfectly well known by all who have been in the Eastern seas:—When the first reports of the goldfields of California, and later of Australia, came to be generally known in China, and ships lay in the harbour of Hong Kong with a flag at the main on which the Chinese characters of Kin-shan (Gold Hills) were written, signifying that they were passage ships to those golden regions, not hundreds, but thousands, were found willing to venture all they had, and start on their voyage to those distant and unknown lands. But long before there was any question of gold-fields, and for many generations past, the overflowing population of the Chinese coasts has crossed the Straits and peopled the whole Archipelago from Java and Manila to Australia in search of labour and its remuneration. Not even the prejudice against them manifested in the most violent and oppressive forms both in Australia and California has sufficed to deter successive swarms of colonists from finding their own way across the seas in both directions. Are these not proofs sufficient to show that a remunerative field for labour is the only inducement necessary to secure the spontaneous supply from these great labour reserves in China of as much as can be profitably employed? The main obstacle has arisen from the rapacity, violence, and dishonesty of the emigration agencies, and the vileness of the native instruments set in motion by the capital of foreigners to entrap or kidnap Chinese who had no desire to emigrate at all. Honesty would really in this, as in so many other cases, have been the best policy; while the policy based upon more sordid and less defensible principles has only met its due reward in the impossibility of obtaining any adequate supply of labour; to which must be added the opprobrium resting upon all civilised nations for the horrors permitted under their respective flags, and the wrongs so persistently inflicted upon inferior races unable to defend themselves against the superior force of Europeans.

VERITAS.

(THE TIMES.)

Within the last few days a very old question has been re-opened in our columns, and the unabated interest which the controversy excites conveys evidence not only of its indestructible vitality, but also, we fear, of its insoluble and almost hopeless character. In some parts of the world there is an over-abundant population; in others a strong demand for the labour of men's hands. That one of these conditions should be applied in relief of the other is a proposition so obvious a to need no proof. In fact, there is nobody found to deny that under some system or the other the transport of labourers to fields of labour is a thing to be promoted and encouraged. But what is this "system" to be? How and on what principle are its regulations to be framed? What are the conditions necessary to prevent it from becoming a "slave trade in disguise;" and how is the protection due to the immigrant to be reconciled with the fair interests of his employers? Let us here quote the words of a correspondent whose information is excellent, and whose bias is probably not greater than that of most other parties to the controversy:—"I have thought and said that, within proper restriction, with improved regulations, and under careful supervision, the immigration of Coolies may be made fruitful of good. What is it that makes me hesitate or doubt? It is the temper of the planters themselves—their sensitiveness, their irritability at criticism, and their opposition to reforms." So speaks Mr. Jenkins, and we admit at once that in comparison with other censors he has given the planters pretty fair words. We dare say they are, as a class, disposed to recent interference between their labourers and themselves, and as little inclined as most other people to welcome the changes introduced as "reforms." But, as our correspondent must be well aware, there is another side to this question; nor would it be difficult to found "hesitation or doubt" on the infirmities to which nature, as well in Coolies as in planters, is commonly liable. These labourers are not always what they should be, especially when their ideas of their own rights have been expanded by indiscreet friends. Many persons will be able to remember the course of affairs in Jamaica and other West India islands after the emancipation of the slaves, when, in fact, it was found practically impossible to obtain any efficient labour except under conditions provoking the cry of "slavery in disguise." The question, indeed, is whether any stipulations calculated to satisfy the employers must not always necessarily involve such an amount of "involuntary servitude" as would bring the result to something admitting of the name of slavery. A Coolie immigrant must, if his labour is to be worth buying contract to sell it for a term of years, and he is not, perhaps, very likely to have his heart in his work; yet if the planter is not only to find him in wages but to pay for his journey out and home, he is entitled to look for some sufficient return.

There is, however, one notable exception to these generalisations. The Chinese, whose case is well stated by our correspondent "Veritas," are the best of immigrants. They are honestly and uniformly willing to work for their wages; they are docile, patient, apt, and thrifty. If left to themselves, or provided with ordinary facilities for migration, they will of their own accord carry their labour to a good market, make a good bargain for themselves, and even, in some cases, provide for their own return. Some years ago it was found in California that two distinct streams of Chinamen were constantly flowing, one Eastward and the other Westward. It had been apprehended that the American population of the province might be swamped by these Asiatics, but it was soon discovered that the departures were almost as regular as the arrivals. We should be disposed, therefore, to look upon almost any story of "slavery in disguise" as inherently improbable when told of Chinamen. Notwithstanding their long seclusion from the world, there are no people who go abroad more readily, or are more sensible of the advantages offered them by foreign labour markets. On the other hand, it cannot be questioned that the nefarious proceedings in the Polynesian Seas deserve the character imputed to them. Indeed, the "labour-ventures" described in our Australian Correspondence amount—not to "slavery in disguise"—but to downright piracy and man-stealing. The actual slave trade on the East Coast of Africa could be nothing worse; in fact, it is probably something rather better. But all these stories of kidnapping and slave-driving must be carefully distinguished from the case recently raised, and now before us. To such stories there is really only one side; but here it is otherwise, and though we do not affect to determine an interminable inquiry, the fact should not be overlooked or forgotten.

What, for instance, does Mr. Jenkins himself reveal in his letter? He quotes almost involuntarily, though certainly with little compliment, half-a-dozen authorities directly opposed to his own conclusions. We could add, with little trouble, as many more to the same effect. The shield has its white as well as its black side, and so it was from the very beginning. Indeed, just when the Emancipation Act became a public question the planters engaged a gentleman of considerable repute to lecture in various parts of the country on their behalf, and rewarded him munificently for what proved by no means an unsuccessful tour. However, there is some comfort for us in Mr. Jenkins's communication. He testifies to the existence of a place where the imported labour of immigrants is really employed on satisfactory and successful terms, and what has been done once and in one country can, we should hope, be done again and in another. Yet an impartial reader might be disposed to suspect that this state of things was due rather to compulsion applied to one side than to a balance established evenly between the two. Mr. Jenkins, in fact, speaks of the legislation in question as having been "forced" upon the planters, and though we do not here contest the propriety of the compulsion, yet compulsion there clearly was. Altogether the problem is far more difficult than might at first sight be imagined. In Jamaica—the most conspicuous of examples—it can hardly be said to have ever been solved at all. The negroes were emancipated; they obtained natural and rightful freedom, but they never did become, as "free-labourers," that patient, hardworking, and industrious race which we were told to look for. The Coolie, Mr. Jenkins thinks, should be put "on a fair footing" with his master. The claim has certainly been both asserted and admitted in cases nearer home; but if the reader will only reflect on what a master might not unreasonably expect, as contrasted with what the friends of the immigrant are uniformly inclined to exact, he will soon see the difficulty of reconciling the two demands. A labourer in a strange country, bound to a foreign master for at least a moderate term of years, unable during that period to mend or change his position, and left to endure as he best may the conditions of, perhaps, an ill-conditioned bargain, is, indeed, a helpless kind of creature, and it is fortunate that sympathies for such creatures have been always and actively forthcoming. On the other hand, however, we have the admission, from the very nature of the case, that it is his interest to get thus employed, and the necessary conclusion that it must be made worth the planter's while to employ him. Perhaps, after what has been now repeated and re-written on the subject, our readers will be little inclined to wonder at the irrepressible and interminable character of the question it is found to suggest.

(COMMUNICATED.)

Upwards of twelve months ago I sketched out in your columns the probable future of Ceylon as not depending on coffee alone, but exporting other products then only dreamed of, and I pointed out large quantities of available land suitable for the cultivation of tea and chinchona, in a climate which nothing could beat for healthiness. Other lands I alluded to in hotter and drier districts equally well suited for the growth of cotton. Scarcely did I expect, however, that so soon action would be taken in the matter. The specimens of tea then being grown only as experiments have now been tested by an experienced cultivator. The report of the quality is so favourable that already one large company has given orders to fell a block of land and commence the culture on a large scale. The quinine extracted from our experimental chinchonas has been reported upon with equal favour, and inquiries are now being made for blocks of land on which it will grow. And no doubt but it will soon be undertaken, no longer as an experiment, but as an industry of the country. No move has yet been made in cotton, but silk has been experimented upon with marked success, and Government have promised every encouragement to experiments tending to introduce this as an article of commerce in the island. The new Governor, Mr. Gregory, has already shown an earnest desire to develop the previously hidden resources of the country, by encouraging every industry which may be expected to add to the island's wealth and importance. His speech at the opening of this, his first Council, is elaborate and comprehensive, big with prospects and full of hope. Chief among the good things in store for our island is the message he sent to the Council since delivering his opening speech, to the effect that he had received the authority of the Secretary of State to commence the breakwater. Let us hope this work will be vigorously undertaken by the new Governor and concluded during his rule.

The Governor is at home in harbour matters, and the inauguration of such a great and important undertaking could hardly have fallen upon a man more conversant with such works, and who will at once recognise this as the key to the future greatness of Colombo among the ports of the East. Long has she waited for it, but the prospect is now not distant. If at the same time the new Governor can see his way to undertake and carry out the railway extension from Nawalapitiya to Badulla he will have done during his rule the two works of the greatest magnitude that have ever been undertaken in Ceylon—works, too, which will and must be reproductive. As to the money, that should not be difficult to raise. From the present railway sinking fund the debentures are being retired as they fall due, without a single fresh loan or extension, and in a few years that first railway (from Colombo to Kandy) will be the property of the island free of any burden. The credit of the colony never was so good as at present, and I doubt not but that any amount could be raised for such works as those alluded to. Not only are the debentures, still outstanding against the old railway, being retired as they fall due; but the amount necessary to complete the present extension to Nawalapitiya, and which was estimated at £150,000 a year ago, has been reduced to £75,000—the other £75,000 having been saved from revenue. And even the £75,000 that will have to be borrowed is expected to be got in the country without placing a single debenture in the home market, so that should money be required for the Badulla extension there should surely be no difficulty in borrowing it, seeing the island is able and willing to do so much for herself. Two very important new measures have been also inaugurated by the new Governor—one the conservation of forests, a thing very much required, for, by paying a trifle, any man could formerly go and hack and cut down any quantity of the most valuable timber. The other is a museum for preserving specimens of the natural history and antiquities of the island. If Mr. Gregory would go a step further, and establish a zoological garden for its live specimens of animated nature, he would confer a still further benefit upon the community over which he presides.

By the new arrangement regarding timber, forest trees will not only not be allowed to be needlessly and wastefully destroyed, but the land will be replanted—so that in course of time new forests will spring up in place of the old. The Governor seems in doubt whether those requiring timber should get a permit to cut as formerly, and where they liked, or whether the trees should be pointed out to them by the Government Inspector, or whether all should be cut by the Government, and brought to a certain spot and sold. Undoubtedly this last is the only safe way, and the only mode by which the Government will be able to have a thorough control over the timber to be sold, as well as over the land to be replanted.

THE EMPEROR'S MARRIAGE AND THE AUDIENCE QUESTION.

(SATURDAY REVIEW.)

The future ruler of China has been permitted, at the age of seventeen, to assume the matrimonial responsibilities which, abundant as they are under the Chinese system, form but a prelude to the cares of his immense Imperial sway. Upon this fact our own interest in the recent marriage hinges. While the Emperor continued still under tutelage a ready excuse for inaction in many essential respects was at the service of those in whose hands the direction of affairs rested. Not only have frequent remonstrances on the part of the foreign representatives concerning breaches of treaty provisions, and their counsels with respect to the internal state of the country, been met by appeals for indulgence during the Emperor's minority, but the same fact has served to keep in abeyance a question which must operate as a turning-point in all the relations of China with foreign Powers. Up to the present moment, although treaties of amity and commerce with all the principal nations of the world have been signed, and five or six foreign embassies are permanently lodged at Peking, no overt act has been committed by which the pretensions of the Chinese sovereignty to universal dominion are really compromised. The Ta Hwang-ti remains still, in the estimation of all his subjects, the one universal ruler who, despite all temporary reverses and curtailments of power, is endowed by Heaven with the functions of supremacy over the entire human race. If, in the treaties that have been entered into within the last few years an equality on the part of European sovereigns, and even of an American President, with Heaven's Vicegerent is intimated, these pretensions are unknown to all but a very restricted number of the Chinese people, and they are probably, without exception, secretly ridiculed by those most familiar with their existence. The entire polity of China is founded upon the notion of the Emperor's divine personality, and of his superiority, in virtue of his station, over every other created being. To abandon this conception of the Imperial dignity is to yield the basis of a belief which alone justifies the cherished immobility of the Chinese. Even during his minority, therefore, the youthful Emperor has habitually received the homage of his Ministers and of the vast official body in the form which acknowledges his unlimited supremacy. The "three kneelings and nine knockings of the forehead on the ground" which constitute the ceremony called kotow have daily been performed before him; and to the Chinese mind it still remains inconceivable that any human being may approach the sacred presence save in this posture of self abasement. Yet an innovation in this respect looms foremost among the consequences of the young Emperor's accession to power. The envoys of seven or eight Western nations stand ready to claim the right of audience with the sovereign whose majority has been represented as the term to which the redress of all grievances must be postponed. They will appear before him as representatives of kings and rulers who address him on an equal footing; and we may be sure that neither kneelings nor forehead-knockings will be included in their programme of etiquette. Pretensions of this kind involve so patent a surrender of the claim to universal sovereignty that resistance may be expected to be prolonged to the utmost possible limit. None of the treaties with China expressely stipulate the right of audience, which seems to have been left to flow as a natural corollary from their general tenor. It is open to the Chinese Government, therefore, to contest the whole question of the privilege itself, and there can be little doubt of this being done with characteristic pertinacity.

A retrospect of the precedents of their diplomacy shows that the Chinese are singularly apt to take a stand upon one point in their line of defence against foreign intrusion, unmoved by any reasoning or arguments until the last and most powerful of all is brought into play. Then the defence is perseveringly shifted to the next outwork A continuous policy in this respect may be clearly traced. Without going back to the weary wranglings of the East India Company's days, we may observe it in the refusal to accept a representative of the British sovereign forty years ago in the person of Lord Napier; next in the obstinate and almost successful opposition to the extension of trading points along the coast; afterwards, in the contest, dexterously prolonged during well nigh fifteen years, against the admission of Europeans into Canton; and again when this question had been settled at the bayonet's point, in the desperate effort made to prevent the establishment of foreign legations at Peking. Although worsted successively in all these struggles, the Chinese have nevertheless perceived an advantage in the time they have gained by the political strategy employed. The audience question has furnished in a twofold manner material for similar tactics. It has served, in the first place, to postpone during a number of years past the consideration of pressing questions which have been reserved under vague promises of a settlement after the Emperor's majority; and it will now in all probability be made a subject of contention as regards details which may achieve the object of consuming further time. The experience of the last five years has tended more and more to persuade the Chinese that the day is at hand when, in conformity with the prediction of their venerated statesman, Tseng-kwo-Fan, European nations will be weakened and China strong. Scarcely had the authorities at Peking begun fully to appreciate the advantages won for them (almost without their own knowledge) by the insidious Burlingame mission, in obtaining from Mr. Gladstone's Government their pledge to a policy of total inaction in China, when the German victories of 1870 occurred to relieve Prince Kung and his colleagues of all fear respecting the penalties likely to be exacted by France for the massacre of her subjects at Tientsin. The mortifying repulse of an American invasion by some petty Korean forts in the ensuing year helped on the revival of the old feeling of contempt for the nations of the West, and Chinese arrogance has shown itself in full development of late in the conduct of the haughty Li Hung-chang, the most powerful among Chinese statesmen of the day. While our representatives have been instructed to act with complete deference to Chinese prejudices, and to eschew the slightest dependence upon physical force in their negotiations, the Governor of Tientsin has shown himself busy in fortifying the approaches to the capital with every appliance of modern science, taking little pains to conceal the object which these martial preparations are intended to further. We have certainly no reason to impugn in any way the abstract right of the Chinese to lavish their money on rifled cannon and electric torpedoes, which would probably serve, after all, but poorly to resist a serious European attack; but as an obtrusive symptom of the temper at present prevailing in the Chinese official mind the armaments at Tientsin are worthy of attention. They betoken an extreme unlikelihood that the admission of European representatives to audience with the young Emperor will be speedily arranged on a satisfactory footing. At the same time the Chinese have irretrievably committed both themselves and all concerned to the necessity of pressing the question to a solution, by their persistence in referring to the future decision of the sovereign himself the diplomatic difficulties that have arisen of late years. The attempted revision of the British commercial treaty was thrown into abeyance on this ground; the settlement of the French grievances connected with the massacre in 1870 awaits the delivery of a letter addressed by M. Thiers to the Emperor by the French envoy in person; and now the German Government is about to undertake the negotiation of a revised treaty in lieu of the instrument which has completed its appointed term. The audience question will meet all these and other diplomatic undertakings on the threshold, and it will be strange if the usual Chinese policy of procrastination be not again displayed. Behind the tactics of delay there now stands, moreover, for the first time, a menace of serious resistance; but both one and the other need only be met by firmness to be forced to give way; and if it be too much to hope for a display of this necessary quality on our own part, there is still reason to believe that other Powers will not hesitate to occupy the place which Great Britain seems willing to surrender.

THE TIMES' SHANGHAI CORRESPONDENT.

There is no news down from Peking about the Audience Question, but letters say there is an uneasy feeling there that the French are preparing not only to press, but to enforce their demands: and Chinese rumour magnifies the number of gunboats and other war vessels ordered up to assist the Minister in his designs. As there are several precedents for the Emperor receiving foreign Ambassadors, as the Chinese have been taught the futility of opposing foreigners when thoroughly roused, and as the floods will paralyse Li-Hung-chang, there seems every possibility of the question being quietly settled, and everyone discovering that there has been a great deal of unnecessary bother about a practically valueless concession; but there is also the chance of an accidental display of fear or temper on one or the other side hopelessly complicating matters.

The flood in Pechili seems spreading, and Li-Hung-chang, who, as Viceroy, is held responsible, is receiving a series of rebukes for his carelessness and inefficiency in the Peking Gazettes, which may not improbably be followed by his degradation and possibly utter ruin. Nothing could have happened more unfortunately for him. Public feeling is against him. Cold and repellent, his ability and efficiency have alone raised him and kept him in his place, and if Heaven declares, as it appears to Chinese minds to do, against him, it is doubtful whether Krupp's guns and a large organised force, his only remaining "standbies," can maintain him.

As a sign of advancing appreciation of their duties and responsibilities the local Government are sending a commissioner over to Japan to investigate the case of the Maria Luz, a Peruvian coolie ship, which has been detained by the Japanese Government pending the examination of the coolies as to their alleged unwillingness to emigrate and the ill-treatment they have received on board. Whatever the result as regards the special case, it is satisfactory to see the Chinese awakening to the fact that matters beyond their own boundaries do more or less concern them.

THE FAILURE OF BOWLES BROTHERS AND CO.—MEETING OF THE CREDITORS.

A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Bowles Brothers and Co. was held on the 16th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel, for the purpose of considering the best course to be pursued by them in order to protect their rights. Sir Antonio Brady was in the chair, and Mr. Robert Bowles and Mr. Keith (the London manager of the firm) and Mr. Schofield (the inspector of the estate) were present. The creditors' interests were watched by Messrs. Bircham, Dalrymple, Drake, and Co. It appeared in the course of the proceedings that the bankrupt firm had banked with the Union Bank of London, and had there deposited securities upon which they had drawn. According to the statements of Mr. Robert Bowles, however, Mr. Charles Bowles, his brother, had exclusively managed all the banking business in London, but, unfortunately, this latter gentleman left London for America only a short time ago in very poor health. Mr. Robert Bowles stated that when he went to the Union Bank after the suspension and was told there that the action taken by that bank had not been in consequence of any deficiency in the cash account, but because the value of the securities had depreciated, he (Mr. Bowles) remarked, "Why, we have no securities here," when he was shown the book in which entries of the securities deposited by his firm had been made. A gentleman acting on behalf of Mr. Neale, one of the creditors, questioned Mr. Bowles very closely upon the subject of some bonds, to the value of between three and four thousand pounds, which had been left with the Messrs. Bowles for safe keeping, by his client, and without his knowledge or consent hypothecated with the Union Bank. Mr. Bowles disclaimed all knowledge of the matter, saying his place had always been in the reading-room at the bank, and although he did not wish to conceal anything, he had nothing to tell. Mr. Neale stated also that, besides the conversion of these bonds, they had undertaken to take up £1,050 worth of Nashville Shares, which duty they had neglected to perform. Mr. Vizetelly then proceeded to question Mr. Bowles, who stated that there was nothing due to Messrs. Julius S. Morgan and Co. until 5th October last, since which time about £50,000 had been paid to them through their agent in New York. Being asked where the funds to make these payments came from, he said they were realised from moneys paid in New York and Boston on letters of credit, and not in any way out of the funds of the depositors present at the meeting; but he could not tell where their money had gone. Mr. Keith made the same statement as to the amount owing Messrs. Julius S. Morgan and Co., and said that it had all been paid except between two and three thousand pounds. The money had been paid by deposits received in the New York and Boston houses, and, as far as he knew, no portion of the money of the creditors present was used for that purpose. He thought Bowles Brothers had balances at the Union Bank up to the Friday or Saturday before the stoppage, and then they had balances against them amounting to about £778, but the transactions between the two could only be ascertained by examining the books. A gentleman present then said he had been requested by a lady, Mrs. Maria Gates, to state that she held receipts for 5,000 dols. in United States Bonds, entrusted to the care of Bowles Brothers and Co., and she wished to know where they were. Mr. Keith said he presumed they were in the Union Bank; they were taken there without Mrs. Gates's permission. No money had been advanced to Mrs. Gates upon them, and the bank had no claim upon her; they were left with Messrs. Bowles simply to be taken care of; but, by Mr. Bowles's direction, everything was placed in the Union Bank, and, from time to time, as money was required, loans were obtained upon the securities thus deposited.

Mr. Vizetelly then moved the following resolution:—"That a committee be appointed to investigate the affairs of the firm of Bowles Brothers and Co., and to take such action in the matter as they may deem fit." This was seconded and carried. The proposer suggested Sir Antonio Brady and Mr. Bateman as members of the committee; but they both declined, the former on account of press of business, and the latter because he had himself caused an attachment to be placed on the property of the firm. A long and desultory discussion ensued, and a committee was ultimately appointed, consisting of Commissary-General Gardiner, Mr. Vizetelly, Mr. Cook, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Carter. The proceedings then terminated.

NAVAL AND MILITARY.

The Mosquito, gunboat, Lieutenant-Commander W. H. Bond has not yet sailed for China, having been detained at Devonport by extremely rough weather. At the official speed trials held last week the following were the results recorded:—Full power, mean speed, 9·743 knots; revolutions, 135·2 per minute; steam pressure 60 lb.; vacuum, 24 in.; half-power, mean speed 8·036 knots; revolutions, 104·4 per minute; steam pressure, 43 lb.; vacuum, 27 in. The vessel appears in the Navy List as of 60 nominal and 360 indicated horse power, but at the trial the engines developed a power of 500-horse.

Some time since, when the decision of the Admiralty to despatch

he Thalia with reliefs for the China station was promulgated, we pointed out the utter unsuitability of the vessel for such service, as evidenced by the circumstances attending the voyage of her sister ship the Juno. That our statements concerning the Thalia were well founded is shown by the following paragraph from the United Service Gazette :—

Great complaints reach us as to the utter want of even reasonable accommodation experienced by the officers ordered to take passage in the Thalia to join ships in China. Neither fresh air nor daylight is available in the mess-place of the officers, and the generally expressed opinion at Malta was one of surprise at the Admiralty treating naval officers so badly. It will be remembered that the War-office declined to allow troops to be embarked in the Thalia. For her regular complement of officers and men the Thalia is no doubt admirably adapted for service on the China station. We only hope she will make the passage of the Red Sea and reach her destination without a heavy sick list—a hope, we fear, which will not be realised.

Mow Surawongse, one of the sons of the Prime Minister of Siam, has been admitted a cadet at the Academy at Woolwich. Another son, at present attached to the 22nd Regiment, is shortly to go through a course of instruction at the Royal Engineer's Academy.

Lieutenant Alexander Cochrane has been appointed to the Midge, on the China station.

THE HEALTH OF THE CHINA FLEET.

The statistical report of the health of the Navy for the year 1870 has just been published. It is a massive volume, the report from the China station alone occupying forty four pages. From it we extract the following particulars :—The squadron on the station comprised twenty-five vessels, exclusive of the eight gunboats, from which the returns are defective. Making allowance for this, the force is estimated at 2,420 men. The total number of cases entered on the sick list was 4,490, which was in the ratio of 1855·3 per 1,000 of force, being an increase compared with the preceding year equal to 349·0 per 1,000. Of these 254 were invalided, and 87 cases proved fatal, the former being in the ratio of 92·7, and the latter of 31·7 per 1,000. Compared with the preceding year there was an increase in the invaliding rate to the extent of 42·6 per 1,000, and in the death rate to 18·1 per 1,000. This large increase in the rate of mortality was entirely attributable to the loss of Her Majesty's ship Slaney, whereby 41 officers and men were drowned. The average number of men sick daily was 199, which was in the ratio of 72·6 per 1,000 of force, being an increase compared with the preceding year equal to 10·9 per 1,000. Under the head of Febrile Group of General Diseases (small-pox, measles, fevers, ague, &c.), 39 cases appear. Of the 7 cases of small-pox, 4 occurred in the Hornet. The disease, it is stated, was prevalent at Foochow, where the ship was then stationed. Another case occurred on board the Icarus, at Shanghai, another in the Pearl, at Yokohama, and another in the Salamis, the patient (a marine) having contracted the disease at Newchwang. There was a case of measles on board the Leven, the Ocean, and the Sylvia respectively, and there were two cases on board the Pearl at Yokohama. A single case of scarlatina occurred on board the Ocean. There were three cases of typhus fever (two fatal), two in the Ocean, and one in the Princess Charlotte; seven cases of enteric fever, one in the Dwarf, four in the Ocean, and two in the Zebra ; 186 cases of simple continued fever, 56 of ague, and 126 of remittent fever. The vessels showing the largest number of cases of these fevers were the Algerine (20), the Hornet (34), the Icarus (21), and the Princess Charlotte (23). A fatal case of pyœmia appears in connection with the Barrosa—that of a boy who was discharged to the Naval Hospital at Yokohama, as a case of disease of the temporal bone and meningitis. In the Constitutional Group of Diseases (rheumatism, gout, syphilis, scrofula, and phthisis), 573 cases were entered. There were 192 cases of rheumatism during the year (of which 27 were invalided), and 359 cases of syphilis. The average daily number of men daily unserviceable from the latter disease was about 35, and the total number of days' sickness was 12,665. The vessels which showed the largest number of cases were the Barrosa, the Hornet, the Midge, the Ocean, and the Sylvia. At Hong Kong, it appears, the Contagious Diseases Act has been in operation for some years; at Shanghai, it had not at the date of this report been introduced.

At Hiogo syphilis was very prevalent. There is a very large establishment for women licensed by the Japanese Government, with no medical supervision or inspection of any kind. All ships remaining here for any length of time suffer severely, while at Yokohama cases are comparatively rare among the shipping, showing the great benefit of medical inspection at that port. Something of the kind is much needed at Kobé. Under the head of Diseases of the Nervous System and Organs of the Special Senses, 90 cases are entered, of which 18 were invalided and 8 proved fatal. Among the latter was a case of hydrophobia—that of a petty officer of the Ocean, who was bitten on the hand by a dog, which the man himself immediately destroyed. The animal appeared to have been worried a good deal during the day. The wound, after treatment, healed, but 50 days after the patient's discharge, unfavourable symptoms appeared, and the man died in fearful agony on the following day. Under the head of Diseases of the Circulatory System, 28 cases are recorded, of which 22 were invalided, and 2 proved fatal. A fatal case of organic disease of the heart occurred in the person of an able seamen of the Ocean at Yokohama ; and a marine belonging to the Hornet died of aneurism. In the class of diseases of the Respiratory System 354 cases were recorded, of which 7 were invalided and 3 were fatal. Of diseases of the Digestive System there were 1,036 cases, of which 62 were invalided, and 9 proved fatal ; cases of dyspepsia and diarrhœa being most numerous. The Rinaldo appears to have had the largest number of cases of diarrhœa and dysentery. While the ship was at Hong Kong, Surgeon John Buckley states in his report, the men used the water from the shore, which was impure, and contained a great quantity of organic and earthy matters. I look on this water procured from the shore at Hong Kong (he says) as the main source of the subsequent diarrhœa, laying the seeds of the disease, which were afterwards developed from very slight causes. While at sea, such was at one time the large number of men under treatment for diarrhœa and debility, that it was found practically impossible to continue the voyage under sail, and they steamed immediately to Yokohama, to rest the ship's company and give them a chance of rallying. A special letter was addressed by the surgeon to the captain, and forwarded to the Admiral. In other classes of disease the cases were as follows :—Urinary organs, 208 cases ; organs of locomotion, 15; cellular tissue and cutaneous system, 1,064. One fatal case occurred in the latter class—that of a petty officer in the Elk, who died in the Civil Hospital at Labuan, from abscesses, caused by a mosquito bite. Five cases of delirium tremens occurred, two of which proved fatal. Three cases were in the persons of commissioned officers, and two in petty officers. Under the head of Wounds and Injuries 504 cases appear, including 10 deaths, in which there are five of drowning, 3 by falling overboard, 1 by being washed overboard, and in the other the cause was not ascertained. By the wreck of the Slaney, as already stated, 41 lives were lost.

The following is a return of the number of cases of disease and injury during the year on board each ship on the China Station (the number in the parenthesis is that of the ship's complement) :—Ocean, 382 (655) first commission, 711 (435) second commission ; Barrosa, 405 (290); Pearl, 75 (275) ; Icarus, 98 (125) ; Rinaldo, 63 (180) first commission, 356 (180) second commission ; Zebra, 64 (185) first commission, 208 (185) second commission ; Algerine. 167 (45) ; Avon, 122 (80) ; Cormorant, 54 (90) : Dwarf, 130 (70) ; Elk, 167 (70) ; Hornet, 117 (75) ; Leven, 26 (45) first commission, 78 (50) second commission ; Midge, 167 (70) ; Slaney, no return ; Nassau, 96 (95) ; Salamis, 176 (95) ; Sylvia, 70 (105) first commission, 148 (105) second commission ; Adventure, 242 (160) ; Princess Charlotte, 368 (100).

LITERATURE.

Travels in Indo-China and the Chinese Empire. By Louis de Carné. London : Chapman and Hall. [SECOND NOTICE.]—M. de Carné's account of the French exploring expedition is interesting, not alone as a record of travel in the hitherto almost unbrodden regions which were traversed in the long and toilsome journey along the course of the great river of Cambodia, and afterwards in the passage across Yunnan to strike the upper waters of the Yangtsze, but also through the insight it affords into the designs and aspirations which were cherished until lately by the French representatives in South-Eastern Asia. This was more particularly the province of M. de Carné himself, as a delegate from the French Foreign-office, attached in the capacity of a polilitical observer and reporter to the party organised and conducted by Capitaine de Lagrée. With all the ardour of youth superadded to the patriotic fervour which has always distinguished French officialism in the East, M. de Carné devoted himself from the moment of his arrival in Cochin China, early in 1866, to studying the prospective developments of a dominion which was fondly regarded by himself and others as the nucleus of a future Indian Empire under the Napoleonic tricolor. In the touching preface with which Comte de Carné has introduced the record of his son's life labour, it is intimated, indeed, that the retention of Cochin China as a French possession was for some time seriously in doubt, the advantages accruing from the occupation being thought insufficient, it would seem, to outweigh the heavy outlay entailed ; but the representations of Admiral la Grandiere, the then Governor, prevailed with M. de Chasseloup Laubat, the Marine and Colonial Minister, and sanction was given to schemes, the ultimate object of which was the absorption of the entire basin of the Mekon, including the whole of Cochin-China, Cambodia, and Laos. The soul of these prospective undertakings was the Commandant de Lagrée, who, before setting out as leader of the great exploring expedition which was destined to cost him his life, had been occupied in wresting the protectorate of Cambodia from Siam by a series of strong measures, which are for the first time recounted in detail in M. de Carné's book. Much that has hitherto been obscure in the relations between the last-named country and France, is now for the first time made clear ; and however we may be inclined to agree in the assumption that the position of the French in Lower Cochin-China renders extension of the present colonial limits inevitable, it is impossible to do otherwise than reprobate the unscrupulous course of action pursued in committing the mother country to protectorates and annexations which only an inordinate ambition could regard with satisfaction. The work before us, after recounting Capitaine de Lagrée's contests with the Siamese for the control over King Norodom of Cambodia (the same who has lately paid a visit to Hong Kong and Canton in the custody of French officials), describes in detail the adventures of the French Expedition during its ascent of the Mekon, by means of native canoes and with a slender escort of disciplined Annamese, the French soldiers who accompanied the party at the outset having become so discontented under the fatigues and hardships of the journey that it was necessary to send them back to Saigon after entering the Laos country. Two centuries had elapsed since any European had previously traversed the remoter tracts of this wild but highly interesting and productive region ; and the scientific observations which may be expected on the appearance of the official report of the expedition, shortly to be published by Lieut. Garnier, the second in command, will undoubtedly have a high value for geographers and ethnologists. It was with feelings of bitter disappointment that the explorers parted, at an early stage in their journey, with the hope of finding the Mekon a river navigable by steamers; but this circumstance did not detract from the indomitable resolution of their leader, nor from the success with which they pursued their journey until the frontiers of China were reached at Sze mao (the Esmok of Capt. Sprye), after passing through the territories of Siam, Laos, and the outskirts of the Burmese dominions. It was somewhat mortifying to M. de Carné's sensitive patriotism to find that the explorers were frequently addressed as Englishmen, and that some difficulty was experienced in making clear to the inhabitants of these wild regions the separate existence of his own country; but a consolation was found in visions of a grander future, when the French flag should wave not only along the entire valley of the Mekon but also over the whole of Cochin China and Tonquin. The eventual annexation of the last named region was, it is evident, a pet project of M. de Lagree and his brave companions.

The later adventures of the expedition after leaving the Mekon at Esmok, sixteen months subsequently to its departure from Saigon, are already sufficiently well known to our readers, and we need only add that they are recounted with great spirit and vivacity by the lamented author of this record. The work is on the whole well rendered into English, but it could be wished that the translator had possessed some acquaintance with the geography of the countries traversed, and with technical details, such as would have obviated the occurrence of some awkward mistakes. We read, for instance, of the victory achieved by "Admiral Rigault de Genouilly á (instead of at) Touranne," whilst such solecisms as the rendering of lieutenant de vaisseau by "lieutenant of the vessel" are barely excusable nowadays.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, NOV. 20.

I was able to briefly announce in my last letter that the First Chamber had unanimously passed the East India Budget for 1873. The discussions only lasted one day, and no political questions were brought forward; the debate being confined to the future of our finances and those of Java. A good many members expressed fears lest the favourable balance, which has been the rule for several years past, will turn in future to a deficit. The Conservatives alluded to the warnings of Mr. van Houten, who, as a Radical, opposed most vehemently the policy of the Government. This member of the Second Chamber has published a pamphlet, of which I have already promised to give you the outlines. The brochure, which was most pompously announced, contains nothing that is new, but is mainly a reproduction of much that has been said before both by Conservatives and Liberals about Indian finance. The preface, however, is very curious—it is a very sharp philippic directed against the Liberal papers, which took the liberty to disapprove of his principles as a politician. The author says—and he is quite right in so saying—that it is not necessary for a Liberal to be nothing but a mere thick and thin supporter of a Liberal cabinet, but it is on the other hand very strange that an advanced Liberal can find nothing but Conservative arguments to urge against Liberal measures. It is not only the present Cabinet which he endeavours to overthrow, but also the former one. But I may leave Mr. van Houten alone with his insignificant pamphlet, which he, of course, regards as his political monument, and which as such is much applauded by the Conservative press.

Notwithstanding a storm of petitions, the Lords have also passed the Contagious Diseases Bill, by 23 against 12 votes. The anti-vaccination argument did not make much impression upon the First Chamber, which is, I am glad to say, becoming more practical and liberal than the Lower House. No less than 80,000 of his Majesty's loyal subjects (children of ten years included) had forwarded addresses in opposition to that clause of the measure which enacts that both children and teachers in public schools must be vaccinated. The East India Tariff Bill was the remaining matter with which the Senate dealt, and this measure was also carried, after one day's debate, by 21 against 17 votes. When we remember the many addresses against the revision of the tariff which were sent to the Chamber from our cotton districts, it is most remarkable that among the warmest defenders of this Bill were an industrial from Twenthe, Mr. Stork, and a Rotterdam trader, Mr. Pincoffs, who bears the singular nickname of "Rotterdam's Providence." His maiden-speech in favour of the Bill was most elaborate and eloquent. The members of our Second Chamber may learn a lesson from our Lords, to devote less time to useless chatter and simple babble. And indeed it seems as if they had already taken the lesson to heart. Last Monday the Home Budget was laid before them, and they only spent a few hours in the "general discussion!" Quite a miracle this, and the more remarkable because some Hague correspondents of Liberal papers have foretold that weeks would be expended upon this tiresome Budget debate. It is, however, probable that the Opposition has selected for their piece de resistance the Reform Bill, which finds foes in the ranks of the Liberals as well as among the Conservatives. A good many of the members think it wiser to reject this measure and to overthrow the Cabinet than to run the chance of a dissolution of the Chamber. Others are of opinion that the Minister of the War Department has been selected as the bete noire, that the Parliamentary Krupp's cannons will be directed on him, and that he must ultimately fall a victim to the rai sonneurs and grognards of the Chamber. The Budget of the Home Department being carried in a one day's sitting, that of Foreign Affairs was brought forward. After an important debate upon a long series of questions regarding our relations with foreign Powers, especially with Venezuela, this chapter would also have been carried, if Mr. van Eck, at the end of the sitting, had not asked permission to interpellate the Government about the Reform Bill. Notwithstanding that this has most certainly nothing to do with our Foreign affairs, permission was granted; and so matters stand.

Some days ago a meeting was held at Amsterdam of the creditors of the Oost indische Maatschappy van Lyfrenten, in order to discuss the method of liquidation. The original proposal, which I already mentioned, was amended by Messrs. T. M. C. Asser, J. P. van Bosse, and twelve other creditors, and these amendments were mostly approved of. As commissaries were elected Messrs. E. A. Leus, T. M. C. Asser, G. J. de Clercq, who will act with the commissaries elected by the shareholders, viz.: Messrs. C. J. A. den Tex. A. van Hoboken, and W. K. W. Mathes. They will watch over and control the liquidation, which is to be carried out by Messrs. Jhr. P. A. van Berestyn and J. Seelig.

Commercial and financial affairs present little change. The money market remains in a tight condition, and fears are entertained that the rate of discount will again be raised. Up to this moment this has had no disastrous effect upon the Bourse, the prices of the public securities being, on the contrary, well maintained, and a lively demand has prevailed, except for American railway shares, against which an open war is declared. I regret to state that two important cotton houses have stopped payment; notwithstanding that the names of these firms are in every mouth, I am not permitted to record them.

The Queen returns to-day from England. Some newspapers say that her visit was made with the view to negotiate a marriage between an English Princess and our Crown Prince, but I, however, am able to say that the report is entirely without foundation.

As a curiosity I insert the fact that Christine Muller's beautiful novel Lief en leed uit eene Kleine wereld will be translated into English by Sir John G. Shaw-Lefevre, Secretary to the English Admiralty, under the title of "The Burgomaster's Family; or Weal and Woe of a Little World."

PRODUCE MARKETS.

A quiet tone has prevailed in our Produce market during the last few days, which may be to some extent attributed to the further advance in the rate of discount. As regards Coffee and Sugar, business has also been checked by the near approach of the Trading Company's public sales, to be held of the former article to-morrow, and of the latter this day week, but Sugar has nevertheless been in good request at full prices. Hardly any alteration is to be reported in other articles, in which there has been upon the whole but little stirring. Tin has declined.

In compliance with a requisition, a special meeting of the members of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce was held on the 20th inst. for the purpose of discussing the question of mildew in cotton goods, and of considering the adoption of means to remedy the evil. After a long discussion, in which Mr. S. Mendel, Mr. P. Goldschmidt, Mr. J. Thompson, Mr. Fox Turner, Mr. J. Slagg, jun., and other leading manufacturers and merchants took part, a resolution was passed requesting the directors of the Chamber to take up the consideration of the causes of mildew and report to the members thereon.

An old standing dispute between the Hong Kong Bank and Messrs. Chalmers, Guthrie and Co., as to the liability of the latter on two acceptances to Messrs. Lyall, Still and Co., drafts for £10,000, has been decided in the Court of Queen's Bench, and resulted in a verdict for the defendants. The Bank insisted that the bills were not bought or advised as documentary bills, and that they were entitled to an unconditional acceptance. That in fact the manager in Hong Kong bought them as clean bills. Chalmers, Guthrie, and Co., however, contended that they were justified in granting the acceptance they did, viz., "Payable on delivery of documents to follow." A full report of the case will be found in another column. The loss arising from this transaction has already been provided for by the Bank.

A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Bowles Brothers and Co. American bankers, has been held, when an approximate statement of the affairs of the London house was submitted, showing estimated liabilities about £83,000, irrespective of the liability of the firm on account of 100,000 shares in the Joint National Agency.

The assets, consisting of cash and good debts, are estimated at £3,500, exclusive of certain debtor balances amounting to upwards of £38,000, the value of which cannot at present be ascertained. After considerable discussion in reference to the accounts, and the pledging of some of the securities of the customers of the London house with the bankers of the firm for advances, a resolution was passed appointing a committee of creditors to make further investigations, and take what action they may deem fit. Another meeting will be held on the 27th inst. when the committee will present their report. Mr. Robert Bowles, the only member of the firm in London, has been arrested and brought up at the Mansion House Police-court on a charge of misappropriating securities belonging to Messrs. D'Agiout and Son, bankers of Naples. The case was remanded, Mr. Bowles being held to bail in the sum of £8,000.

A meeting of shareholders of the Joint National Agency, the failure of which concern was noticed in our last, was held on the 19th inst. A resolution was passed to wind up the Company by voluntary liquidation, but since then an application has been made to the Court of Chancery. The liabilities of the company total about £60,000, and the assets show £29,000. The Japanese creditors are about fifty in number, and include several of the members of the Embassy and the Minister in Paris, the remainder being students resident in different parts of the country and on the Continent. Their claims total up £19,000, and we hear that Messrs. Murray, Son, and Hutchins, solicitors, have been engaged to protect their interests.

At an extraordinary meeting of the National Bank of India (Limited), a resolution was passed altering certain of the regulations of the Company. The object of the proposed alterations is to give the shareholders resident in India and elsewhere increased facilities for exercising a control over the affairs of the Company.

At the Court of Directors of the Bank of England it was arranged to nominate Mr. Benjamin Buck Greene, the present Deputy-Governor, for Governor, and Mr. Henry Hucks Gibbs, of the firm of Anthony Gibbs and Sons, as Deputy-Governor at the election in April next.

The Indo-European Telegraph Company have given notice that they are now again accepting messages for India, China, and Australia, their special wires, viâ Teheran, interrupted by the late unusually severe storms in North Germany, having been repaired and placed in good working order.

There is a rumour of the formation of a company to lay down a cable between Rangoon and Singapore by the Andamans.

The Market for Bar Silver has become slightly better, and the price is firm at 59¼d. per oz. standard. Some further amounts of New Mexican Dollars received from New York and the Pacific have with difficulty been placed. The price of the new coinage may be quoted as 58d. per oz., showing a further fall of ¼d. per oz., the old coinage at 60¾d. being also ½d. per oz. lower. This reduction will in turn affect the exchanges in China and the Straits.

Tenders for £650,000 in bills on India were received on the 20th inst. at the Bank of England, when the amounts allotted were :—To Calcutta, £512,800; to Bombay, £102,000; and Madras, £35,200. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10½d. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10½d. will receive about 60 per cent., above that price in full, and on Bombay at 1s. 10½d. in full. These results show a decided diminution in the demand for the means of remittance to the East.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Mooltan, which left Southampton on the 21st inst., was in gold—to Galle, £300; to Bombay, £270; in silver—to Hong Kong, £54,910; to Shanghai, £3,845; to Hobson's Bay, £8,000; to Sydney £5,000 :—total, in gold, £570; in silver, £71,755.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

No improvement can be noted in the adverse position of the market, the trade declining to add to their stock of Congous, except at a reduction in rates. Of Scented Teas the supply has been much in excess of present demand, and sales of all descriptions, excepting finest Capers, cannot now be effected without a decided concession in price. The public sales have comprised 24,246 packages, of which 22,816 packages have been sold without reserve. The latest dates by letters are—Hong Kong 5th October, Shanghai 29th September, and Foochow 28th September. The deliveries for the week amount to 3,009.576 lbs, against 2,974,645 lbs. last year.

Black.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings and broken-leaf kinds show no material change. Fair to good common, free from dust, are firm at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 1½d. per lb., but the lower grades have been slightly easier. Fair to good and fine Kaisows are difficult of sale. In finest very little business has been done. Paklin kinds continue in a most unfavourable position in the absence of Export demand. Black-leaf kinds: The lower qualities sell with great difficulty at former rates. Fair to good common have been inquired for at 11½d. to 1s. 1d. per lb. Fair medium are also saleable at 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 3d. per lb. Good medium, from 1s. 4d. to 1s. 7d., have been neglected, and prices have ruled in favour of buyers. Fine to finest maintain their value although there is little inquiry. In new-make Canton kinds business has been done at the decline quoted in our last Report. Oolongs are unaltered. Souchongs, unless of superior quality, are difficult of sale. In Flowery Pekoes transactions have been very small. Scented Teas: Large supplies of Canton descriptions arriving simultaneously, has resulted in a very flat market for all kinds, except the finest Capers, and sales can only be effected at a decline of ½d. to 1d. per lb. on common, and fully 1d. to 2d. per lb. on medium grades, this decline falling most heavily on Teas deficient in scent. In Foochow Scented Teas business has been small, but well-scented parcels are readily saleable. Green Teas: Further large sales, without reserve, have taken place, resulting in lower prices for all descriptions below finest. The finest qualities have sold at about former quotations. In Canton kinds there has been no alteration.

SILK.

The market continues firm, but there is still a want of activity; business is a little better generally, and there is more inquiry, still buyers act with caution, and as importers continue to hold firmly, only moderate business is doing. Prices, however, are fully maintained, and in Canton and Japan Silks are even a shade higher. Bengals continue to attract a little more attention. Deliveries are fairly good and stocks in consumer's hands are everywhere light. Deliveries from 1st to 21st inst. :—

COFFEE.

Larger supplies have been brought forward, which have met an animated demand, and the sales have gone off with spirit, Plantation Ceylon, of which the bulk of the offers has consisted, selling at an advance of fully 2s. per cwt. upon the prices quoted last week. Pale descriptions have also been in demand at rather dearer rates, and large floating sales of Native have been effected. The prices paid for Ceylon have been Plantation—triage and ordinary 72s. to 77s. 6d., small 78s. to 81s., low middling 79s. 6d. to 81s., middling 81s. 6d. to 83s., good middling bold 84s. 6d. to 86s. 6d., pea-berry 95s. to 98s. 6d., bold 75s. 6d., pea-berry 81s. By private contract about 60 casks Native Ceylon ex previous auction have been quitted at 75s. For arrival sales to the extent of about 500 tons Native Ceylon have been made for shipment in the early months of next year at 74s. to 75s.

The Dutch Trading Company's public sale of 84,400 bags held at Amsterdam went off at irregular prices, but for the most part slightly above valuations. Good ordinary sold at 46½c. to 47c., against 46¾c. at the October sale. The following is the result in detail :—

MANCHESTER GOODS.

Since the 15th inst. the tone of the Manchester market has been steady, and a moderate business has been done from day to day without much activity in any department. The firmness in prices appears to be more due to the engagements of producers than to the position of Cotton, and at the close the turn of the market is, if anything, against buyers.

COMPLETION FUND.

JUST before embarking from Hong Kong, on Tuesday, Nov. 16, 1869, H.R.H. the DUKE OF EDINBURGH was graciously pleased to lay the first stone of a choir for this, the mother Church of the Diocese of Victoria. The cost of the fabric has been shared by the Executive Government and the local community; and it is proposed, by a general subscription among former residents in and visitors to China, to provide the necessary furniture and fittings. Should sufficient funds be raised, it is proposed to erect a stone pulpit.

The Committee will gladly receive and forward any special gifts with which they may be entrusted. This scheme having received the cordial approval of the Colonial Chaplain and the Trustees, is circulated by the Executive Committee.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

—RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA.—Though the former disease remorselessly attacks the young and the robust, and the latter ruthlessly selects its victims from the weak and delicate, the same medical treatment will infallibly cure both complaints. After the affected parts have been diligently fomented with hot brine, and the skin has been dried, Holloway's Ointment must well and perseveringly be rubbed in for a few minutes twice a day, and his Pills must be taken, according to the printed directions wrapped round each box of his medicine. Both Ointment and Pills are accompanied by instructions designed for the public at large, and no invalid who attentively reads them can now be at any loss to doctor himself successfully.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present French mail brings advices from this port to the 15th October; the P. and O. mail from London Aug. 23 had arrived out. The following items of news are from the Japan Mail Gazette, and Herald :—

The Korean question seems still to be the great foreign difficulty. A Departmental Head of the Foreign Office is to start for that country in a man-of-war, with the object of entering upon negotiations, or at least of ascertaining what are the real views of the Korean Government, also to take home the Japanese settlers in Korea, who number some 700, for which purpose two sailing ships will accompany the war steamer. The Gazette says: "It is reported commonly in Yedo, and we believe truly, that a despatch reached the Government some time ago stating that it had always been permitted, during the days of the Tycoons, for the Koreans to hold intercourse with Tsussima, and that Japanese belonging to that Prince had always been welcome to Korea—but that now the Government was changed, and the Mikado was again at the head of the nation, all intercourse of every kind is forbidden. No ambassador from Japan will be received—and if it be the desire of the Japanese to challenge the Koreans to fight, they are desired to stick a notice on a mast, erect in the sea—then it is sure to be seen by some Korean-junkmen and war shall be declared. We are glad to say that Japan does not reply in any such fashion. On the contrary, she takes no notice of these tirades."

The memorial of the British residents and several members of other nationalities to H.B.M. Charge d'Affaires to institute an investigation in the case of Mr. Cousens, with a view to prevent the recurrence of such proceedings, and remove the discredit attaching to the Kobé Consulate in consequence of its action in the case, was referred to Sir Edmund Hornby, who, however, stated he could not receive it. His reasons were committed to writing, but are not yet published.

Judgment has been given by the Japanese Court in the action brought by Captain Hereira, of the Maria Luz, against the "coolie emigrants." It finds for the defendants, who are, therefore, absolved from any contract they may have entered into, compulsorily or voluntarily, and are allowed to return to China. Captain Hereira has started for Macao to procure another load of passengers. The coolies released from the ship are seen perambulating the streets in a very miserable condition.

At a meeting of the subscribers to the British Episcopal Church Establishment, it was agreed—"That in view of the present financial position of the Church, which does not seem to warrant any such extraordinary expenditure as would have to be incurred by sending to England for a chaplain, the committee appointed to nominate a successor to the Rev. Mr. Bailey be requested to stay proceedings at home for the present."

Several important reforms are in course of being carried out at the Saibansho. Legal forms, warrants and summonses, &c., are to be drawn up under the direction of Mr. Hill, now legal adviser to the Kencho, and will be printed both in Japanese and English. It is also proposed to assimilate the practice of the Court to that in use in England and America.

A battalion of Japanese troops have been recently exercised on the Swamp. They went through the usual battalion drill, and performed the evolutions in a style very creditable to those who have instructed them.

An outbreak is reported in the province of Koshiu, chiefly among men of the samurai class, who have been impoverished by the revolution. A battalion of troops has been sent to repress it.

Strong complaints are being made concerning the sale of spurious beer and spirits. Possibly a portion comes from the manufactory recently discovered in Hong Kong.

The Oneida is again advertised for sale as she lies at the bottom of Yokohama Bay, where she has been for nearly three years.

LATER ADVICES BY PACIFIC MAIL.

The Pacific Mail Company's Company's steamer Japan arrived at San Francisco on the 14th ult. with advices from Yokohama to the 23rd Oct. The following is the summary of the news as telegraphed to the New York press :—

The completion of the railroad from Yokohama to Yedo was celebrated in grand style on the 14th of October. The Mikado presided over the ceremonies and passed over the road in person. The new telegraph line will be opened in state by the Mikado as soon as it is completed.

Great quantities of copper are being sent from Yedo to Korea in the nature of a peace offering. A dreadful famine is reported among the people of Korea.

The authorities at Yedo have stopped issuing passes to foreigners to go beyond the limits fixed by the treaty, the privilege having been abused by the carrying on of illicit trade.

A serious rising is reported in the province of Mato, and a number of police officers from Yedo have been sent there to quell the disturbance, if possible, without the aid of troops.

The Department of Religion at Yedo has issued a document looking towards the toleration of all believers of all creeds.

Mr. Lowder, formerly British Consul at Yokohama, has been appointed Superintendent of the Japanese Customs.

The treasure of the steamer America, to the amount of $300,000, has been raised ; $77,000 yet remains to be recovered.

Four native priests have left for Europe to study the various religions of that part of the world.

The wreck of the steamer Oneida has been sold to the Japanese for $1,500.

The rinderpest is making terrible ravages among the cattle in the rural districts.

NAGASAKI.

Dates from this port extend to the 5th October. The following paragraphs are taken from the Nagasaki Express :—

The news of the week embraces the return of H.B.M.S. Iron Duke from Chefoo, and the arrival of H.B.M. Barrosa from Hong Kong via Yokohama. Amongst the Japanese it has been a busy one. Their attentions have been divided between their annual Odori festival, to take place next week, and in making preparations to meet the expected visit from Prince Alexis of Russia. If the programme of their Imperial visitor is punctually kept he will reach Nagasaki during one of the chief native festivals. We hear that the building formerly known as the Hizen Yaski in Simabara matchi, and used as the temporary residence of H.M. the Mikado during his stay here, has been placed at the disposal of the Russian authorities. Up to the present time we hear of no preparations for the illumination of the foreign settlements at this place.

The steamer Kuni-o-maru, built for Japanese owners on the premises adjoining the Patent Slip, under the superintendence of Mr. D. Blaikie, has been successfully launched. She is a wooden vessel propelled by a screw, is built of teak and other hard woods, and is of the following dimensions :—Length, 118 feet ; width, 15 feet ; depth, 14 feet ; designed to carry about 90 tons of cargo, exclusive of coal required for her own consumption. Her engines, high-pressure ones of 25-horse power, together with her machinery, have been imported from England.

We hear that the Russian steamer Courier, which arrived here on the 3rd Oct. from Ayan, Russian Manchuria, struck on a rock during the voyage. The accident will necessitate her going on the Patent Slip to ascertain to what extent she has been injured.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

We have advices from this port to the 18th Oct.; the French mail, from London, August 30, arrived out on the 13th Oct. The following items of news are from the North China Herald :—

The principal event of the week has been the special meeting of ratepayers, which was held on the 15th Oct. The meeting passed a resolution disapproving the alteration of the Bund line at Messrs. Fogg and Co.'s property, and requiring that the wall should be put back to its former position ; and another to offer Tls. 40,000 for the Soochow Creek Bridge Company's property and alleged rights, which it is understood the company will most probably accept. No motion on tramways was brought forward, and that in regard to the question of Bund rights was not carried.

The Customs Returns of Trade at Shanghai for the quarter ending 30th Sept. have been issued. The import of grey shirtings during the quarter is less than in 1871, being 1,056,549 pieces, against 1,318,840 ; while of all other kinds it is 148,326, against 157,943. T-Cloths show a steady increase over the three corresponding quarters quoted, being 200,000 over that of 1871, and double that of 1870. English Drills are also much higher, being 194,919 pieces, while American and Dutch show a marked falling off. The import of Jeans is double last year's third quarter, being 117,435, against 52,377. Other cotton fabrics generally show an increase. Most woollen goods betray a reduction, with the exception of camlets and cloths, which are slightly in excess. Notwithstanding the high rates ruling at home, metals are more largely imported than at the same time in 1871, though in much smaller quantity than in 1869 and 1870. Coals give 46,312 tons, against 16,465, and needles are put down at 175,700 piculs (mils being omitted), or some three times the supply in the same three months of 1871. Opium shows very little variation, but the tendency is to decrease. Sugar does not show such an exceptional increase as it did in the second quarter of 1872. The import of rice still goes on at a rate out of all comparison with previous years—64,140 piculs being entered, against 5,215 in 1871 and 95 in 1870. Tea is rather less than last year on the whole, though green and brick exhibit a rise. The reduction must be placed to the accelerated export in the beginning of the season throwing a larger share into the quarter ending 30th June, as was evidenced by the returns for that period. Of Black Tea 202,207 piculs have been exported to Great Britain, 4,241 to the United States, and 6,837 to Russia ; while of green the United States takes 63,371, Great Britain 30,114, and India 1,603 piculs.

The table of re exports to Chinese ports gives an increase in grey shirtings of about 100,000 pieces, with a small rise in other kinds, but T-Cloths exhibit a decline of 50,000 pieces. English drills have been re-exported in satisfactory ratio to the import, and the same remark applies to sheetings. Woollen goods show a slight tendency in the right direction. Metals are not re-exported so freely as in the corresponding quarter, doubtless owing to the firmness of holders of stocks. Needles are got rid of in mils more largely than they are imported in piculs. There appears to have been a considerable re-export of shirtings to Japan—184,000 pieces, against 82,000. The transit pass returns do not look quite satisfactory. During the quarter in 1869, 400 pieces of shirtings were sent inland under their protection ; last year 27,480, and this, 7,880. We find, however, that 1,338 passes have been issued, against 676, and that they are more freely used in the miscellaneous articles of import than ever. So it may be that the trade, not the system, is at fault, or the reduction on the first item may be due to the action of the officials at places which form the avenues for the shirtings trade. Tonnage has risen about 30,000 tons, and the revenue from that source advances Tls. 5,000, though it has receded somewhat on the whole, being Tls. 845,739, against Tls. 918,227. It is still, however, considerably over 1871, and, as with the tea export, we must refer the decrease to the earlier season, for the quarter to 30th June showed a marked improvement.

The last portion of the Free Ferry, with its superstructure, was placed in position on Oct. 13, and moored fore and aft in the Creek. The Ferry consists of three portions, two moored to extensions of the Bund, which are run out to fit with the proposed new line limiting the width of the creek to 200 feet. On these rest the ends of the bridge-like superstructure, each of which is sixty feet long. The middle pontoon carries a railed deck, which, for all practicable purposes, is a bridge, but being mounted on a cannon-ball turn table, it revolves out of the way of boats, and reduces itself with very little trouble from a bridge to a ferry-boat. Between this section, which is seventy-six feet long, and those on either side, there is an open space of about four feet, which is connected by a sort of flap piece. The passage between the rails is twenty feet wide, and the deck, if we may call it so, will carry with perfect safety all kinds of traffic. The height from the surface of the water is nine feet, and is of course the same at all states of the tide, the pontoons rising or falling according to the water in the creek. The side rails seem of unnecessarily massive timbers, but this is accounted for by their having to sustain weight as girders. Altogether, the ferry is an ingenious piece of engineering. It was opened on the 14th, and largely availed of. Its cost, we believe, is Tls. 9,000.]

Again we have to record a series of detentions at the Woosung Bar. The Travancore, mail steamer, drawing 18 feet 9 inches, reached the Bar at top of high tide on the 11th Oct., and finding only 15 feet 9 inches, had to anchor and discharge part of her chowchow cargo. By this means she was able to cross the Bar at 7 P.M., after which she had to receive the cargo again, finally leaving Woosung at 6 A.M. the next day, thus suffering a detention of twenty-four hours. The Costa Rica, drawing 17 feet 6 inches, and the Antenor, about 18 feet 6 inches, left on the 12th, but were unable to cross the Bar on the morning tide, and were likewise detained about twenty-four hours. The Hong Kong and the French mail, bound in, were also detained. For the last three month we have noticed that on several occasions in each month, there has only been 15 feet 10 inches or so on the Bar at high water. We do not think so little water was ever found a few years ago, the lowest we remember being about 17 feet. Is it not, therefore, necessary that some active measures should be taken to deepen the channel before it is too late, as there seems but little doubt that, from some cause or other, the Bar is shallowing, while the steam trade requires more and more that it should gain in depth?

Intelligence has been received of the loss of the steamer Yedo on South Reef, off Chim Island, Haitan Straits. The crew are believed to be all safe, and the mate reached Foochow, reporting the steamer a total loss. H.M.S. Dwarf went down to render any assistance possible. The tide ebbs and flows in and out of the wreck.

The Race Lotteries have been held at the club, and were more successful than they have been at recent meetings. For the Criterion Stakes there were 53 subscribers at $5 each, and the highest sales were Kuo-pu-ch'u $75, Coronet $70, Statescraft $60 and Speed $50. For the Maiden Stakes there were 80 subscribers at $10 each. Kopeck fetched $70, Electricity $65, Scalp $55 and Coroner, Rhino, Spite, and Sir Lancelot $45 each. Speed was sold for $75 in the Taoutai's Cup, Nous Verrons $55, Coroner $45. There were 51 subscribers at $5 for the Jockey Cup, but ponies went for a song. The Shanghai St. Leger secured 80 subscribers at $10. Coronet sold for $160, Kuo-pu-ch'u $130, Handicraft $100 and Statescraft $80.

A correspondent informs us that Peking is excited by preparations for the Imperial marriage. The expenditure has been three million taels. One thousand taels of gold are said to have been spent on presents for the ladies of the palace.

From Newchwang we hear that the Salamis, Admiral Shadwell, has visited the port, but had left for Chefoo and Nagasaki. The harvest was nearly in, and good by all accounts, but the natives were taking advantage of the great demand for breadstuffs, and prices of produce were keeping up, whereas manufactures were going down. In shipping the port has done well for the year so far, 220 vessels having visited it and gone away laden. The temperature was down to 42 deg. Fahrenheit in the morning, and northerly winds were the order of the day.

THE NORTH CHINA INSURANCE COMPANY.

The half-yearly meeting of the North China Insurance Company was held on the 11th Oct. The following report was presented:—

In placing before the shareholders the first half-yearly report of the present term, with a statement of accounts prepared to the 30th June last, the directors are glad to notice a more favourable result from the business of the company than might have been anticipated, taking into consideration the exceptional losses amongst steamers on the China coast in the early part of the year. The annexed balance-sheet shows, after carrying forward the profit on the working account, the sum of Tls. 358,472.95 at the credit of the company on the above date, in addition to Tls. 300,000 representing the capital paid up. The amount of premia earned during the six months under review is Tls. 487,054, which is in excess of the receipts of any previous corresponding period, and, owing to the larger proportion of risks for long voyages being by steamers via Suez Canal, the outstanding liabilities on January to June underwriting account are satisfactorily small. From 1st July to 30th September the premia accruing may be estimated at Tls. 294,000, and the settlement of claims during that time have been Tls. 36,751.31.

The directors regret to state that since the date of the accounts intelligence has been received of the s.s. Parnassus, and clipper ship Lahloo having been wrecked, in which vessels the company was interested to the extent of about Tls. 126,000.

It is with much regret the directors have to record the death of the late chairman, Mr. F. Porter, who had for a length of time been associated with the company. Vacancies at the board have also occurred by the departure from Shanghai of Messrs. Lavers, Schroers and Anderson; Messrs. W. Lemann, W. H. Aretz, F. H. Bell, and A. G. Wood have been appointed in their stead, and are now proposed as members of the court of directors.

In opening the proceedings, the chairman, Mr. Miller, said the report went so fully into details that very little remained for him to say with regard to them. He thought it was a matter of congratulation for the shareholders that the gross amount of premia collected during the six months had been the largest that had yet accrued to the company for any similar period since its formation. The increase might be partially accounted for by the season having been earlier, but still, if they looked to the increased competition they had to encounter, partly from the Home Offices, who were bidding largely for foreign business, and also to the reduction in rates, the result could not but be regarded as satisfactory. The losses for the six months amounted to Tls. 86,197.42 up to 30th June, but if they looked at the total of Tls. 487,054.00 premia collected, and also to the very disastrous season on the coast, which resulted in the loss of several steamers, there was much matter for congratulation that the company had been so successful.

Resolutions were then passed adopting the report and confirming the appointment of Messrs. W. Lemann, W. H. Aretz, F. H. Bell, and A. G. Wood as directors. No comments were made by any of the shareholders attending the meeting.

The Chairman said that though it might not be quite regular, it might be well to allude shortly to the accounts of the old company. A dividend returning the balance of the capital had already been advertised, payable on the 15th October, and there would then remain in hand Tls. 371,089 97 to be further appropriated, one-third of which had to go to the contributing shareholders and two-thirds to the shareholders generally. Of course this amount was further subject to any losses and claims which might appear; but as the bulk of the risks had run off, he did not think it probable that any large deduction from this balance could take place. However, before distributing it the directors would take care that all possible losses and claims were fully provided for.

The proceedings closed with the customary vote of thanks to the directors.

HONG KONG.

Our advices extend to the 24th October: the French mail, with dates from London to the 13th Sept., arrived out on the 22nd Oct. The following items are from the China Mail and the Daily Press:—

Among the passengers leaving by the present French Mail we note the name of General Boguslovsky, an officer whose mission to Peking has been somewhat unduly ignored by the China Press. He has, it would appear, been negotiating with the Chinese Government one of those knotty questions which perennially crop up in Russo Chinese politics—viz., the "Rectification of the Frontier." Every few years an uneasy suspicion seizes the Russian Government that the frontier is all wrong, and to get it put right a negotiator is straightway despatched from the banks of the Neva to talk to the residents by the banks of the Peiho. Upon the present occasion it would appear that "the frontier" required a good deal of rectification—rather in the way of artistic touches, than as regarded any important change in its general direction—and Korea, the Amoor and Turkestan became accordingly subjects of discussion between the representative of the Czar and the Ministers of Tung Chih. It is needless to say that the conversations held resulted in an arrangement satisfactory to both parties, though it may not be generally known what the quid pro quo was on the part of Russia. We are able to state, upon authentic information, that two points have been gained by China. The one is a promise of neutrality should matters, as the Chinese believe they will, take a turn which involves another war with the Celestial Empire; and the second is a promise that H.I.H. the Grand Duke Alexis shall not visit Peking.

The Acting French Consul, M. Charles de la Forest, has laid a complaint at the Police-court, in which he claimed redress against the superintendent of the Sailors' Home, for receiving into the Home six French seamen deserted from a French vessel in harbour, and having no discharge. It is asserted in the information laid, that a runner named D. Brown had received on their behalf a sum of $15 each man, a month's salary in advance, and a fee of $1 each man, and after doing so still retains the men, who, according to their names, are English, and are still at the Home. The affair was brought before Mr. Mitchell at the Police-court on the 23rd Oct., but the summons was dismissed.

The Gazette notifies that the Ordinance giving powers to the Hong Kong and Shanghai Corporation to establish Banking agencies at Saigon, Manila and other places has not received the approval of the Secretary of State. It also notifies that the leave of absence of the Hon. Mr. Smale has been extended to January 1, 1873, and Mr. Alexander's appointment to a seat in the Legislative Council has been approved by her Mejesty. The extension of the Chief Justice's leave appears to have taken everyone by surprise, as letters recently received stated that he was about to leave within twenty-four hours of their despatch. The change of date will allow Mr. Pauncefote to get the run of the work before his successor arrives.

There has been much excitement amongst the Chinese at a rumour of the death of Mr. Kwok Acheong. The rumour was false, and Mr. Kwok Acheong was, we understand, somewhat amused on reading the record of his obituary in the extra of the Chinese paper issued from the Daily Press Office. It appeared that the wealthy and respected native gentleman in question had a fall lately on board one of his steamers, and sustained some injuries. Having almost entirely recovered, his family gave vent to their rejoicings on his deliverance by engaging a number of priests to perform a religious ceremony in the house, and this has doubtless given rise to the rumour of his death.

Intelligence is to hand that the British brig Spartan is stranded on shore near Taiwanfoo. Endeavours were made to get her off, but without success, and a hawser and kedge anchor carried out to heave her off was cut by the natives, to prevent her getting off and out of their clutches for plunder. This they succeeded in doing, and stripped off the copper from her bottom, and great difficulty was experienced in keeping them from wholly boarding the vessel. The captain went to the Consul at Taiwanfoo. A man-of-war was expected daily, and a Court of Inquiry is likely to be held at that place.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

We have advices from this port to the 1st November; the London mail of Sept. 27 arrived out on the 28th Oct. by the French mail steamer Hooghly. The following items of news are from the Singapore Daily Times:—

On the 28th Oct. the Governor and Lady Ord, with Captain Ord and Mr. Watts, embarked on board the colonial steamer Pluto en route for Malacca. His Excellency the Governor will visit the Malay Chiefs in the Straits of Malacca, to again endeavour to "settle something," and we heartily trust he will at last prove successful. The first place of call will be Sungie Ujong, where his Excellency's diplomatic abilities will be exercised to settle a dispute between the Rajah of that place and the ruler of Rumbowe. H.M.S. Zebra, it is said, will follow the Pluto, to give weight, we suppose, to his Excellency's visit, which, it is to be hoped, will be successful in putting an end to the anarchy and bloodshed which has prevailed of late.

Reports from Klang, for the truth of which we cannot vouch, assert that the men from Pahang, assisting Tunkudia Oodin, have routed Mahdie's forces, and that Syed Masahoor has been shot dead. There is also another rumour that Syed Zein has been killed by Mahdie's adherents, but we have been unable to learn what foundation there is for it.

A cricket match has been concluded between eleven of the Army and Navy and the Singapore Cricket Club, in which we are glad to see the Singapore Cricket Club have recovered their laurels and shown something of their former capital play—a most encouraging sign. We are happy to be able to compliment them on this occasion on having made one hundred and thirteen points in one innings, against only fifty-two in two innings by their opponents.

It is rumoured that the Governor has applied to the Colonial Office for an extension of his term of office for another year.

Commercial Report.

(For dates see first page.)

IMPORTS.

Yokohama.—A brisk demand had been shown for Grey Shirtings, with a firm market. Turkey Reds were in fair inquiry. Black Velvets and Lastings in demand.

Hiogo.—An unsatisfactory market is reported. Excessive receipts of Grey Shirtings had occasioned a considerable decline in prices, best 8¼ lbs. being in very little demand at the close at $2.55 to 2.57½ per piece. Drills were quoted $3 80 to 4.00 per piece, but not wanted. Woollens were quiet, but fairly steady, and hopes of early improvement were entertained.

Nagasaki.—The market was quiet, and a few 8.4 lb. Shirtings had been placed at $2.53 per piece.

Tientsin.—Sales were reported of Lie Eagle 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings at Tls. 1.76 per piece, with a dull market for these and for all other textiles. The water was falling fast, however, and some prospect of an early improvement was held out.

Hankow.—Advices report very unfavourably of the market. Considerable sales were of daily occurrence, but the advices from Shanghai had influenced holders to sell, and a marked decline had resulted in consequence.

Shanghai.—A better tone had prevailed, and rather more disposition to do business had been evinced by the trade; but, as yet, these were the only signs of improvement perceptible in the Piece Goods market. Grey Shirtings: 8¼ lbs. had shown a decidedly improving tendency; 7 lbs. had been in constant request, but commonest chops had been preferred, and commanded as high prices as those offered for best. In the heavy kinds no movement had taken place. Sales 30,000 pieces, 7 lbs., at Tls. 1.66 to 1.67½; 40,000 to 50,000 pieces, 8¼ lbs., at Tls. 1.76 to 1.78 for mildews, and Tls. 1.79 to 1.84 for sound common to good chops. White Shirtings: Barter transactions at low rates. T-Cloths: The market had suffered a relapse, 6 lbs. in moderate demand at Tls. 1.12 to 1.14 for Dewhurst's T, and Tls. 1.58 offered for Collie's chop dollar 7 lbs. without success. Dewhurst's MT Tls. 1.45 to 1.46. Drills: Steady demand for both English and Dutch, but importers had met the market freely, and so prevented any rise; Dutch, Tls. 3.02 to 3.10; English, Tls. 3.05 to 3.15 for 14 to 15 lbs. Jeans and Sheetings: No great inquiry had existed. Jeans: English, Tls. 2.10 to 2.14; Dutch, Tls. 2.30. Sheetings: English, Tls. 2.80 to 2.85; American, Tls. 3.70. Fancy Cottons: A large business had been done, but it had embraced only the articles commented or in recent reports. Woollens: Market unchanged, and only a small trade done, but holders continued firm, in expectation of an improved demand and better prices as the Autumn advances. A few Camlets had found buyers, to arrive, at Tls. 15½ per piece. Metals.—Nail Rod Iron: Nothing doing. Lead remains dull at last mail's rates. Quicksilver: A slightly better inquiry had resulted in the settlement of a few flasks, at an advance of Tls. 1 to 3 per picul.

Foochow.—Sales were reported of 500 pieces, 8¼lbs. Grey Shirtings at $2.75, 1,600 pieces 7lbs. T-Cloths at $2.5 to $2.65, and 400 pieces 8lbs. do at $3.7½. Lead was quoted $7 per picul.

Hong Kong.—Fair sales of Cotton Yarns had been effected, but importers had made concessions to clear their goods. The business in manufactured goods had been small, and prices of all articles were low and weak. In Woollens, Long Ells were saleable; Camlets were not wanted, and Blankets could be bought at easier prices. Iron was quiet and lower in value. Tin Plates declined. Quicksilver was quoted 50 cents to $1.00 lower. Rice had been selling fairly for shipment to the Coast ports, but at the close the market was quiet at about former rates.

Saigon.—There was scarcely anything doing, and prices were nominal.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

Shanghai.—Black: There had been but a very trifling business, about 6,500 chests only having found buyers at prices for all kinds, showing a reduction of ½ to 1 tael on previous quotations; no demand existing for the low and undesirable quality on offer. The stock was estimated at nearly 20,000 chests. Green: With the exception of the purchase of a heavy string of Moyunes at previous rates by one firm, business had been limited. Pingsueys were at last showing signs of decline, and it was believed that the market would drop two or three taels if buyers would simply abstain from offering. At present a fall of half a tael to one tael was enough to induce many buyers to go on.

Foochow.—Congous had been more sparingly dealt in up to the 11th Oct., the daily settlements averaging 1,700 chests, but on the 11th an unexpectedly large business was transacted, some 7,300 chests having been booked, followed on the 12th by the settlement of 4,900 chests. Although the stock had been gradually increasing, having stood at 103,000 chests on the 10th, the holders had throughout displayed more or less firmness, and, except in a few instances during the quietest period of the interval, they had succeeded in realising former prices. Souchongs had been in rather limited request. The advices from the United States had continued to be of so discouraging a nature as to cause all buyers of Oolong to withdraw from the market, while the holders had not as yet been sufficiently influenced thereby, and, consequently, no transactions had taken place. Should this inactivity continue for any time it will tend to curtail the supplies from the country; the receipts for the season were expected to reach 200,000 half-chests. Scented Teas had been taken to a moderate extent at unchanged prices. Settlements had been:—Congou, 41,395 chests at Tls. 7.55 to 8.8 o.b. for dust and sifting; Tls. 9.8 to 12.8 o.b. for broken leaf; Tls. 14.8 to 18.3 o.b. for ordinary to good common; Tls. 19.8 to 25.8 o.b. for flavoury to medium to Tls. 28.8 o.b. for good medium. Souchong, 2,829 chests at Tls. 18.3 to 22.8 o.b. for low common to common; Tls. 26.8 to 29.8 o.b. for medium. Scented Tea, 5,947 boxes: Scented Orange Pekoes at Tls. 21.55 to 27.8 o.b. for low common to medium to Tls. 32.8 o.b. for good medium to fine; Scented Caper, Tls. 18.8 to 24.8 o.b. for low common to medium, to Tls. 29.8 o.b. for good medium. Flowery Pekoe, 146 chests at Tls. 26.8 to 29.8 o.b.

Amoy.—We have no later information of interest from this port.

Canton.—There had been some disposition shown by buyers to operate to a small extent, at prices rather lower than the ideas of holders; some further settlements of Scented Orange Pekoe were reported at about former rates, but the market was quiet with very few parcels of desirable Teas offering.

SILK.

Shanghai.—The market became dull after the departure of last English mail, but a further decline of about Tls. 5 per picul having taken place, the attention of buyers was again attracted, and a fair business had resulted, the demand having chiefly been for medium Tsatlees. Additional settlements had amounted to 1,500 bales, including Blue Elephant chop at Tls. 505, Gold Lion at Tls. 535, and King-chang at Tls. 507½. Common Tsatlees had been obtainable at a reduction of Tls. 5 to Tls. 10, and a few transatcions had taken place in Yellow Silks and re-reels at previous prices. No. 3 Tsatlees were held at Tls. 570 to Tls. 575, and in these no further business had transpired. The unsold stock was reduced to 6,000 bales, comprising but a limited proportion of desirable Silks.

Canton.—A much larger business had been done in Silks for shipment to Europe at rates from $5 to 10 lower. Settlements during the week amounted to 600 bales. Stock was said to be large, 2,300 Tsatlee, 200 Loongkong, 100 Cumchook and Lacklow, and 400 of inferior descriptions. The fifth crop was all in with the exception of 200 bales reported to be held back in the country. Rereels were very quiet and slightly easier for parcels on the spot, but for contracts with good men nothing less than $560 would be taken for No. 1 Lacklow. The sixth crop was expected in about two weeks from date, but nothing was known as to its quality or size.

The Messageries Maritimes Company's steamer Mei Kong, with the present inward mail, arrived at Marseilles on the 28th ult. at 7 A.M. with 77 passengers, 889 bales of silk, 9,576 packages of tea, 615 bales of tobacco, and 353 sundries for London, which will be transhipped on board the Company's steamer Delta, which is expected in London about the 10th inst.

THE FAILURE OF BOWLES BROTHERS AND CO.

On the 27th ult. a large meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Bowles Brothers and Co. was held at the Cannon-street Hotel, under the chairmanship of Mr. James Vizetelly, for the purpose of receiving the report of the committee of investigation appointed on the 16th inst. The Secretary read the following report:—

Having gone carefully through the approximate statement of affairs prepared by Messrs. Turquand, Youngs, and Co, and having received from Mr. John Young, a member of that firm, explanations in reference to the various items in the statement, and having examined the books of the London house in order to satisfy ourselves as to the position of the firm and upon certain matters involving very grave charges against its members, and having requested explanations from Mr. Robert Bowles, the only partner at present in this country, and from the manager, Mr. Keith, we regret to say that the prospects of the creditors are in no way improved by the examination thus far made. Further, we are of opinion that some of the partners may be found to be criminally liable for the misappropriation of the securities of several of their customers, in connection with which misappropriation we find, in the course of our investigation, that the managers of the London house have taken a prominent part. The statement of the affairs of the London house, as extracted from the books, discloses, in our opinion, very disastrous prospects for the creditors. The estimated liabilities amount to £83,000, and include securities belonging to customers, deposited for safe custody only, of the estimated value of about £14,000, which have been pledged by the bankers of the London house against loans. This amount of £83,000 is exclusive of the large liability of the firm in respect of shares in the Joint National Agency Company, which, we are informed, amounts to about £95,000, being 19s. per share, the amount not paid up on 100,000 shares of £1 each. On the other hand, the only assets which can be reckoned upon as realisable consist of the cash and bills receivable on hand and debtors on current accounts, estimated to realise about £3,500. In addition to these there are debtor balances appearing in the books amounting to about £138,000, the nature and value of which neither Mr. Robert Bowles, nor Mr. Keith, the manager, can satisfactorily explain or estimate. We fear, however, that but very little will ever be realised from these balances. Important information in the interest of the creditors has yet to be obtained as to the extent of the liabilities and assets of the houses in Paris, New York, and Boston, and of what the private estates of the five partners consist. We may here state that the London books do not show any capital accounts of the several partners, and that their drawings in London have been debited to salary and entertainment accounts. The accuracy of the statements contained in the telegrams which have been recently received of the liabilities and assets of the Paris and Boston houses appear to be so inconsistent when compared with the balances in the books of the London firm against those houses respectively, that we hesitate to place them before the creditors as conveying anything approaching to a true explanation of their affairs. In regard to the liabilities and assets of the New York house no information has yet been received. The partners constituting the firm of Bowles Brothers and Co. are the same in each of the four houses, viz.: Robert Caldwell Mackay Bowles, Charles Stetsen Peabody Bowles, William Burroughs Bowles, Nathan Appleton, and Henry Cushing Stetson. We cannot help expressing our great surprise that the business of Messrs. Bowles Brothers and Co. has been mixed up to a very great extent with the affairs of the Joint National Agency Company, and also at the ignorance professed by Mr. Robert Bowles and the manager, Mr. Keith, both in reference to that company's accounts and the financial transactions of the London house generally. With reference to the advances made by Messrs. J. S. Morgan and Co. during the few weeks immediately preceding the suspension of payment, we are of opinion, after carefully examining the account, that the transactions exonerate Messrs. Morgan and Co. from any imputations. Having regard to proceedings which have been taken against one of the partners of the firm, since our appointment, and to the whole circumstances of this case, we cannot help coming to the conclusion that the only mode of protecting the general interest of the creditors, and ensuring a fair distribution of the assets, is by placing the estate in bankruptcy; and this course we recommend the creditors to adopt.

Mr. Richard Jones (solicitor), who said he represented Mr. Patrick Neile, of Jersey—who was the largest creditor—stated it was found that in a few days after securities were lodged with Messrs. Bowles, simply for safe custody, they obtained advances upon them from the Union Bank. Such securities were as transferable as a Bank of England note, and he was sorry to say that the law was on the side of what was done. The manager of the Union Bank, whom he had seen on the subject, asked how were they to know that the bonds did not belong to Messrs. Bowles, there being nothing on the face of them to show to whom they belonged. He did not think that in the whole course of his thirty years' experience he had ever met with so vilanous a transaction as this, which showed that persons had come over from America and opened houses in London, New York, Geneva, and Paris, apparently without a single shilling of capital. There was nothing to show that any one of the firm had ever put a shilling into the concern. On the contrary, it appeared that they were always drawing out whatever they pleased, and that they spent some of the money of the creditors in giving an entertainment to the High Joint Commission at Geneva. (Laughter). There was £85,000 owing to the creditors, and £3,500 constituted the whole of the assets. There were debtor balances, but their nature could only be explained by Charles Bowles, who was out of the country. He doubted whether the proceeding against Robert Bowles was a judicious one at the time. Robert Bowles, when asked for information, shrugged his shoulders, and said he was a mere shopwalker, and that his brother Charles, who was the active partner, had gone to California. When questioned about the other partners, he said, "Mr. Nathan Appleton, of Boston, is a wealthy man; he is one of our partners." There was nothing, however, to show whether he was a partner or not, and if he was a partner it might be only to the limit of the money he had advanced. They would find that from time to time Mr. Appleton had taken an active part, and that he had telegraphed to J. S. Morgan and Co. to say that he would see the creditors paid; but whether that constituted a liability remained to be seen. The only course to adopt was to make all the partners bankrupt, and thus make them amenable to the criminal law. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. E. Newman moved, "That the committee be requested to instruct a solicitor to take such proceedings as he may be advised, with the view of making all or any of the partners bankrupt." Mr. Schuler seconded the resolution.

Mr. Jones said that, according to the information the committee had received, Mr. Appleton had rendered himself liable for all the debts of the concern, and, if that were the case, every shilling of the creditors' money would be paid. If not, they would be able to examine the partners, and ask them what they had done with £85,000 in two years. (Hear.)

The resolution was agreed to unanimously, as was one moved by Sir Antonio Brady, thanking the committee, and requesting them to continue their labours on behalf of the creditors.

THE P. AND O. COMPANY'S REPORT.

The tabular statement prefixed to this report contains, as usual, particulars of the tonnage, horse-power, and present stations of the company's fleet. The alterations in the list since the last half-yearly report are the removal of the names of the Aden, Ottawa, and the hulk Ariadne, and the addition of the Zambesi, and the tug, the Timsah. The Aden and Ottawa, no longer adapted for the present requirements of the service, have been advantageously disposed of by sale in China. The hulk Ariadne, after doing good service for twenty-seven years at Alexandria, has been broken up, altered arrangements at that port rendering the use of a hulk no longer necessary. The Zambesi is a steamer of 2,200 tons, and 400-horse power, and will be delivered by her builders, Messrs. Barclay, Curle, and Co., of Glasgow, in February. She was purchased by the Board at an early stage of construction, and will be thoroughly adapted to the requirements of the company. The tug Timsah, which has been contracted for with Messrs. Day and Co., of Southampton, is intended more especially for the purpose of assisting the company's vessels in the navigation of the Suez Canal, but can be availed of for general work in Egypt.

Of the vessels mentioned in the last half-yearly report as fitting out, the Cathay was delivered to the company on the 12th June, and despatched on the 27th of the same month, via the Suez Canal, to Bombay and China. The Hydaspes was launched on the 6th July, handed over to the company on the 23rd August, and despatched to Bombay, also via the Canal, as an extra steamer on the 21st September. The reports received on the performances of these vessels since leaving England are in the highest degree satisfactory.

The Malwa and Bokhara, on the present fitting out list, are in a forward state. The Malwa was launched on the 16th October, and will be delivered in December, and the Bokhara will be ready in a few weeks after. The Venetia, Lombardy, Gwalior, and Nizam, are also making good progress.

The Pera has received new engines and boilers and a general refit. The new machinery gives this vessel an increased speed, and at the same time effects an economy of nearly forty per cent. in her consumption of coal. The Ceylon, having already compound engines, is now receiving new boilers and a general refit, and will again take her place on the sea-going list early in January.

Four of the company's steamers, the Deccan, Hindostan, Malacca, and Sunda, came through the Canal direct from China to London with full cargoes of last new season's teas. These vessels returned by the same route, with full cargoes, to their original stations. In addition to the above, the company's vessels have been enagaged in making a variety of extra voyages apart from the mail services, aggregating a mileage of nearly 200,000 miles. The directors are happy to state that the navigation of the company's numerous fleet has not been attended by any accident since the date of the last report.

UNDERWRITING ACCOUNT AND GENERAL RESERVE FUND.

The position of the underwriting account, after deducting the loss of the Rangoon, enables the directors to recommend a distribution of one per cent., being equal to £27,000, and to carry the sum of £23,038 14s. 11d. to the general reserve fund.

The reserve fund would thus show a balance of £455,162 11s. 9d., but in view of the large amount which (as explained hereafter) must be expended in extraordinary repairs and improvements, the directors consider it necessary to follow the precedent of last year, by appropriating the balance of the underwriting account to this special purpose.

EXTRAORDINARY REPAIRS AND ALTERATIONS.

In their report of December, 1871, the directors called particular attention to the comparatively small amount expended in repairs, and therefore set aside a sum of £20,000 to provide for what may be termed arrears in that department.

During the current year the directors have not been able to accomplish the necessary work which they had in contemplation, partly because the fleet has been in such constant employment, and partly because the various shipbuilding and engineering firms have been overcrowded with work. The consequence has been that the repairs for 1872 have been even below those of 1871, so that the amount of £20,000 set aside in 1871 has not yet been employed. To justify a further appropriation for this purpose, as now proposed, it is necessary to explain the work to be undertaken. The success of the high and low pressure, or, as it is usually termed, compound engine, may be said to have caused almost a revolution in steam navigation. For this, amongst other reasons, the directors have pressed forward the construction of a number of new vessels with this improved description of machinery, and when the vessels now contracted for are completed, the company will possess twenty-two vessels, aggregating 60,000 tons and 11,000-horse power thus fitted. In addition to this, however, it becomes necessary, as the boilers of the older steamers grow defective, to replace not only their boilers, and refit them in the ordinary way, but to supply them also with new engines, regard being of course had in carrying out this work to the other qualifications of the steamers for the constantly changing character of the company's service.

Under these circumstances, the directors have contracted for new boilers and machinery for the following steamers, viz., Surat, Mongolia, Bangalore, Sumatra, Sunda, Malacca, Geelong, and Avoca. Two of these vessels, the Surat and Mongolia, will receive entirely new engines, and the former vessel will also be lengthened about fifty feet. In the case of the other steamers, the machinery can fortunately be converted to the new principle without being entirely replaced. The cost of this work will be very considerable, and the proprietors will therefore realise the absolute necessity of providing for it to some extent by anticipation.

ITALIAN MAIL SERVICE.

In the report submitted to the shareholders at the last half-yearly meeting, details were given of a successful negotiation with the Italian Government for an extension of the company's Brindisi line to Ancona and Venice. The contract having been ratified by the King and Parliament of Italy, the service was commenced on July 26. This line has fully satisfied the anticipations of the directors, and affords ample promise of increased importance.

THE SECRETARY.

Mr. Howell, after a connection with the company extending over a period of thirty years, during twenty-five of which he filled with great advantage to the company the responsible position of secretary, has been compelled, owing to the state of his health, to resign his appointment. Under the circumstances, the board had no hesitation in awarding him a retiring allowance, feeling assured of the cordial approval of the proprietors. The board have selected Mr. A. M. Bethune to fill the vacancy. Mr. Bethune ably represented the company in Egypt for a considerable time, and for some years past has been attached to the management in London.

CAPITAL, REVENUE, AND EXPENDITURE.

The amount of share capital continues in the same position as during the last four years, viz., £2,700,000 paid-up capital, and £800,000 uncalled; the amount of debentures at present issued is £700,000. The receipts for the past twelve months show an increase of £30,000 over those of the previous year, but two-thirds of this amount arise from transport services.

The directors have again to report an increasing competition upon all the Company's Eastern lines. Upwards of 1,250,000 tons of shipping have passed through the Suez Canal in competition with the company, against 700,000 tons during the previous year. Many of these vessels have carried passengers at lower rates than the company, while, in their most important field of operations, viz., the Bombay trade, the utmost depression has existed in the freight market throughout the whole year. To such an extent has this been the case, that the net freights obtained by the company between Southampton and Bombay, after deducting the expense of transit through Egypt, have averaged only 15s. to 20s. per ton. Under these adverse circumstances the directors have been enabled to sustain the receipts of the company by the increased carrying capacity of the new steamers, and by developing other fields of operation beyond those embraced by the Mail Service.

The expenditure, upon the whole, exhibits a diminution, as compared with last year, of £38,000. A great part of this may be attributed to the diminished cost of victualling the company's steamers since the practice was commenced of selling wine, instead of including it in the passage-money. But it must be remembered that any economy in this direction has been more than counterbalanced by the reduction in the rates of passage-money.

The rise in the price of coal, of labour, and of almost every article used for the purposes of steam navigation, has materially affected the result of the year's operations, while the competition created by the Suez Canal has prevented any corresponding increase in freights. The directors beg to conclude by recommending a dividend of 3 per cent., free of income-tax, for the six months ending 30th September last, making, with 3 per cent. declared in June, and the payment of 1 per cent. from the underwriting account, a total of 7 per cent. for the year.

LITERATURE.

Una: or, the Early Marriage. By Harriette Bowra. London: Hodder and Stoughton.—This is a single volume novel, which fully bears out a statement appearing upon its title-page that it is a "domestic story." The plot—if plot it may be termed—consists simply of the history of the early married life of a young couple whose happiness is for a time obscured by the darkening influences of mutual misunderstandings. Resembling "Redlands"—a work by the same authoress, which was noticed in these columns some time since—in the fact of being utterly free from that besetting sin of most female authorship—sensationalism—the interest of the reader is secured not only by the skilful development of the story, but to an equal, if not a greater, degree, by the fluent, easy, and graceful style which characterises the author's writing. We heartily recommend the book, believing that there are few who, once commencing its perusal, will not continue to the end.

In 1870 M. E. Simon, Acting Consul at Foochow, presented to the Social Economy Society of Paris, an account of the manners and institutions of Paris which has just been published in the Journal Officiel. Amongst other interesting facts M. Simon states that there exists in China a register called the "Book of the Family," in which are inscribed all good actions and all punishments. It is the only civil register that exists in the Empire; in it the father registers his child's birth, and thus endows him with all the rights arising from such filiation; in it also marriages and deaths are entered. The severest punishment that can be inflicted is the erasure of a name from the book; a man whose name is so erased loses all civil rights, is a stranger everywhere—an outlaw. Death is nothing to a Chinese compared with this! It was not a low state of civilisation in which the grand idea of such a moral register was produced.

M. Lazareff has found an interesting relic to the north of the Ural mountains, and has communicated it to the Paris Academy. The inscription is engraved on a piece of native silver. M. Sackaroff, professor of Chinese at St. Petersburg, says that the commencement of the inscription is easily read, that the characters belong to the Chinese vulgate—the first character represents twenty-six, the second, inn, signifies silver, and the third, ghirm, metal; the rest is very doubtful. It appears, however, that the inscription is very ancient, and this bit of silver warrants the supposition either, that the Chinese in ancient times worked the silver mines of the Ural mountains, or were in communication with those who did.

At the last meeting of the Royal Asiatic Society, Mr. J. Ferguson, V.P., read a paper on a portion of the route traversed by the Chinese traveller, Hiouen-Thsang, in India, between the years 730 and 744 A.D. The writer commenced by stating his reasons for distrusting the principles of criticism adopted by those who had hitherto attempted to follow the pilgrim in his travels. After explaining the rules he had framed, he proceeded to state that, in that part of the route he had selected for examination, extending over upwards of 3,000 miles, he had not found it necessary to alter the text of his author in a single instance, either for direction or distance; but, on the contrary, he had found the indications in the text so uniformly consistent and correct, that he believed they were in nearly all instances sufficient to determine within narrow limits of error the position of all the places mentioned. The author of the paper then proceeded to examine in detail each of the various stages traversed by Hiouen-Thsang, from the time when he crossed the Ganges at Patna, going southward till he crossed the Nerbudda on his route to Bullabhi; pointing out, as he went along, the discrepancies between his determinations and those of M. Vivien de St. Martin and General Cunningham, who had preceded him in the attempt of identifying the names of places occurring in the traveller's narrative. The discrepancies between his conclusions and those of the scholars who preceded him in the inquiry are so great that the question is evidently one of principle rather than of detail. In the opinion of the writer, the remaining two portions of Hiouen-Thsang's journey—namely, from the time of his entering the Cabul valley till he crosses the Ganges at Patna and enters Magadha, and that which extends from the time he left Ballabhi till he returned to Nalanda—require re-examination quite as much as the middle portion.

Mr. George Smith, of the British Museum, has issued a most interesting account of the record of the Deluge which he has lately deciphered from the Assyrian monuments. He writes:—"The cuneiform inscription which I have recently found and translated gives a long and full account of the Deluge. It contains the version or tradition of this event which existed in the early Chaldean period at the city of Erech (one of the cities of Nimrod), now represented by the ruins of Warka. In this newly-discovered inscription the account of the Deluge is put as a narrative into the mouth of Xisuthrus or Noah. He relates the wickedness of the world, the command to build the ark, its building, the filling of it, the Deluge, the resting of the ark on a mountain, the sending out of the birds, and other matters. The narrative has a closer resemblance to the account transmitted by the Greeks from Berosus, the Chaldean historian, than to the Biblical history, but it does not differ materially from either; the principal differences are as to the duration of the Deluge, the name of the mountain on which the ark rested, the sending out of the birds, &c. The cuneiform account is much longer and fuller than that of Berosus, and has several details omitted both by the Bible and the Chaldean historian. This inscription opens up many questions of which we knew nothing previously, and it is connected with a number of other details of Chaldean history which will be both interesting and important. This is the first time any inscription has been found with an account of an event mentioned in Genesis."

The Council of the Society of Arts contemplates a movement which has for its aim the extension of the usefulness of that Society, which has already to be congratulated as having done, under the guidance of its officers and its excellent and accomplished secretary, Mr. Le Neve Foster, M.A., an immense service to the social and domestic arts of Great Britain. The Council is about to appeal to its members to suggest how best their numbers could be increased, so as to justify their undertaking the work; and one of the suggestions is embodied in the following:—"Hitherto each member has had the privilege of purchasing a season ticket for the International Exhibition at the reduced price of one guinea. It is proposed, should a sufficient response be made to this appeal, that each member shall receive, on personal application for the same, a season ticket free of all charge. Also, that all members elected in future shall pay an entrance-fee of one guinea, which is desirable, as giving permanency to the Society." The number of members is at present about 3,500; and looking at the extensive field of the Society's action, it is believed that this field might be readily doubled.

THE EDINBURGH REVIEW ON THE KOREA.

CHRISTIANITY AND MISSIONARIES.

To say nothing of the hosts of native Christians in Japan, who perished wholesale rather than apostatise in the persecutions of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, an indisputable constancy on behalf of their religion has been shown by the poor and despotically-governed peasants of Tonquin and Annam, despite a series of bloody persecutions; whilst in Korea it is impossible not to recognise a singular degree both of readiness in accepting and of steadfastness in adhering to the doctrines introduced by the Roman Catholic propagandists. The secret of the enigma may perhaps be found in the passion evinced by all these races for combinations partaking of the nature of secret societies, a similarity with which the force of events has invariably caused the fraternities of converts to assume. A Korean or Annamese of the lower class, accustomed only to unremitting labour under the eye of a callous despotism, and holding his life and fortune entirely subject to the pleasure of merciless officials or nobles, may well find a striking relief from the hard monotony of his cheerless existence in admission to the mysteries, of which, irrespectively of rank or wealth, he finds himself eagerly welcomed as an adept. There is a sense of security in the mere feeling that one is linked to others by a common bond of risk; and, once indoctrinated in the elements of faith presented for the neophyte's acceptance, he becomes subject to the most impressionable sentiments of the mind. The promise of a blest hereafter which Christianity holds forth, sheds an unaccustomed ray of encouragement and hope into souls for which pagan religions offer no adequate solace of this kind. We are speaking not without authority when we observe that it is this vision of a happy land beyond the grave, and notably of the reunion hereafter with the spirits of loved ones who have gone before, that furnishes the Christian missionary, Protestant no less than Catholic, with some of his most effectual arguments. The hope of an hereafter, or, in other words, the great Christian doctrine of immortality and the resurrection of the dead, is the true source of the fervour with which Christianity was avowed by multitudes of Koreans within the space of a few years.

Certain it is, notwithstanding the persecutions of 1788, followed by even still more stringent measures in later years, that the Korean Christians continued to increase in number; and a year or two later they despatched an emissary, named Paul Li, to obtain assurances from the Bishop of Peking, respecting certain doubts that had arisen among them upon points of doctrine and practice. According to the missionary relations, the accounts brought back by Paul Li of the delight he had experienced in participating in the sacraments and assisting in the ceremonies of the Church fired to so great an extent the imaginations of his countrymen that they longed for admission to similar privileges, and for the presence among them of duly qualified priests. The messenger was sent back to Peking accordingly, and received from the Bishop what was necessary for the celebration of the mass, together with instructions how to manufacture wine. It was arranged that a priest should be sent to a rendezvous on the frontier, where he was to be met by Korean Christians; and in the beginning of 1791 a missionary was actually sent from Peking; but on arriving at the appointed spot he encountered no one, and was obliged to turn back. A fresh persecution had broken out in Korea, and for some time all communication with the outer world was cut off. At length, in 1795, after more than one unsuccessful attempt, a young Chinese, who had been ordained as priest, and had received the name of Jacques Velloz, succeeded in crossing the frontier, and was enthusiastically welcomed among the native Christians. From the fragmentary notices that have been handed down with respect to this period it would appear that the reigning sovereign withheld consent from the severe measures of repression urged upon him by a party among his councillors, and refused to sanction an ordinance aimed at the complete extirpation of the new doctrines. Thanks to this hesitation, Christianity, while mercilessly persecuted by individual functionaries, found at least a refuge in certain districts of the kingdom, where more lenient governors bore rule; and notwithstanding frequent proscriptions and many wholesale executions, the number of Christians "solidement convertis" was estimated at 10,000 in 1800. At this epoch the death of the King supervened, and during a regency which ensued the hostile party gained a temporary ascendant. The opportunity was embraced to inaugurate a fresh persecution, and active search was made for the missionary Jacquez Vellos, who, after many hairbreadth escapes, was finally taken prisoner. He was publicly executed on May 21, 1801, and for more than thirty years after this event the Korean Christians remained without a priest.

ANNUAL EMBASSY TO PEKING.

Notwithstanding the literary dependence upon her gigantic neighbour, Korea has steadfastly maintained for many generations a policy of strict isolation almost as severe with reference to the Chinese as towards all other nations. The only intercourse allowed with China is officially confined to two points, viz., Peking, which is visited annually by an envoy accompanied by a certain number of privileged traders, and the "gate town" near the city of Feng-hwang in Manchuria, on the frontier dividing the two countries, where a fair is periodically held. Beside this, an irregular traffic is maintained by Chinese junks, sailing from the ports of Chefoo and Wei-hai Wei in Shantung, which carry on a surreptitious trade at the islands on the coast of Korea, and notably at the mouth of the river Ya-lu. The annual embassy visits Peking in the winter season, and the traders who accompany it bring with them ginseng and other drugs, paper, and cotton-cloth. The number of each embassy is not allowed to exceed two hundred persons, and their stay is limited to forty days. Although largely employed as a means of carrying on trade, the object of the mission is nominally no other than that of presenting a congratulatory memorial from the King of Korea to his suzerain, and of receiving in return a copy of the Chinese Imperial calendar, which is issued as one of the attributes of Chinese supremacy to dependent States.

THE FRENCH EXPEDITION.

Two bishops and seven missionaries having thus perished, there remained in Korea but three of the French missionaries, MM. Ridel, Calais, and Féron, whose position long remained one of the most painful uncertainty. One of their number, now entitled Monseigneur Ridel, having been designated as the martyred bishop's successor, has recounted to us how, after succeeding in rejoining his two associates in one of the southern districts of Korea, the three missionaries spent six weeks in concealment in a small loft in the interior of a poor Christian widow's hut, affording them barely room to crouch or lie down, and whence they dared only emerge after nightfall in order to snatch a mouthfull of air at the cottage door. It was at length decided that M. Ridel should make his way across to China as bearer of the news of what had occurred; and having succeeded in reaching the coast, he slipped away to sea on board a diminutive and leaky junk, manned by eleven native converts. After a seven days' voyage he reached Cheefoo, one of the Chinese ports opened by treaty to foreign trade, situated on the great promontory of Shantung, immediately opposite the Korean coast. He arrived at this port on the 7th July, 1866, and proceeded at once to Tientsin, where the French naval commander-in-chief, Admiral Roze, happened to be at that time. The intelligence of what had occurred was at once forwarded to the French Chargé d'Affaires at Peking, M. Henri de Bellonet, who, unfortunately for the interests of his country, had carried into diplomacy the rude customs and unmeasured language of the African Zouaves, in whose ranks he had served at one period of his career. On the 13th July, M. de Bellonet addressed to Prince Kung, the chief of the Chinese Foreign Office, a despatch, of which the following extract comprises the principal portion:—

"I grieve to bring officially to the knowledge of your Imperial Highness a horrible outrage committed in the small kingdom of Korea, which formerly assumed the bonds of vassalage to the Chinese Empire, but which this act of savage barbarity has for ever separated from it.

"In the course of the month of March last, the two French bishops who were evangelising Korea, and with them nine missionaries, seven Korean priests, and a great multitude of Christians of both sexes and of every age, were massacred by order of the sovereign of that country.

"The Government of his Majesty cannot permit so bloody an outrage to be unpunished. The same day on which the King of Korea laid his hands upon my unhappy countrymen was the last of his reign; he himself proclaimed its end, which I in my turn solemnly declare to-day. In a few days our military forces are to march to the conquest of Korea, and the Emperor, my august sovereign alone, has now the right and the power to dispose, according to his good pleasure, of the country and of the vacant throne."

Two or three days later Prince Kung replied in a very courteous strain, observing that "as Korea is an out-of-the-way country, lying in a secluded corner, and, as is well known, has always strictly maintained its own regulations, I am quite unaware what has led them (sic in original) to put these missionaries and Christians to death. Still I am sensible of the friendly feelings which have led your Excellency thus to communicate to me the reasons for the French Government in moving its forces against the country." The Prince wound up by suggesting that some preliminary inquiry might not be out of place before a resort should be had to arms.

Meanwhile M. de Bellonet had decided, on his own authority, that the French naval forces should at once proceed to invade Korea, without awaiting instructions from home; and Admiral Roze was requested to take measures accordingly. Just at this time, however, intelligence arrived from the French possessions in Cochin China, announcing an insurrection among the natives, and the French squadron was compelled to hurry southward for the protection of Saigon. Some months elapsed before it could again repair to the Chinese waters, but towards the end of September, 1866, Admiral Roze arrived at Chefoo with the frigate Guerriere, corvettes Primauguet and Laplace, and the gunboats Kien-chan, Déroulède, Le Breton, and Tardif. The two missionaries, MM. Feron and Calais, who had been left behind in Korea on M. Ridel's departure, had in the interim found means of effecting their escape, and brought news that persecution still continued to harass the native converts.

The gunboats Tardif and Déroulède were detailed to effect a preliminary survey of the river approaches to the Korean capital; and having entered the embouchure of the Han, which they found undefended, they followed its course upwards entirely unopposed for a distance of some fifty miles, until they found themselves actually in front of the walls of Séoul. Here they anchored for a few hours, the officers diligently employed in hydrographic observations, whilst half the population of the city lined the river bank and gazed in wonder at the unaccustomed spectacle. No attempt at molestation was encountered, though several forts commanding the river were passed, and the gunboats finally steamed away after completing their exploratory mission. It was fully ascertained that Séoul might be reached by vessels of moderate draught, but the somewhat unpleasant fact (to nautical minds) was noted that the rise and fall of the tides in the River Han reach the remarkable extent of fifty or sixty feet, combined with currents of unusual force. On the 11th of October Admiral Roze set sail from Chefoo with his entire squadron, and two days later he anchored opposite an island known to the French surveyors as l'ile Boisée, in the embouchure of the river descending from Séoul. At the mouth of the river lies the large insular tract forming the district of Kiang-hwa or Kang-hoa, comprising the city of that name, and here, without any attempt at communication with the Korean Government, a force was landed from the French ships on the 14th of October, and moved inland to attack the city. After some insignificant skirmishing, unattended with loss on the side of the French, Kang-hoa was escaladed and found almost wholly deserted by its inhabitants. Silver ingots to the value of about 190,000 francs were discoverd in the treasury and became lawful prize of war; whilst some curious specimens of Korean art in metal-work and textile fabrics formed the principal trophies of the Royal residence which was found to exist within the walls of the town.

At this time, so unwarlike had the institutions of the country become, and so little was the Regent prepared, despite his now implacable resolve to refuse all intercourse with the outer world, to meet an invasion, that the only force at his disposal for resisting or rather for harassing the French expedition consisted in some bodies of men hurriedly called in from the forests of the north, where their avocations as woodsmen and hunters had familiarised them with the use of firearms, and inured them to habits of daring. Eight disabled and dismounted cannon, with a stock of powder and useless muskets, constituted all the munitions of war discovered at Kang-hoa; and it cannot be doubted that had the small French force of some 500 or 600 men been pushed on at once, they would have entered the capital with little more difficulty than they experienced in the capture of Kang-hoa. Common prudence, nevertheless, was opposed to such an advance into an unknown country, with the prospect of finding that the Government had removed into the depths of the interior even should the capital be successfully reached. It was probably hailed as a relief, therefore, from the embarrassing condition in which this somewhat headlong expedition found itself when, after a few days' delay, a vague and wordy despatch was received from a Korean general, who professed a desire to negotiate respecting the designs of the French commander. A reply was forwarded to this communication, demanding the punishment of the three Ministers who had counselled the execution of the missionaries, and the appointment of plenipotentiaries with whom Admiral Roze might treat; but within a day or two after this letter was despatched it became evident that the Koreans were bent merely on gaining time, and that numerous levies were being assembled for the purpose of surrounding and overwhelming the handful of invaders. Armed bodies began to appear on the opposite bank of the river, whence by land to the capital is a distance of but twelve or fifteen miles, and on the 26th of October a reconnoitring force sent in this direction fell into an ambush, and was driven back with considerable loss. A larger force was landed on the following day, but met with no better success. Advancing against a line of breastworks where the Korean force was supposed to be lodged, the French force found themselves suddenly confronted by about 500 soldiers, who greeted them with a heavy fire. Thirty-five of the French fell wounded, including three officers, and being unprovided with artillery the attacking party was compelled to retreat after returning with interest the Korean fire. Finding the task he had undertaken entirely beyond the means at his disposal, Admiral Roze reluctantly abandoned Kang-hoa, embarked his forces, and returned to Chefoo, where instructions from the French Government were met by no means supporting the hasty action inaugurated by their Chargé d'Affaires at Peking.

The exultation of the Koreans on this triumph over the first European invaders of their sacred soil may be easily imagined; and it is mortifying to record that at a date posterior to the entire abandonment of the French expedition M. de Bellonet was still inditing despatches in a tone of singular bombast to the Chinese Government. On the 11th of November, 1866, after accusing the Chinese (on evidence which has never been substantiated) of "complicity" in the murder of the missionaries and of affording encouragement to the hostile feelings of the Koreans, he wrote:—

"It is of no consequence for us to know the reasons which led the Koreans to commit this execrable offence; the deed is done. . . . I have already given the most precise instructions that the culpable mandarins, whose names I have been able to procure, shall be tried and executed as soon as they fall into our hands. As for the fate of the ci-devant King of Korea, it is now subject to the decision of the Emperor, my august master. . . .

"I ought, in closing, to bring to the notice of your Imperial Highness that military operations once commenced, as they now are, I cannot stop them before we have attained the end we have set for ourselves. Every attempt at conciliation will now be useless, unless the ci-divant King of Korea surrenders at discretion, and implores the mercy of the Emperor, our august sovereign, trusting to his generosity. It is for your Imperial Highness to see if you can give this advice to the Korean Government."

The Chinese Foreign Office, greatly disturbed by the receipt of such bellicose communications, at length submitted them to the various European representatives at Peking, as also to the United States Minister, by whose Government they were subsequently made public. It is only fair to the Government of the Emperor Napoleon to add that M. de Bellonet's language and proceedings were equally disapproved and were followed by his recall; but this correspondence was, nevertheless, dexterously employed in the following year by Mr. Burlingame, the then United States representative at Peking, as one of the reasons for his own appointment (with an immense salary) as Chinese ambassador to the Western Powers.

THE AMERICAN EXPEDITION.

Meanwhile, by a singular coincidence, the same year which had witnessed the massacre of the missionaries had been marked by more than one event tending to fix the attention of other Governments besides the French upon Korea. On several occasions, in previous years, European vessels had been wrecked on the Korean coast, and their crews had been, if not hospitably, at least humanely treated, although placed under jealous restrictions so long as they remained on Korean soil. In June, 1866, the American schooner Surprise was wrecked on an island near the north-western coast, and her crew, having reached the mainland in safety, were kept for twenty-four days under guard at a fishing village, while instructions from the capital were awaited by the officials who took them in charge. During this time they were abundantly supplied with food and even with medicines for the sick; and they were finally sent under escort to the Chinese frontier, having every reason to be satisfied with their treatment until they arrived, after a tedious journey, upon Chinese territory, when starvation and harsh treatment took the place of the kindly entertainment they had previously met with. In August of the same year the British steamer Emperor was privately despatched on an experimental voyage to Korea by a mercantile firm in Shanghai, and this vessel penetrated to within a short distance of the capital. No symptoms of hostility were betrayed by the Korean officials who visited her, but the determination arrived at by the Regent to permit no commercial intercourse with foreigners was firmly manifested, and a proposal on the part of the enterprising captain to "make a treaty" was politely negatived. No reference was made during this visit to the recent murder of the missionaries. Simultaneously with this undertaking, another attempt to break through the barriers of Korean exclusiveness was being made in another direction. On the very day that the Emperor steamed up the river Séoul, an American schooner, the General Sherman, left the Port of Chefoo, secretly bound for Korea. Her voyage, destined to a melancholy ending and to give rise to important results, was a venture on the part of a British trader at Tientsin (who held also the appointment of United States Consul at that port), and she was freighted with an assortment of merchandise specially selected with an eye to Korean requirements. Three United States citizens were on board the General Sherman, viz., her owner, Mr. Preston, with the master and mate, named respectively Page and Wilson; besides whom she carried two British subjects—the supercargo, Mr. George Hogarth, and the Rev. Mr. Thomas, a young missionary of great promise as a linguist, who, already possessing a remarkable knowledge of the Chinese language, had acquired some acquaintance with the Korean, and had previously visited the islands on the coast of Korea in a native junk. There was, in addition, a crew of some fifteen or twenty Malays. Notwithstanding a full knowledge the individuals of this party had obtained, before leaving Chefoo, of the massacre of the French missionaries, they did not hesitate to prosecute their voyage, and the vessel ascended the course of the P'ing-jang river for a distance of four tides. Many weeks elapsed during which nothing was heard of her subsequent fate, until at length, on the arrival of the French exploring expedition in the river Séoul, a native convert who made his way to Père Ridel, informed the latter that a foreign vessel, which had lately entered the P'ing-jang, had been destroyed by fire with all on board in obedience to orders from the Regent. This distressing intelligence was subsequently confirmed by the Chinese pilot who had navigated the vessel for some distance up the river, but who had cautiously left her on discovering that danger was menaced. All information received at this time and subsequently was to the effect that the General Sherman had been left high and dry at a point some distance from the mouth of the river, in consequence of having diverged from the proper channel during a period of floods; that the Europeans on board had been at first received with apparent friendliness and beguiled with promises of trade; but that after a period of treacherous delay (the local officials having meanwhile received instructions from the capital) some of her European passengers were inveigled into landing under the pretext that negotiations for trade were about to be entered upon, and were immediately set upon and murdered. At the same moment a large body of Koreans surrounded the vessel as she lay helplessly stranded, and piled brushwood around her in heaps. Fire was then set to the pile, and she was destroyed with all who still remained on board.

The intelligence of this frightful act of barbarity was duly communicated to the United States Minister at Peking, at whose request a corvette, the Wachusetts, was despatched to make inquiries respecting what was stated to have occurred. A letter, addressed to her commander by order of the Korean Government, but not received until 1868, when a second visit was made to the coast, admitted the destruction of the General Sherman, casting all blame, however, upon those on board the unfortunate vessel. They were accused of having wantonly seized and detained a high Korean official, and of having "rent to pieces with their cannon" the native trading junks, thus rousing to a pitch of irrepressible fury the passions of the multitude, by whom, it was hinted, and not by their rulers, the vessel and all on board had been destroyed. This vague and wholly incredible story was further repeated to the Chinese Government in reply to inquiries instituted by them at the request of the United States representative.

Attention having been drawn to Korea by these varied events, a fresh incident occurred in 1868, which led (strangely enough) to the recent American demonstration in that country. In May of that year a steamer under the German flag returned to Shanghai, after a voyage to Korea; and the object of her visit thither, although for some time kept secret, at length oozed out. It appeared that a Mr. Jenkins, a son of the American Vice-Consul (formerly a missionary) at Shanghai, and himself long employed as consular interpreter, had proceeded in the steamer China to a point near the Korean capital, in company with a French priest and a needy Hamburgh trader, named Oppert, with the design of excavating the site of a royal mausoleum, pointed out by the priest, and of abstracting from it a coffin of gold containing the remains of a former sovereign which was supposed to be enshrined within. Apart from its value as bullion, the possession of this treasure would insure the consent of the Koreans, it was asserted by Mr. Jenkins's priestly confederate, to any demands that may be made upon them. A large number of Chinese and Manilamen formed the rank and file of this buccaneering expedition. On reaching the assigned spot the whole party, well armed, commenced their search for the buried treasure; but an alarm was given, the Korean villagers turned out en masse, and the intending desecrators were driven back to their ship, with the loss of one or two men. Having put back to Shanghai, the China's expedition could not long be kept from the knowledge of the public; and its leader, the worthy Mr. Jenkins, was arraigned by the United States Consul-General, Mr. Seward, on a charge of violating the United States neutrality laws, but was acquitted on technical grounds.

Nothing was heard for some time after this of Korea or the General Sherman affair, until at the end of 1870 it began to be rumoured that the United States Government had measures in contemplation for a diplomatic mission in that direction, to be supported by a strong naval force; and on the appearance in December of that year of the papers laid before Congress, it became known that a protracted correspondence had been carried on for some time past with reference to this subject. This correspondence had originated with a despatch written in April 1868, by Mr. Seward, announcing to his Government, on the authority of the above-mentioned Mr. Jenkins, the arrival at Shanghai of certain Korean Ambassadors charged with a mission of inquiry, with whom, Mr. Jenkins represented, he was to visit Korea, for the purpose of making arrangements for the despatch of a Korean embassy to the United States. This scarcely probable story does not appear to have aroused any suspicion in Mr. Seward's mind, and no impediment was placed in the way of Mr. Jenkins's departure—with the results already narrated above. The Consul-General subsequently wrote at great length to his superiors at Washington, dilating upon the advantages which, in his opinion, the opening of Korea to foreign commerce could not fail to insure; but in the month of July it became his duty to explain that the pretended embassy had proved to be a myth, and that Mr. Jenkins and his confederates had in fact been engaged in a body-snatching enterprise; or, as he officially worded it, in "an attempt to take from their tombs the remains of one or more sovereigns of Korea, for the purpose, it would seem, of holding them to ransom."

Undignified, to say the least of it, as the position of the United States had become through this unlawful enterprise, the recommendations previously urged by Mr. Seward did not remain unheeded. It was decided that a naval force should be despatched to Korea, and the United States Minister at Peking, Mr. F. Low, was commissioned to accompany it, with full powers to open negotiations. The objects to be held in view were the conclusion, if possible, of a commercial treaty; but should this be found impracticable, a convention in the interests of shipwrecked seamen of the United States was to be accepted. The Minister was finally reminded that, while firmly maintaining "the right of the United States to have their seamen protected," a conflict by force was to be "avoided, unless it cannot be avoided without dishonour." No communication appears to have been made to any of the European Powers with reference to the intended expedition, notwithstanding the deep interest naturally taken in such a matter by all maritime nations; and it must be inferred that the honour of opening Korea to the commerce of the world was exclusively reserved to itself by the Government of General Grant. Strangely enough, however, with so practical a people as that of the United States, the means adopted for effecting his object were palpably inadequate. The squadron placed under Admiral Rodgers's command consisted of one heavy frigate, the Colorado, a vessel of the most antiquated type; two fine corvettes, the Benicia and Alaska, whose only defect (a fatal one in this case) lay in their excessive draught of water; one iron paddle-wheel gun-vessel, and a small tender formerly employed as a tugboat. The whole squadron mustered a force of some 1,300 men, but indifferently supplied with equipments for landing, or even with breech-loading firearms. On their arrival in the Chinese waters the American officers looked with feelings akin to envy upon the flotilla of light-draught gunboats flying the British flag, which they recognised as precisely the same sort of craft most needed in an expedition of the kind they were about to undertake, in lieu of their own formidable-looking but in reality useless ships. The concurrence of the British naval forces would doubtless have been welcomed, when a nearer insight of the task about to be undertaken disclosed a portion of its difficulties; but, in the absence of any previous understanding between the Governments, co-operation was of course impossible.

After numerous delays arising from extraneous causes, the United States plenipotentiary, Mr. Low, at length reached the Korean coast on board Admiral Rodgers's flagship; and the squadron took up its position, at the end of May, 1871, in the same anchorage where the vessels commanded by Admiral Roze had lain in 1866. Some petty officials shortly afterwards made their appearance, and were informed by Mr. Low's interpreters of the object of his arrival, being at the same time notified that, after a sufficient delay to allow the pacific nature of the mission to become known, the steam-launches of the squadron would proceed to effect a survey of the river higher up. Accordingly, on June 1, four steam-launches and the two light-draught vessels of the squadron advanced up the stream. On reaching a point where the river narrows, at a distance of about twelve miles above l'Isle Boisée, the flotilla was suddenly greeted by a tremendous cannonade discharged from batteries commanding the channel, which were seen to be numerously manned. Not unprepared for a collision, and fortunately uninjured by the unskilful fire of the Koreans, heavy though it was, the Americans returned the salute in gallant style with their howitzers; and after an action lasting some fifteen minutes the batteries were swept clear of their defenders, who lost thirty killed, while on the American side only two seamen were wounded. The little expeditionary force then retired to the anchorage; and after vainly waiting for ten days to receive an apology or explanation of this treacherous attack, a landing force was put in motion to take vengeance for the insult offered to the United States flag. A total force of 945 men was thrown on shore on Kang-hoa Island, and advanced to the attack of the batteries which had opened fire upon the surveying flotilla. Although numerously defended by a host of Koreans, evidently quite prepared for the conflict, who stood their ground with an unflinching steadfastness which won the admiration of their assailants, the batteries were captured without difficulty, after being swept by the fire of half-a-dozen howitzers; and the citadel, a breastwork placed on the summit of a rocky eminence, was carried at the point of the bayonet, after frightful slaughter had been wrought among the Korean garrison by the fire of the American artillery. Three killed and seven wounded represented the total loss of the attacking party, whilst on the Korean side between four hundred and five hundred dead bodies were actually counted after the action terminated. Although in sight of the town of Kang-hoa, the victorious Americans were not tempted to follow the example of the French in taking possession of this place; and after destroying the batteries and removing hundreds of the gingals with which they were armed, Admiral Rodgers withdrew his force to their ships—only to find that his demonstration of force had proved wholly ineffectual in overcoming the passive resistance of the Korean rulers. The only result of Mr. Low's overtures and Admiral Rodgers' vigorous blows was a communication in which the uncompromising defiance of the Regent was boldly expressed, and in a few laconic sentences the Americans were told that no persuasion would remove him from his resolve to maintain the seal of exclusion upon his country. "Do you want our land?" he wrote. "That cannot be. Do you want intercourse with us? That cannot be either." Whereupon, after a further stay of three weeks at Boisée anchorage, the American squadron, wholly incapable of pushing farther into the interior, turned its back on Korean waters, as Admiral Roze had done in 1866.

Two of the most powerful nations of the West have thus crossed swords with Korea, and it must be admitted that, comparing the initiatory pretensions with the results achieved, their efforts have wholly failed. What arrogance has been begotten in the minds of the Koreans by their repulse of the French in 1866 has been abundantly shown in their demeanour towards foreigners of late years in the person of members of their annual embassy to Peking; and this cannot fail to have become enhanced by the virtual success with which they have withstood the American endeavours to enter into relations with them. The task of bringing Korea within the pale of international obligations, whilst rendered all the more needful by the recent failures in that direction, has become from this very cause the more difficult of accomplishment. It is impossible, however, that the Maritime Powers can much longer tolerate a state of affairs which places in jeopardy the lives of their seamen whom adverse winds may cast ashore in this inhospitable region, and which dictates the instant abandonment (as has lately happened in more than one instance) of valuable property when vessels are merely stranded within sight of the Korean coast. The numerous accidents incidental to navigation are sufficient to render nugatory those pretensions to a right to shut out all intercourse with the world which Korea alleges, and in which the self-satisfied judgment of a school of modern political philosophers is disposed to concur. But a question of graver importance than even that of enforcing in Korea a respect, at least for civilised usages, so wantonly set at naught in the case of the General Sherman, is involved in the unhappy impression produced in China by what is there considered the defeat of a foreign invasion. The hostile propensity with reference to European nations which culminated on June 21, 1870, in the dreadful massacre at Tientsin, is believed to have gained its first serious impetus from the unfortunate issue of Admiral Roze's campaign in Korea; and the virtual failure of a still more conspicuous expedition, to support which in its efforts to bring the Korean Government within the comity of nations Chinese aid had been fruitlessly invoked, is only too likely to strengthen the inclination towards overtly resisting European demands for the fulfilment of treaty previsions which has been strikingly betrayed of late at Peking.

FORMOSA.

WHEN the ports of Formosa were opened by Treaty to British trade little or nothing was known about the resources of the island, and some time elapsed even after that event before any regular trade was developed. It is true that there existed a considerable trade in camphor, but as the necessary operations were carried on principally through the agency of Chinese representatives of Hong Kong merchants, and as the mandarins failed to show any activity in protecting them or the foreigners concerned from lawlessness and fraud (frequently, it is to be feared, connived at by the mandarins themselves), there was little to induce merchants to extend their dealings. For years Formosa was cursed with the existence of the camphor monopoly, entailing, as it did, long-continued bitterness between the mandarins, who in several instances benefited by the monopoly, and the suffering British merchants. The exertions of the late Mr. Consul GIBSON having at length, however, put an end to this breach of the Treaty, matters began at last to exhibit a bright face and trade to develop itself. British capital and pluck, too, aided in the increase of business, especially at the northern end of the island, to which we now more particularly refer. Whatever may have been the cause, we find that within the last four years the very ports at the shutting up of which, as a matter of economy, Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK hinted in 1869, have witnessed a wonderful development both in the import and export of various important articles of trade. To say nothing about camphor—the export of which will always be of importance,—the cultivation of tea, which six or seven years ago was little regarded in a business point of view, has year by year increased so much as to give employment to multitudes of Chinese, who are now so interested in the enterprise of the British merchant that many indigo fields have this year been planted with the tea shrub. We believe that last year's trade exhibited an increase of eleven or twelve-fold since the commencement of the export seven years ago, and we feel certain that this year's Custom-house Returns will show a still greater difference. Shipments of coal, which abounds at Kelung, near Tamsuy, have also taken place to an important extent within the last four years; and a yearly increasing market might easily be obtained were the Chinese Government induced to allow foreign appliances to raise the better coal from beneath the surface. Such as the export now is, it has lately given employment to a large number of vessels. Little as we know about the island of Formosa, it is a matter of notoriety that its interior is stocked with valuable wood, such as that of the camphor tree, and that its soil is eminently fitted for the production of tea, indigo, wheat, sugar, &c. Coal, it is also to be remembered, is dug up within sight of one of the open harbours, so that it can or ought to be most conveniently shipped. The resources of the island are, in fact, of such a nature that, even against deterring influences of various kinds and many a downright act of opposition on the part of the native authorities, the originally small foreign trade has magnified itself into one of vigour, and one which will, we venture to prophesy, continue to increase. Not only so, but we think that, with a better administration of justice by the Chinese officials, and the toleration of modern mechanical appliances, the ports of Formosa will send forth large quantities of such products—new to foreign trade—as may be found in the interior. Wells of kerosene oil are known to exist there. The foreign business is at present almost entirely in the hands of British subjects; and if the British Government has a desire to extend a trade which will be beneficial to its merchants, it cannot do better than regard with attention the island of Formosa. As the first step in its action, the Government should insist on better protection of British interests on the part of the Chinese authorities of the island, who are so far removed, according to Chinese ideas, from the mainland as to be, as is well known, practically free from the control or rebuke of their superiors, indifference to well-grounded complaints and grievances being the result.

THE COOLIE TRADE PROCLAMATION.

To the several checks which the coolie trade at Macao has recently received the Governor of Kwang-tung has added yet one more. Of all the nationalities engaged in the so-called emigration of coolies, the Peruvians have gained an unenviable notoriety for cruelty and illegal dealing. The cases of the Nouvelle Penelope and of the Maria Luz are too fresh in the memories of our readers to make it necessary for us to bring forward any more instances to substantiate this assertion, and we rejoice to find that the native provincial officials have at last determined to supplement the action of the Treaty Powers by putting their spoke in the wheel of the brokers engaged in the Peruvian coolie trade. For years it has been known that a very efficient system of kidnapping has been in operation in the province of Kwang-tung. The cautious way in which the kidnappers have carried on their nefarious traffic, and the impossibility of gaining any information from the victims after once they have been induced to enter the doors of the barracoons, always rendered it difficult to obtain any precise evidence against the dealers, and thus the catastrophes which have from time to time befallen the ships carrying their unhappy loads form almost the only direct proof against these robbers of men. Of course much might be done by vigilance on the part of the district mandarins to suppress the traffic; but the times are out of joint, and that efficiency which was—if history is to be believed—a marked characteristic of Chinese officials in bygone ages is rarely to be met with among the prefects and magistrates of modern China. It now no longer avails aught for the Viceroys and Governors to issue orders to their subordinates only, they must make the people act on their own defence, and thus in any emergency the inevitable proclamation appears calling on the public to assist the authorities to put an end to the particular evil in question. Such a manifesto has been issued by the Governor of Kwang-tung on the subject of the Peruvian coolie trade. In unqualified terms he condemns the traffic and calls on the people to help him to put an end to the detestable system of "pig selling." We wish this effort on the part of the Governor every success, and if the people will only supplement the vigorous action lately taken by the Imperial gunboats in the Macao waters, by seizing every kidnapper they can catch, it is quite possible that the illegal traffic in coolies may soon be numbered among the things of the past.

SIR JOHN BOWRING.

The announcement of the death of the active-minded veteran who, although in his eightieth year, was, until within the last month or two, to be seen in almost every public gathering of men of science or political notabilities, carries us back in memory to the period when the foundations of our present political relations with China were laid, and when the colony of Hong Kong first began to indicate the promise of its present greatness and importance. When Dr. Bowring, as the reward of an already long career as a political economist, statistician, and Parliamentary debater, received in 1849 his nomination to the British Consulship at Canton, the utmost that his friends and admirers expected as the result of this appointment was the production of a voluminous and painstaking report on the trade with China, to be followed perhaps, in due time, by some equally elaborate work on the condition and resources of the Chinese Empire; whilst from his antagonists and critics came an audible sneer that the stern virtue of Bentham's chosen disciple had not, after all, been proof against the temptation of a lucrative public office. Whatever may have been anticipated by Dr. Bowring's friends and foes, the destiny that awaited him in China was neither of that pacific kind which seemed alone suited to the friend of Hume and Cobden, nor a sinecure favourable to the cultivation of literature and the pursuit of difficult studies. Scarcely arrived at Canton, Dr. Bowring discovered that the amiable and peace-loving Chinese, whose readiness to accept commercial intercourse with foreigners on a just footing, had lately been extolled by his party in the House of Commons, were in reality bent upon nothing less than undoing to the greatest possible extent the concessions extorted from them in 1842; and a sample of the prevailing temper was forced on his attention by the contemptuous refusal with which his proposition for an interview with the Governor-General Sen was at once met. Cooped up in the "Old Factory" to which the residences of all Europeans were confined, the British Consul (who was not devoid of an adequate sense of his own importance) was compelled for years to submit to a humiliating course of treatment which had, however, the good effect of counteracting in Dr. Bowring's mind the lingering influences of his former views, and schooling him to a juster appreciation of the peculiar character of the Chinese. During the year 1853, Dr. Bowring was appointed to discharge for a time the duties of Governor of Hong Kong and Diplomatic Representative of Her Majesty in China; and having revisited England, on being relieved from this post by the return of Sir George Bonham, he received the honour of knighthood. Appointed in the following year to fill the posts in which he had temporarilp acted, the new Governor proceeded to the Colony with his family, and took the oaths of office on the 13th April, 1854.

At this period Hong Kong, although in the thirteenth year of its existence as a colony, had barely begun to emerge from the difficulties which attended its foundation, before capital and population had become attracted to the spot, or steam had acquired its full development as a promoter of commerce. At this time the Colonial revenue, chiefly derived from sales of land, amounted to no more than about £25,000 per annum, against an expenditure of upwards of £34,000, the Home Government being required to make up the deficiency by an annual grant. It was not until the fourth year of Sir John Bowring's Governorship that revenue and expenditure balanced each other at an amount of some £63,000, since which date the Colonial Budget, vastly as its figures have become swollen, has been managed without assistance from the home Exchequer. Numerous subjects of importance claimed from the outset the new Governor's attention. Scarcely had he taken office when intelligence was received of the declaration of war against Russia by the Sovereigns of Great Britain and France; and serious responsibilities devolved in consequence upon the civil and military authorities among whom Sir John Bowring now took a leading place. The T'aip'ing rebellion was at the same time at its height in China, and the province of Canton was desolated by an outbreak of ferocious brigandage affiliated with the rebels under Hung Sin-tsiuan. A peculiarity of this rising was the possession of strongly-armed squadrons of junks by the rebel party, and for some months the river approaches to Canton were blockaded by these piratical craft, which threatened at one time even an attack upon Hong Kong. The intervention of H.M.'s ships was employed, under Sir John Bowring's sanction, for the purpose of breaking up the rebel blockade; and when the excitement arising from these events had died away, the Governor and Plenipotentiary sought once more to obtain an interview with the Viceroy at Canton, the afterwards celebrated Yeh Mingshén, but met as before with a refusal of admission within the city. The first step towards opening communications with the Imperial councillors at Peking was now taken by Sir John Bowring, in concert with the United States Minister in China. Proceeding in vessels of war to the mouth of the Peiho, they requested and obtained the presence of the Commissioners appointed to receive the communications they had addressed to the Chinese Government; and at an interview held under the walls of the Taku Forts their interpreters, Mr. W. H. Medhurst and Dr. S. Wells Williams, endeavoured, but fruitlessly, to persuade the Chinese mandarins, sent down from Peking, to promise the removal of the grievances complained of at Canton. Unsuccessful in his endeavour to come to an amicable understanding with the Chinese, Sir John Bowring returned to his seat of Government in the South; and in his subsequent reports to the Foreign-office he was compelled to represent the utter inefficacy of any but forcible measures in further negotiations.

Directing his attention now to the state of the colony, Sir John Bowring urged on the scheme for embanking the sea front of the town of Victoria, which ultimately took the shape of the magnificent but costly and not yet completed granite sea-wall, to which the name of the Bowring Praya has been given; and under his auspices much needful legislation in matters affecting the Chinese, who now began to flock to the colony in increasing numbers, was brought into operation. The subject of emigration to countries in South America and the Spanish Main at the same time rose into importance; and while on the one hand measures were taken to check the abuses of the Cuban and Peruvian coolie trade, the passage of the "Chinese Passengers' Act" of 1855 by the British Parliament placed adequate powers in the hands of the Governor of Hong Kong for the regulation of emigration to British Colonies. In this and the following year several important engagements took place between the ships of war on the Hong Kong station and the piratical junks which at this time swarmed along the coast; and early in 1855 Sir John Bowring succeeded, during a brief mission to Siam, in concluding the first treaty between Great Britain and that country. Little more than a year afterwards, the inevitable results of the arrogant policy pursued by the Chinese Government were realised in the outbreak of hostilities at Canton in consequence of the seizure of the crew of the lorcha Arrow. The experience of the preceding seven years had convinced the ci-devant advocate of peace principles and reduction of military and naval expenditure, that without a forcible assertion of her rights Great Britain must submit to increasing obstacles in the way of trade with the Chinese, and the disciple of Bentham was not found deficient, in the hour of need, in activity and resolution when it became necessary to authorise and to support the prosecution of hostilities. The position of the Governor and Plenipotentiary became an anxious one in the following year, when Hong Kong lay under the ban of a Chinese official interdict, which stripped it of large numbers of its Chinese population, and converted many among the natives who remained into spies and auxiliaries of an unscrupulous enemy. On the 15th January, 1857, an attempt was made to poison the foreign residents of Hong Kong, by means of arsenic introduced into the bread which was distributed from the shop of the Chinese baker, Allum. Notwithstanding the fact that through the excessive quantity of the poison this diabolical scheme failed to achieve its purpose, great suffering was entailed on many individuals, and from the effect of the illness caused by eating some of the poisoned bread the first Lady Bowring's death was eventually caused.

While occupied with the conduct of hostilities against the Chinese, the attention of Sir John was at the same time claimed by grave dissensions among the Colonial officials, and peace was not promoted by the appointment to the post of Attorney-General of Mr. Chisholm Anstey, a fiery and aspiring lawyer, from the ranks of the British Parliament. The closing years of Sir John Bowring's administration were embittered by the discovery of scandals connected with a highly-favoured and important Colonial employé, who fell under suspicion of connivance with the misdeeds of a piratical association. We need do no more than refer to the occurrence of this once agitating subject of inquiry.

Relieved of his functions as Governor of Hong Kong by Mr. —now Sir Hercules-Robinson—Sir John Bowring bade farewell to Hong Kong in May, 1859, and set out on the return voyage, during which he met with shipwreck in the Red Sea. During the twelve years that have elapsed since his retirement from the public service Sir John has continued to display an unfailing interest in matters relating to China, but the record of his official career, and the elaborate work upon Chinese affairs in general which might have been expected as the production of his years of leisure, have not, so far as we are aware, proceeded from his pen. We should fail to do justice to Sir John Bowring if we omitted to bear testimony to the interest he took in laying the foundations of the existing Consular Service in China, which owes to his foresight and his representations some of its most useful features, and which found in him, as chief, an unfailing consideration and regard for justice.

THE JAPANESE EMBASSY.

On Monday last the Japanese Ambassadors visited Reading and received an address from the Mayor and Corporation. They arrived by train from London, and were met on the platform by the Mayor (Mr. H. B. Blandy), the Recorder, and the members of the Corporation. Besides the Chief Ambassador there were two associates—Okubo and Yamagutsi—with three secretaries; and the party was accompanied by Major-General Alexander and Mr. Aston. Burgesses who had looked for flowing robes and rich embroidery were altogether disappointed at seeing the Envoys in the rigid coats, hats, and other humdrum et ceteras worn by European gentlemen. It rained incessantly, and the visitors drove from the railway station through the mud amid acclamations which might have been louder if the townsfolk had not needed all their energy to hold their umbrellas against wind and wet. The address of the Corporation spoke of the "high and laudable object" with which the Envoys had left their distant home to inquire into the means of civilisation and enlightenment possessed by other nations; expressed sympathy with the desire of the Mikado for the full development of the resources and strength of Japan; and, while thanking the Ambassadors for the honour done to Reading, ventured a hope that the industrial processes to be witnessed there might give them pleasant and useful recollections on their return to their native land. To this address the Iwakura responded in Japanese, and read the following translation:—

Our Sovereign, his Majesty the Emperor of Japan, has intrusted us with the important and agreeable mission of visiting and inquiring into the various institutions and manufactures belonging to the more advanced nations of the world. Our mission has everywhere met with the greatest sympathy: and the deep interest universally shown in all that concerns the welfare of Japan—of which your cordial and valuable assistance so kindly offered this day is but another proof—has not only compensated us for our long absence from our native land, but enabled us to obtain a rich store of information, which we trust we shall be able on our return to make a profitable use of, in the future development of our empire. On behalf of our Sovereign and his subjects we take this opportunity to express our most hearty thanks for the kind manner in which you have invited us to your ancient borough. We shall take great pleasure in becoming acquainted with the objects of interest it may afford, and can assure you that his Majesty, on hearing our report, will feel no less gratification than ourselves at the cordial welcome you have given to us as his Ambassadors.

This ceremony being concluded, the Ambassadors proceeded to the biscuit factory of Messrs. Huntley and Palmer, where two members of the firm showed them the whole process of biscuit-making. Having spent two hours in the biscuit factory, the Ambassadors next drove to see another Reading speciality. Messrs. Sutton's warehouse, in which there was a show of roots, produced from the seeds sold by these well-known seedsmen. This warehouse is nearly 400 feet long and 40 feet wide. The Ambassadors were astonished at the proportions reached by some of our tubers in a soil which, in their short experience of our climate, has seemed so unblessed by sunshine. Mr. Sutton pointed out some of the champion swedes, of which twenty-five weighed 384 lbs. There were also drumhead cabbages weighing 60lb. each. Red mangolds, grown by the Marquis of Ailesbury, weighing 489 lb., or an average of more than 40lb. a piece, and mammoth mangolds with yellow flesh, rich in saccharine matter. The Chief Ambassador expressed a desire to enrich the national agriculture with some of these roots, as well as with the champion swedes, which would vary the cultivation of the white-fleshed turnips already grown in Japan. The Ambassadors were shown a model of the trophy to be exhibited by the Messrs. Sutton at Vienna, showing the sorts of roots, corn, and seeds grown in England, and were taken through the range of warehouses counting houses, lecture and reading-rooms belonging to the firm.

The Ambassadors were afterwards entertained at luncheon at the Town hall by the Mayor. Among the guests were Mr. Shaw Lefevre, M P., Colonel Blandy, Sir Peter Spokes, Rev. C. H. Travers, Mr. G. Palmer, Mr. W. J. Palmer, the Town Clerk, Mr. Sutton, and the members of the Corporation. The Mayor presided, and proposed the toasts, among them of course "The Health of the Ambassadors." The Mayor spoke of the wall of exclusiveness formerly raised by the Japanese, the complete revolution which had been effected among them, and the hearty desire of this country to respond to the overtures made by the Mikado. The Chief Envoy, in reply, thanked the Mayor for his generous hospitality, thanked all present for their warm welcome, expressed the interest which he and his colleagues felt in what they had seen during the day, hoped they would be able to profit by what they had seen, and declared an earnest wish for an increased and increasing intercourse between the two nations. The Ambassador concluded by proposing the health of the Mayor, who responded. The toast of the "Town and Trade of Reading," proposed by Mr. Shaw Lefevre, brought the proceedings to a termination.

THE SCOTCH POLICE AT HONG KONG.

It will be in the remembrance of our readers that a draft of Scotch policemen was despatched to Hong Kong about the end of last year, under the superintendence of Inspector Gray, of the Hong Kong Police. They were forty-five in number, and selected by Mr. Stuart, the Procurator Fiscal of Edinburgh, from the police forces in that city and county, the town of Leith, county of Fife, and county of Roxburgh---a fine stalwart body of unmarried men, all under thirty years of age, strong, healthy, and with first class characters. The terms of engagement were a bounty of £15 each, second-class fares on their voyage to the colony, with pay to commence from the date of embarking at Liverpool, at the rate of $480 per annum. The men are bound to serve five years, at the end of which time they will be entitled to a free passage home, or if they re-engage for an additional five years they will be entitled to a pension at the rate of one-fourth their pay at the end of two years' service. The men took their departure in two detachments, of which the second, comprising twenty five, sailed in the Glaucus, with Inspector Gray on board. In due time they arrived safely at Hong Kong. Much interest was entertained in Edinburgh regarding this experiment to keep the peace among the "heathen Chinee," by the vigorous arms of "muscular Christianity" selected from the rigid ranks of Presbyterianism. Accordingly, considerable disappointment was felt on the publication of a letter from one of the force, complaining first, of the indifferent diet they had during the voyage, secondly, of their treatment at Hong Kong, and thirdly, of the unsuitableness of the service for "free and independent" North Britons, unused to harsh drill in a hot climate. This letter, which was published in the Edinburgh Daily Review, reached the colony, and appears to have surprised the Scotch constabulary and the authorities at the erroneous and overcharged statements it contains. Numerous letters have been received by the editor of that journal, contradicting these statements, one of which, dated 26th September, is inserted in a recent issue, which will be found below. We have much satisfaction in giving it insertion, as it exonerates Inspector Gray and his colleagues of any breach of agreement with the men under their charge. Moreover, as there is a report of a second draft being engaged, it will clear away any impressions among fresh applicants for the service against joining it. The following extract is from the letter referred to:—

"I was much surprised to see in the Daily Review an extract from a letter written by one of the last batch, who left Edinburgh in December last. As I am one of the twenty-five who left on 22nd December, I know all that transpired during our voyage on board the s.s. Glaucus, and since our arrival also. I cannot conceive how my fellow-constable could forget all that really took place when he wrote the erroneous letter in question; but as the errors are too numerous to go over, I will confine myself to referring to one or two. He stated that the rations which we got on the voyage were very bad. Such was not the case. Yet I admit they were not the best; but there is a vast difference between the two extremes, and any person endowed with common sense could not reasonably expect to get the same satisfaction on sea as he would on land, especially when food could not be properly cooked, owing to the roughness of the sea. What surprises me most is, that my friend should forget his indebtedness to Inspector Gray so far as he has apparently done. He states that when we complained to the inspector he only returned us a saucy answer. I can assure you that is utterly untrue. The reverse is the case, and it can be substantiated, I think, by every one, except the writer. Mr. Gray was very civil and obliging to all the men. The only complaint made to him was about the attendance we got, and that was at once remedied by him. The cause was, that the steward got accidentally hurt, and on the inspector hearing that we had not proper attendance he got the captain to pay a regular wage to a man to wait on us. Again, my friend says there is not one of us who would not be glad to return home if he got the chance. That is also untrue. I don't believe there are five out of the whole forty-five who would accept the offer of being sent home free. Our captain is a thorough gentleman, and wishes to make us as comfortable as circumstances will permit. In short my friend has grossly misrepresented our true position. "N. M."

JAPAN BY A FRENCH MERCHANT.

A French merchant, residing in Japan, has recently written to the Moniteur, declaring that the accounts of the country are highly deceptive, and give a picture of a Japan that only exists in the imagination of the writers. The Moniteur very properly prints the letter in question, "with all reserve." The writer says that he has resided ten years in Japan, that he loves the country like a second father land, and will not be suspected of injustice towards it. In justice, however, to France, he says, he cannot allow misrepresentations to remain without contradiction, especially as they are all the more dangerous from the fact of their being founded on some real fact. Japan he declares to be a delicious country, the Japanese gay, gentle, and polite, the merchants, manufacturers, and bankers intelligent and perfectly accustomed to the execution of large commercial transactions; but, all these advantages fall before the want of intelligence and imperfect action of the functionaries. The Japanese official is described as not doing harm knowingly, but as a "young spendthrift who ruins his family." For some time, he says, these young gentlemen have cast off all restraint; at the time of the European intrusion they were kept down by authority, always great in Oriental nations, but now the bonds are all broken by the childless love of everything foreign which can never replace what has been lost. The Japanese is described as essentially imitative, but having learnt a little, he immediately fancies he knows everything. Science and philosophy do not exist in Japan, the language in fact scarcely permits their development. A great savant is a man who can read and write a large number of characters only. A man who can read and write everything is a phenomenon. With respect to science the Japanese merely catch the superficial forms, they never penetrate the depths; they are very poetical and have much sentiment; still, they are very positive, very material; looking at them from this point of view, says the merchant, we find the key to all that is passing there at present.

Speaking of the patriotism which allowed the Mikado to centralise in his own person all the powers that had been exercised by eighteen great families, he says:—But all these patriotic seigneurs were cribbed with debt; the Government has absorbed them by taking their debts to its own account, and it would seem by the course it is pursuing to be looking out for a foreign liquidator; this liquidator will probably be an association of which the members will be Russia, England and America. The central government which is thus charged with all the debts has all the world for creditors and pays for its enormous floating debt up to 4 per cent. per month interest. You will see that the end of all this must be ruin and the intervention of the foreign liquidator. When the Goverment is in want of funds it issues paper money, which has not even the value of our assignats, for it represents nothing. We take this money at a discount and pay it back to the Government at par, a very agreeable operation for us no doubt, but I should prefer serious business which promised no future danger. Japan has a regular loan in the European market; but it is also in debt to all the European bankers and merchants with whom it is in relation, and to all the native bankers and merchants it owes the enormous amount of its kinsats! In short, its affairs are much embarrassed, and instead of taking those measures which at present might prevent bankruptcy, it dreams of nothing but unproductive fancies and works which deceive no one here, such for instance as those famous railways which from the commencement were nothing but loan machines. Moreover, between ourselves, these famous railways were the condition imposed by Mr. Lay for the public loan.

From whatever side you regard the Japanese Government you find the same masquerading mingled with the European civilisation movement, and beneath the same thoughtless puerility. A grand seigneur, a relation of the Mikado's, desires to study for himself all the benefits of European civilisation; he is an ambassador, a minister plenipotentiary, and calls himself Iwakura, that is to say, Mr. Storrewarehouse. He praises the benefits of civilisation, but he is the persecutor of Christian Japanese; it is true that he takes care the martyrdom is executed in secret, and that the voices of the sufferers are silenced, that Europe may hear nothing. Everybody who travels abroad has a mission, all the ministers are now on their travels, but little inconvenience is caused thereby, for Japan has been governed for ages by third-class officials.

In conclusion, Japan is not becoming civilised, but is reviving herself. The finances are in a ruinous condition; she owes, to my knowledge, a milliard (forty millions sterling), and I do not know all. Her acts and tendencies have but one object, luxury and excessive love of European forms. This dark sketch concludes with the following sinister prophecy—"But when the governing class is ruined, the country will see a grand future open before it from its natural resources, and the practical sense of the class who really work."

SUEZ CANAL DUES.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—I think you are a little too extreme in your views regarding the increase in the Canal dues, as lately made by Mons. Lesseps. Speaking as a shipowner of many years' standing, I can safely say that when asked "What is the capacity of a ship?" the answer invariably would be the estimated amount such ship would carry in dead weight or measurement. Now it is well known that almost every steamer passing the Suez Canal carries about a tonnage and half of dead weight, i.e, about her registered gross tonnage, or double her net registered tonnage of tea, or cotton. Where then is the hardship? Sailing ships have no deductions made for sails, provisions, or coals, and pay dues on the full registered tonnage. Why, then, should not steamers, on board of which it is well known that in many cases after the coals in the bunkers are consumed, cargo between intermediate ports is frequently carried? After all, Sir, may it not be said that the shipowner does not pay the dues, but that they and all such charges are part of the freight paid by the consumers of the goods carried, and on their shoulders the burden rests. Such was the reply of Chancellor of the Exchequer to the deputation of shipowners the other day, when they asked that the Light Dues should be paid out of the Consolidated Fund instead of forming a direct charge on shipping as at present. I cannot but think that the outcry against M. Lesseps and the proprietors of the Canal is unfair and unjust; they have a right to expect a return upon the outlay they have incurred, and if they think they can get it by charging on the tonneau de capacite, I maintain they are quite justified in doing so.—I am, &c.,

NAVAL AND MILITARY.

Lieut. E. O. B. Gray, Acting Quartermaster to the Marine Battalion in Japan, is promoted to be Second Captain vice Poyntz, retired, and Lieut. T. E. Hungerford is appointed Acting Quartermaster to the battalion in place of Lieut. Gray.

We understand that the Thetis, screw corvette of 13 guns, 1,854 tons, 350-horse power, will be commissioned next week for the China station.

The Twelfth Report of the Royal Naval Scripture Readers' Society has just been printed for circulation among the subscribers. The sphere of the society's work embraces the whole service, with its 61,000 seamen and marines, dispersed through the 232 ships in commission (only 70 of which carry chaplains), the 270 reserve vessels, which have ship-keepers, 10 hospitals and infirmaries, and 5 marine barracks. Fourteen readers labour amongst them, under constant clerical supervision. "Hong Kong (says the report) is occupied jointly, with the Army Scripture Readers' Society, by one of our agents, and the Committee have abundant reason for thankfulness for the accounts received from many quarters of the earnestness and faithfulness of Mr. Chambers. Especially would they call attention to the testimony borne by the munificent local contributions to the heavy expense of this station. The Rev. T. Talbot, who proved his appreciation of the Society's work both by active personal direction of the Reader, and by preaching a sermon in its behalf in the Cathedral of Hong Kong (after which $180 were collected, one-half of which was allotted to us), having been compelled to resign the Treasurership, the Committee have much pleasure in announcing its acceptance by the Colonial Chaplain, the Rev. R. Hayward Kidd." Hong Kong is the most important of the foreign branches, and to it the committee specially tender their thanks. The income of the parent society last year, was £1,605 15s. 10d., the largest of any since its formation in 1860, with the exception of 1868 69, when it was £1,748 17s. 6d. The subscription list from Hong Kong shows that $321 had been collected during the year.

Teetotalism appears to be taking a firm hold in the Royal Navy. At a conference at Portsmouth, at the close of last week, it was resolved to hand over the Royal Naval Temperance Society to the National Temperance League. In the course of the proceedings, a report was read which stated that branches existed in 37 of the Queen's ships in all parts of the world, and that in 65 vessels on board which branches have not been established members have been enrolled. Among the ships having branches are the following on the China station:—The Barrosa, Iron Duke, Leven, Midge, and Rinaldo. The following ships on the station have members serving on board:—The Avon, Dwarf, Hornet, Juno, Princess Charlotte, and Zebra.

NAVAL INVALIDS FROM CHINA AND JAPAN.

In our last impression we gave an article on the Health of the China Fleets, compiled from the official report just published. From the same source we give some additional facts relative to patients in the hospitals of England who have been invalided from the China station. Dr. Donnet, of Haslar Hospital, states that the majority of the cases of diarrhœa and dysentery admitted to the institution during the year were of a chronic form, and the patients had been exposed to the malarious influences of the coast of China. Many had returned to England, and had been benefited by the change; but on the commission of any irregularity a relapse occurred, which obliged them to take refuge in the hospital. Though the constitutions of the patients had suffered much from the effects of these enervating diseases, only one was invalided. Staff Surgeon A. Irwin, of the Naval Hospital, Plymouth, in his report on the cases of neuralgia, states that one was that of an invalid from China, on which station he had suffered very much from the complaint, but had well nigh recovered on the passage home. Of the cases of organic disease of the heart, two were from China. The two cases of dysentery were also from that station (one had been contracted in Japan); and in four cases of diarrhœa out of thirty-seven, the disease had its origin there. Dr. Domville, C.B., of Melville Hospital, Chatham, reports among the twenty-one cases of epilepsy, four were from China, one patient having been invalided three months previously for debility, supervening on constant attacks of intermittent fever and diarrhœa, and the other three having received injuries to the head two years previously. The one case of gastritis, that of an able seaman twenty-eight years of age, was from China. Of the six cases of dysentery two were from that station; and of the sixteen cases of diarrhœa, one. A case of lupus—that of an officer who had been invalided from China—is also reported. He was admitted with ulceration of a lupoid nature of the upper lip and nostrils, but was finally discharged cured, after having been 64 days in hospital. Of the five cases of disease of the ear, one was due to facial paralysis, for which the patient was invalided from the China station. Assistant-surgeon R. Nelson, of the Royal Marine Artillery Division at Eastney Barracks and Fort Cumberland, Portsmouth, says that most of the cases of secondary syphilis in that corps are men with broken down constitutions, whose systems are saturated with the poison. The China station furnished them with many such cases, contracted for the most part in Japanese ports. Of the cases of rheumatism, the Mediterranean and China stations supplied the greatest numbers. Staff-surgeon F. Harvey, of the Marine Light Infantry division at Torton, near Gosport, records one case of scrofula, and one of disease of the heart invalided from the Pearl, and one of vertigo from the Rinaldo. Surgeon J. S. Adams, of the Plymouth division of Royal Marines, reports a case of softening of the brain, the patient having been invalided from Japan.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, NOV. 26.

Fully confirming the contents of my last letter, in which I gave your readers the text of the new law for the conversion of the Hamburg Bank Valuta, I have merely to add, in reporting progress to-day, that the law was promulgated in the official part of the Hamburg Correspondent of the 14th inst., and on the following day the "Regulations" of the Administration of the Bank, about which it is only needful to observe that money may be brought in to an unlimited extent either in bags containing 450 gold pieces of twenty marks, or 900 of ten marks, or of 500 silver thalers; but that the minimum amount that may be withdrawn at one time is fixed at 9,000 marks of the new currency.

Last week a meeting of the Commission Houses in this city was held at the Exchange Rooms, to take into consideration what steps should be taken for an uniformity of usances in consequence of the impending alteration in the money of accounts, Herr Noyemann, the indefatigable President of the Chamber of Commerce, in the chair. In his opening address the chairman divided the business of the meeting into the following four heads, and pointed out the expediency of obtaining unanimity if possible, in order to show their foreign connections a closely serried phalanx:—1. The quickest possible way of effecting the transition; 2. If it be desirable, to take this opportunity of revising their scale of commission charges, and other usances of the trade; 3. What stand the Hamburg merchants should take towards the foreign trade, with respect to the alteration of the currency, in calculating outstanding claims and remittances; and 4. In what form they had best notify to their correspondents the resolutions to be passed at the meeting. After a prolonged discussion the following resolutions were passed by an overwhelming majority: Ad. 1. It was agreed to do business on the Hamburg Exchange on and after the 1st of January next exclusively in the new Imperial marks and pfennige, and to make up all invoices and account sales in the same currency. Ad. 2. Every merchant to regulate the amount of his commission for purchases and sales according to his own discretion. An alteration of the general usances was declined, but on the other hand, in consequence of the great increase in wages, it was considered advisable to augment in a corresponding degree the scale of petty charges which have remained stationary for more than a whole generation, and it was therefore agreed to charge 40 pfennigs per bag or package on goods sent off by railway, and 50 pf. per ditto if shipped in steamers or sailing vessels. Ad. 3. It was unanimously resolved to make up and close all accounts current at the end of the year in marks and schillings banco as hitherto, and then transfer and bring forward the balances in the new currency of the country at the fixed rate of 150 marks gold for 100 marks banco, and credit the accounts for remittances in banco until the 15th February (close of the silver accounts at the bank) at the same rate; but on the other hand to calculate remittances in thalers and foreign valuta at the exchange of the day into banco, and then book the amount in imperial marks. Ad. 4. A committee was appointed—consisting of the firms who had convened the meeting—to draw up the above resolutions in the shape of a joint circular, for each house to send to his friends abroad.

As the French Government has given notice of its intention not to draw any more bills on Hamburg in marks banco, but in gold currency, should it be advisable to make use of this money market in any future financial arrangements, there is no longer any reason for the great accumulation of silver bars in the Bank cellars, and the owners are beginning to debarrass themselves of what is now no longer money but merchandise. Fortunately a fresh outlet has been found to get rid of a large quantity of these bars; for the French Government find it profitable to coin them into five-franc pieces, as they have the option of paying the remainder of the war indemnity either in gold or silver, and thus during the last ten days silver bars of the value of nearly thirty millions of marks banco have been sent off by railway to Paris for that purpose, relieving the Hamburg Exchange of about forty millions marks banco, which, with the facility of its passing through eight or ten different hands in one day, is quite sufficient for the requirements of commerce under ordinary and normal circumstances.

Another piece of good news that I am able to communicate to-day is, that there is well-founded and substantial reason to believe that that the definitive law for the introduction of the new currency will be passed in the approaching session of the German Parliament. The financial committee of the Federal Council have reported progress, and with the consent and approbation of the last-named branch of the Legislature are now engaged in drawing up the text of the Bill to be brought in; and indeed it is high time that the affair should be definitively brought to a close; for not only is the large quantity of gold already coined—now more than twenty millions sterling—but an equally great, and probably still greater amount still uncoined and waiting to be minted, is lying in an unproductive state locked up, with an enormous loss of interest, as no orders have been given for putting it in circulation, and as thalers are no longer allowed to be coined, money is getting very scarce, and the only alternative is an inundation of dirty, greasy and most offensively smelling paper dollars, issued in some cases by banks of questionable security, which strongly remind me of the one pound notes of the country banks we had formerly in circulation in England. As for small change it is so rare that the shopkeepers are put to their wits' end to satisfy their customers who put down their thaler and require change, which, however, can only be effected by their taking postage stamps or a slip of paper bearing the name of the seller. The course is most naturally preferred by the shopkeepers, as it not only gives them the chance of these "notes," though perhaps only purporting to be for a halfpenny or a farthing, being lost and thus rendered irredeemable, but secures them further profit by fresh purchases, as nobody else will take them.

Baron von Rehfues, the German Envoy in China, who has been for some months in Europe on leave of absence, has now returned to his post with full instructions from Prince Bismark, so that we may soon expect to hear of negotiations being opened for the revision and renewal of the Treaty of Commerce with China.

The King of Siam has sent as a present to the former Lieutenant Schulze a magnificent cigar case of solid gold ornamented with the Siamese Royal coat-of-arms in enamel, as a token of his satisfaction at receiving a handsomely bound copy of his work entitled the "Chronicle of all the Orders of Knighthood." The present was brought over by the German Consul at Bangkok, Herr Lessler, who recently arrived in this country on furlough, and it is now being exhibited in the Royal Arsenal at Berlin.

A remarkable rise in the value of the shares of the Hamburg (and China) Steam Company has to be recorded. The original shares are now quoted at 122, or 22 per cent. premium, and the new issue, which, however, only participate in the profits of 1873, readily command 107, or 7 per cent. premium.

COMMERCIAL.

The Produce markets are still in a very unsettled state, principally in consequence of the impending alteration in the currency; but a moderate amount of business was done in Teas for local consumption as well as for the supply of the interior. Among the sales by importers were 80/4 chests of Pekoe, and 309/8, and 184/16 chests of Congou at former quotations. Rice of all descriptions neglected; a few small sales for consumption reported in cleaned grain, but nothing done in rough. Of Cassia Lignea the 12000 chests to hand, per Corona from Hong Kong, have been warehoused, and are not to be thrown on the market at present; prices remain at 10 to 10/½ sch. bco. No transactions in Pepper, which is firmly held. Of Oil of Cassia 20 chests have been disposed of at a slight decline, after which the market became firmer. The only sale of Spelter reported was 1,000 centners of Silesian, ordinary marks and qualities, at 15 3/8 marks banco per centner for shipment.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, NOV. 27.

My political news by this opportunity is very scanty. The Second Chamber is still involved in the Budget debate, and nothwithstanding much more progress has been made than in former years, the discussions, especially those upon the chapter of home affairs, last long. There is, of course, no question of any political battle; it is a sort of business debate, which presents few or no features of interest. The Minister of Justice, when his Budget was debated, revealed a very lengthy programme, showing that he intends to evince great activity in regard to legislation. The question, however, is whether much, if any, of his intentions will be realised? For several years we have been accustomed to endeavours made with the object of improving our legislative system by talented men who have stood at the head of this department, but all have proved abortive. When the members dealt with the Home Budget the question was again brought forward, if it would not be desirable to establish separate departments for education and commerce. The Chamber has made more haste than in former years, which may be ascribed to a desire to deal as soon as possible with the Reform Bill—the main question of this session.

The Bourse has remained in the same condition as it has been for some time past, dull, and prices, though showing very little alteration, are generally flat. The fresh political complications in France create anxiety, and now that the state of the money market is so sensitive, the position of affairs is not favourable. There is a good demand for discount at the bank, and the last weekly account was again unfavourable, but the rate of discount was not altered. The Rotterdam Bank—whose shares are now quoted at 112¾—has called a meeting of shareholders, to be held here on the 2nd of December, with the object of altering the statutes. These alterations will be published in a few days. The news from Amsterdam continues unsatisfactory; more houses have stopped payment, heavy losses being caused by speculations in cotton and petroleum. No public failures, however, have occurred.

Another regular steam-line, between Holland and Java (via the Suez Canal), will be established in competition with the Company Nederland. According to an advertisement of a firm of shipbrokers, Messrs. Ruys and Co., a regular service will be opened in the month of January or February, with four first-class English steamers, viz., the Devon, 2,100 tons; the Kingston, 1,900 tons; the Harrington, 1,750 tons; and the Wyberton, 1,650 tons. Every six weeks a steamer will leave here for Java.

An interesting law suit has been decided by the district-court at Amsterdam; viz., that of the Trading Company v. the owners of the East Indiaman Djawa. This vessel was chartered to convey a cargo of Government produce to Holland. When starting from Java the vessel became so leaky that it was necessary to put into Batavia, where the ship was examined. A great part of the cargo, which is damaged, will have to be sold, which will entail a loss of f.120,000. After being repaired, the Djawa continued the voyage, and has delivered the rest of the cargo. The Trading Company asked for indemnification, because the damage was due to neglect, while the shipowners maintained that the examination had proved that the vessel was damaged by running on a bank. This assertion, however, was not accepted by the Court, who condemned the owners to pay the sum above stated.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

A material improvement took place in Coffee at the Trading Company's public sale, held last Wednesday, which went off with spirit at advanced rates, in consequence of large speculative purchases, which caused the quantity brought forward scarcely to suffice for the demand. Consequently the article has since remained in good request, and prices have further advanced. Sugar remains very firm, and the quantity put up to-day at public auction for account of the Trading Company has also found ready buyers at higher prices. The Indigo sales held last week went off at reduced rates. Tin has undergone a material decline. The business done in this as well as in other articles has been upon a limited scale.

COFFEE.—The Trading Company closed the series of their public sales of coffee for this year by offering at public auction at Amsterdam on the 20th inst. about 84,400 bags Java and Padang, which met eager buyers at higher prices than had been anticipated, consequent upon a large portion of the quantity put up having been secured by speculators whose competition caused prices to range ½c. to ¾c. in excess of the valuations. A brisk demand has continued to prevail since, and a fair business has been doing in shipments of private importation at full prices, in the proportion of the late advance, whilst for some numbers of the late public sale a further advance of ¾c. to 1½c. has been paid. Good ordinary Java sold successively at 47c., 47½c., 48c. and 48½c., whilst holders have become more and more reserved, and some of them keep backward altogether. The Trading Company's monthly public sales are not to be resumed until February next.

SUGAR has continued to exhibit a firm appearance. The scanty supply for sale has checked business, and attention has been mainly engrossed by the approaching public sale. The Trading Company's sale of 13,357 baskets went off as follows: No. 12 f.36, No. 13 f.36¼, No. 16 f.36, No. 18 f.36½, No. 19 f.36¼, No. 20 f.36¼. According to these prices the value of the Dutch standard has been fixed by the brokers as follows, to which I add, for the sake of comparison, the currency established at the late March, May, July, and September sales.

TEA without any activity, in the face of the public sales of China and Java to be held at Amsterdam to-morrow.

TOBACCO.—Several parcels of sundry headmarks will be offered in the next few days by private tender.

MANILA SEGARS.—About 400/m Cheroots 2a Cortados 1872 had been advertised for sale by public auction on the 20th inst., of which 100 mille were previously disposed of by private treaty, whilst of the remaining 300 mille only 20 mille passed the hammer at f.45 in bond, and the balance has partly been bought in at this price and partly withdrawn.

SPICES.—The demand for the different articles under this head remains dormant.

RICE enjoys but little demand, and prices are barely supported.

RATTANS keep firm, without anything doing.

TIN.—A quiet tone continues to prevail for this article, and prices have further receded. Banca has sold for present delivery at f. 89½, f. 88¼, f. 86, and f. 86½, and for delivery ex the coming spring sale of 1873 at f. 85 and f. 84½.

HIDES.—No transactions have taken place since my last. Sales are to be held to-day.

JAVA INDIGO.—The public sales held here and at Amsterdam last week, went off pretty currently at reduced rates. Compared with the valuations, based on the currency of October 1870, the decline now established reaches to 80c. to 110c. for very ordinary and hard sorts, 60c. to 80c. for ordinary medium sorts, 50c. to 60c. for good and fine medium sorts, 25c. to 40c. for superior and very soft sorts. Out of the 513 cases put up at public auction at Amsterdam, 458 cases passed the hammer, and 55 cases were bought in and withdrawn. Prices ranged much in the same proportion as those paid here, only the very ordinary descriptions having in some instances been sold at a further decline of 20c.

Monetary and Commercial.

Another Steam Company has been formed in connection with China. The title is registered as the New York, London, and China Steamship Company (Limited). Capital £300,000, in £25 shares. The directors are Messrs. Augustin Heard, Captain Lowther, R.N., E. M. de Bussche, J. N. L. Griswold. New York, John Heard, Boston. The Agents in China will be Messrs. Augustin Heard and Co.; and in London, Messrs. Fearon and Co.

The dividend to be recommended at the annual meeting of the P. and O. Company on the 6th inst. will be 3 per cent. for the six months ending Sept. 30, with a bonus of 1 per cent. from the underwriting account, making, with 3 per cent. dividend paid in June, a total of 7 per cent. for the year. The report of the Directors will be found in another column.

An extraordinary meeting of the proprietors of the National Bank of India (Limited) is called for the 10th inst., to confirm the special resolution passed on the 19th ult. altering some of the regulations of the undertaking.

At the second meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Bowles Brothers and Co., a long report was read from the committee appointed on the 16th ult. The statement of affairs of the London house, as extracted from the books, discloses, in the opinion of the committee, very disastrous prospects for the creditors. The estimated liabilities amount to £83,000, and include securities belonging to customers, deposited for safe custody only, of the computed value of about £14,000, which have been pledged with the bankers of the London house against loans. The sum of £83,000 is exclusive of the liability of the firm in respect of shares in the Joint National Agency Company, which the committee are informed represents about £95,000, being 19s. per share, the amount not paid up on 100,000 shares. On the other hand, the only assets which can be reckoned upon as realisable, consist o the cash and bills receivable on hand, and debtors on current accounts, estimated to realise about £3,500. In addition there are debtor balances appearing in the books to the extent of £38,000, but very little is expected to be realised. It was resolved to place the estate in bankruptcy. Mr. Robert Bowles has been again brought up at the Mansion House Police-court, and has been further remanded until Wednesday next.

Messrs. Mosses and Mitchell, the London agents of the Suez Canal Company, have issued the following notice, which savours strongly of "letting down easy" the English shipowners :—

Notwithstanding the recent decision of the Tribunal of Commerce at Paris in favour of the Messageries Maritimes Company, we beg to inform the Government and steam-shipowners that the Suez Canal Company intend abiding by the terms of their act of concession, which gives them the right, as is shown by official documents published at that period, of levying a tax of ten francs per gross ton measurement. By adopting the English mode of measurement, and applying it to every ship passing through the Canal, they establish a uniform treatment for all flags, and thereby secure to the British shipowner immunity from those unfair advantages that steamers of other countries might derive by sailing with inaccurate papers.

The Nourmahal has arrived from Hiogo, having left 12th June with a cargo of tobacco and rags.

Owing to several orders for Spain and elsewhere the price of fine Bar Silver has improved, and may now be quoted as firm at 59½d. per oz. standard. The West India steamer has brought £145,000 in Mexican Dollars; these have not yet been landed, but the new coinage has been sold at 58d. per oz., principally for refining purposes. The old coinage is at present unsaleable at the rate recently current of 60¾d. per oz.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The market remains as dull as ever, and the amount of business by private contract is unusually small, especially in Congous, the trade being occupied by the frequent public sales of both China and India Teas, which have passed off rather heavily, and generally at lower prices. The greatest decline has been in Canton Scented Capers of common to good medium quality. The public sales of the week have comprised 13,330 packages; the whole of which have been sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week amount to 3,351,000 lbs., against 3,355,000 lbs. last year.

Black.—Red leaf: Dust and broken leaf kinds, old season's, at auction, have sold at extremely low rates, say, 3d. to 6d.; new, leafy, sweet liquoring sorts, have realised fair average prices, from 8d. to 11d., inferior flavoury kinds at 11½d. to 1s. 0½d. have sold at full rates, being in short supply; good flavoury, chiefly Sayune district, at 1s.

Digitized by Google

1d. to 1s. 2d. have been largely dealt in; medium to fine Kaisow at 1s. 3d. to 1s. 7d. has sold lower, and exceptional good value can be obtained; fine and finest Kaisow sells slowly at 1s. 8d. to 2s. 2d., well known chops realising 1d. to 2d. per lb. more; Sze Hing chop a short time ago, 2s. 4d. per lb. Pakling kinds continue neglected, and the stocks held by importers are much larger than usual at this period. Tayshan leaf: The bulk of late imports are chiefly of good common to fair quality; sales have been made at 11d. to 1s., the market closing weak. Black leaf: Old import of ordinary to good common has been sold at 8d. to 9½d. per lb.; new season's, good common, we value at 10d. per lb.; preferable kinds, at 11d. to 1s. 1½d., continue scarce; medium to fine at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 8d. has been dealt in to a fair extent at 1d. per lb. decline; finest at 1s. 9d. to 2s., limited sales; extra quality sells up to 2s. 7d. per lb. Souchong: Sales show a reduction of 1d. to 2d. per lb. Oolong: Limited business at 1d. to 2d. per lb. decline. Scented Tea: Heavy supplies have been received of Canton kinds, desirable parcels, well scented, have sold readily, though at a decline of 1d. per lb., and the market closes without a further downward tendency. Foochow Scented Orange Pekoe has been in full supply and sold at easier rates, strong scented medium quality 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5d. per lb. Caper 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5d. per lb. Green: The market has again been liberally supplied, and prices have ruled lower for Ping Sueys, but Moyune kinds maintain their value. Japan leaf, nothing doing.

SILK.

There is nothing new to report; the market continues quiet, and prices are steady, with improved deliveries. Although the pressure for money is over, and the Bank Rate of discount has been reduced to 6 per cent., there is as yet no appreciable improvement in the market, business at the moment being to a certain extent checked by the political crisis in France. In China Silk transactions are on a very limited scale, and confined almost entirely to the few daily purchases made for the home trade; prices, however, are on the whole fairly maintained. Canton Silk: The moderate prices now ruling have at last attracted the attention of consumers, and led to some business at slightly improved rates. Japan Silk is comparatively in good demand, and prices are a little firmer; fair and good fine Mibash is becoming more in favour with our home manufacturers, while on the Continent the consumption of this class of Silk is increasing daily. Deliveries 1st to 27th inst. inclusive:—China, 2,232 bales; Canton, 691; Japan, 662; total, 3,635 bales.

CINNAMON.

The periodical auctions were held on the 25th ult., when a total of 2,207 bales Ceylon was offered, against 1,732 bales at the August sales and 1,965 bales at the corresponding auctions last year. Good and fine qualities met a good demand, and prices show an advance of 1d. to 2d. per lb. upon the previous auctions, but medium and ordinary qualities went off slowly and a decline of 1d. to 2d. per lb. was established. Of the whole, 1,850 bales were disposed of. At the commencement of the sales a flat tone was apparent, and prices declined 1d. to 2d. per lb.; but the demand afterwards improved and prices recovered, the better qualities selling with good competition at an advance of 2d. to 3d., and in a few instances 4d. per lb., other qualities showing little alteration from the August sales' rate. Of the whole, about 2,000 bales were disposed of as follows:

CINNAMON CHIPS.—Only 611 bags Ceylon were offered, of which 300 bags sold at steady rates, medium to good at 5½d. to 6½d.

SUGAR.

The market has exhibited a steady demand for good refining qualities, and fully previous rates have been obtained. An increased demand has prevailed for brown Eastern kinds, and larger sales have been effected than for some time past, but prices show no improvement. The following are the details of the sales effected:—

Penang: At auction 52 bags sold, brown (duty 4s.) at 25s. 6d., low yellow (duty 4s. 9d.) at 28s., 3,195 bags date sort (duty 4s.) were bought in at 22s. 6d. to 23s., 8 baskets sold at 21s.

Manila: In auction 2,195 bags clayed (duty 4s.) sold, common to fair 24s. 6d. to 25s., low at 24s., 1,356 bags unclayed Zebu (duty 4s.) were bought in at 22s. 6d. By private contract 16,000 bags unclayed Ilo Ilo (duty 4s.) have been sold at 22s. 6d., also 7,000 bags superior clayed (duty 4s.) at 27s. 3d.

Siam: In auction 12,109 bags concrete (duty 4s.), from Bangkok direct, were all sold at the valuations, sound (5,200 bags) at 23s., the remainder washed, chiefly first-class at 22s., second-class 21s. An offer of 248 baskets low dark quality was bought in at 22s.

Java: A floating cargo arrived off coast has been sold, but particulars are not reported.

China: An offer of 1,438 bags low soft brown (duty 4s.) was bought in at 22s. 6d. per cwt.

CAMPHOR.—China being in larger supply has further declined; only limited business has been done privately, and at auction the business done has likewise been small, being comprised in the sale of 100 cases at £3 15s. per cwt. re-weighte. Japan: No transactions.

CARDAMOMS.—No business done in Ceylon.

COCOA NUT OIL.—The market for Cochin has been steady with private sales of fine quality at £38 10s. to £38 15s.; of 195 casks at auction a portion was sold at £37 to £38 10s. Ceylon is rather easier; of 546 casks offered in a public sale a few only sold at £35 for fair quality, and small private sales have been effected at the same price.

COIR GOODS.—At the last sales the supply of Yarn was again light, the bulk consisting of ordinary and low coarse in dholls, which sold at previous rates, the few lots in bales being chiefly bought in. Of 179 bales Cochin Yarn only 70 bales sold, good ordinary to low middling £29 10s. to £30 10s., medium £32; 56 bales Ceylon were bought in at £36, except 7 bales which sold at £32, fine first-class sea-damaged at £41 10s.; 28 tons ditto sold, very common to common £27 to £28 10s., good common £29 to £29 15s., medium £31 to £32. Of 30 tons Ceylon Fibre offered 6 tons sold, fair to good £21 15s. to £24 10s., first-class sea-damaged £16, the remainder sound of ditto bought in at £17, 6 tons Ceylon brush sold at £30 to £34 10s., 13 bales ditto being bought in at £40 per ton.

CUTCH.—The market is quiet, but the stock is firmly held at 21s. 6d. to 22s. 9d. per cwt., at which prices there has been some business done.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—Of 20 cases lump offered in public sale, a few only were quitted at £6 per cwt. for fair quality.

EBONY.—Ceylon is still very scarce and is held for high rates; there have been no transactions.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed has been lower, but closes with a rather better inquiry; about 60 cases sold privately at 9s. to 9s. 3d. Cassia very firmly held. Nutmeg: Firm, 2 cases retired. Cinnamon: Fine, scarce and wanted; 7 cases retired. Citronelle: Again lower and dull; of 170 cases at auction, only a few sold at 2d. per oz., the bulk held for higher rates. Lemon Grass: Value nominal, and difficult of sale; 18 cases retired.

GALANGAL ROOT.—In active request, but there is no supply.

GAMBIER.—Prices have been easier, and about 400 tons have been sold, ex ship, landing at 24s. 6d. to 25s., and afloat August-September shipment 23s. to 23s. 6d.; more distant 22s. to 22s. 6d.; 3,036 bags cubes at auction were retired, but subsequently sold at about 29s. per cwt.

GALLS.—China are in but little demand, but are firmly held. During the fortnight about 111 cases have found buyers in public sale at £2 16s. per cwt. No business privately is reported. Japan: Without movement.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Siam quiet: 3 cases at auction retired: Sumatra also quiet: of 84 cases offered, two-thirds sold at 70s. to 62s. 6d. for thirds. Copal: Cheaper and very dull. Damar: very dull and prices lower: 375 cases at auction retired. Gamboge steady: of 9 cases offered a few only sold at £15 per cwt. for good.

GUTTA-PERCHA.—The market continues quiet, but there is some inquiry: of 505 packages and 1,414 blocks at auction very few only sold: Macassar fine genuine at 3s. 2d. to 3s. 2½d., mixed part white 1s. to 1s. 3½d.; very inferior weak reboiled 4d. to 4¾d. per lb.

HEMP.—Manila is very dull, and previous quotations are barely maintained. There have been no transactions since our last report.

HORNS.—Siam Buffalo are firm, but there has been no business of importance transacted. Ceylon Deer are also firm, but without sales.

INDIA-RUBBER.—Scarce, and prices show an advancing tendency.

ISINGLASS.—Firm; fine qualities of Penang and Manila scarce and in request.

JAPAN WAX.—There is but little demand, and no sales are reported. Holders are firm at £4 15s. for good saucers.

MUSK.—Market steady; 42 caddies Tonquin at auction chiefly sold, fair to fine selected well-shaped pods at 24s. to 39s. 6d., rough and bally fair 18s. to 19s. 6d., wet pickings, 18s. to 20s.; 12 tins grain sold, fair 51s. 6d. to 52s., dark at 48s., damp and inferior 38s. to 40s. per oz.

PEPPER.—Black has continued very dull, and is still declining; Singapore has sold privately at 6⅜d. to 6¼d., and Penang at 6 1-16d., with but little business done. At auction, Singapore, 1st class, damaged, has sold at 6⅛d. to 6¼d.; Penang, sound, 6d. to 6⅛d., chiefly the former figure. White is again lower, and not much private trade has been done. At public sale, Singapore has realised 11⅜d. to 12¼d. for fair to good; Penang, 11¾d. for good quality.

RHUBARB.—Market for China steady but quiet; of 90 cases offered half sold; very good bold pinky fracture at 2s. 9d.; middling fair 1s. 10d. to 2s.; high dried medium and bold, part pinky part grey 1s. 5d. to 1s. 8d. per lb.

RATTANS.—Scarce and in good request at firm prices.

RICE.—The market has been very dull during the week, and but a small business has been done, prices remaining without alteration. On the spot middling White Bengal has been sold at 11s. 6d. quay terms, and Necransie at 8s. 9d. Three floating cargoes have been sold, viz.:—The Valparaiso, 1,135 tons Rangoon at about 9s. 4d., for the Continent; a cargo of 1,500 tons Necransie November shipment, per steamer, at 9s. 0¾d., for the Continent, damages at valuations; and the Nina Barabino, 1,050 tons Moulmein at 9s. 2¼d., ex ship, for London. ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

Since the 22nd inst. a steady feeling has prevailed, but the business done has not been large, owing to the firmness of producers. Buyers show little disposition to pay the full rates now quoted, while the engagements of spinners and manufacturers relieve them of the necessity of making sales, and the tone at the close is firm.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazil is extremely quiet, owing chiefly to the absence of the good and better qualities Rio, which are alone in request. The low grades are in sufficient stock, but these are not wanted, hence the dulness. An exciting Presidential Election, now just passed, has also had, as usual, a tendency to divert trade from its usual course, and no business of moment is looked for until the arrival of fresh parcels, or the springing up of a demand for the grades now here. Holders remain firm. The market for East India descriptions is inactive, the demand from all quarters being on a very limited scale, and prices may be said to favour buyers, but there is too little doing to establish any range of quotations.

CORDAGE.—The following are the current quotations:—Manila Cordage, sizes above 12-thread, 18½c.; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, ¼ in. and 5-16 in. diam., 19½c.; do., 12-thread, ⅜ in. diam., 19c.; do., Hay Rope, 19c.; do. Cordage, bolt rope yarns, 20½c.; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, 21½c.; Tarred Manila, 18c.; Fine Tarred Manila Lath Yarn, 19½c.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 20c. gold.

CHINA PRESERVED GINGER rules at $8 currency, duty (35 per cent. ad val.) paid.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.40 to 2.45 gold, and Cassia $1.25 gold.

FIRE CRACKERS.—The market is dull; 500 boxes extra No. 1 sold at $2.42½, and 500 do. on private terms.

HEMP.—The market for Manila is very quiet, but there is a small business doing at 11c. gold.

INDIGO is quiet at 90c. to $1 currency.

RICE.—The market is steady, with a moderately active demand for foreign kinds, prices of which are rendered firm by the high value of gold. Rangoon duty paid rules at $7 to $7.12½ currency and in bond at $3.30 gold.

SUGAR.—There has been a steady, fair inquiry, almost entirely from Refiners, and as the stock rapidly runs down, prices are well supported and the market is strong, though devoid of all excitement. The sales of East India have been 17,370 bags Manila, per Forward Ho, 9,264 bags ditto, per Eleinore, and 6,716 bags ditto, per Garibaldi, all on private terms.

SPICES.—There has been considerable movement in Ginger, but apart from this the market has been very quiet. From store there is a fair jobbing demand, which dealers are supplying at $1.20 to $1.25 for Mace, Penang Nutmegs 95 cents, China Cassia 29 to 30, Pepper 16¾ to 17¾, White Pepper, 34 to 35, Cloves 21½ to 22, Clove Stems 10½ to 11, all gold.

SILK.—Business being confined chiefly to weavers of piece goods and Haineen stock required, the few holders are firm at a trifling advance. Fine and medium Cantons show more animation in consequence of some movement, and the tone is rather better. Current rates are:—China:—Tsatlee, No. 3 chop, $8.75 to 9; Taysaam, usual reel, No. 1, $7.75 to 8; No. 2, $7.62½; Taysaam, re-reeled, $7 to 8; Haining, re-reeled, $8.87½ to 9.12½; Tsatlee, re-reeled, $8.50 to 9; Canton, re-reeled No. 1, $6.12½ to 6.37½; No. 2, $5.87½ to 6; Kutegown, Nos. 1 and 2, $7 to 7.37½. Japan:—Nominal.

TEA.—The market exhibits some buoyancy more than for some time past, and prices are steadier. The demand is principally for Japan and Green, while Oolong is dull and neglected. The current rates are as follows:—Hyson: common to fair, 45c. to 52c.; superior to fine, 55c. to 68c.; extra fine to finest, 70c. to 95c. Young Hyson: common to fair, 38c. to 45c.; superior to fine, 52c. to 75c.; extra fine to finest, 80c. to $1.15. Gunpowder and Imperial: common to fair, 55c. to 65c.; superior to fine, 75c. to 92c.; extra fine to finest, 95c. to $1.40. Hyson Skin and Twankay: common to fair, 28c. to 31c.; superior to fine, 38c. to 35c.; extra fine to finest, 36c. to 40c. Uncoloured Japan: common to fair, 40c. to 46c.; superior to fine, 50c. to 65c.; extra fine to finest, 70c. to $1.05. Oolong: common to fair, 32c. to 40c.; superior to fine, 45c. to 62c.; extra fine to finest, 68c. to $1.05. Souchong and Congou: common to fair, 25c. to 35c.; superior to fine, 40c. to 57c.; extra fine to finest, 60c. to $1.

TIN.—The market has seldom been as dull as during the past few weeks; stocks are offered at steadily declining prices without eliciting any response from buyers, so that while we further reduce quotations they are still entirely nominal, say for Straits 31c. to 31½c., and Banca 35c. to 36c. gold.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

EXCELLENT PILLS.—The resources of medicine and chemistry were long and fruitlessly tried before they yielded a remedy which could overcome disorders of the stomach and nerves, till Professor Holloway discovered his purifying and tonic Pills. They are the safest and surest correctives of indigestion, heartburn, flatulency, torpidity of the liver, twitchings, nervous fancies, despondency, low spirits, and declining strength. Holloway's Pills supersede all irregular action in the body, and so strengthen and support the system that disease departs and leaves the patient not at all shaken. This is the grand aim and object of medical art, to regulate disordered functions, without damaging the constitution by the remedy, and admirably is this end attained by Holloway's Pills.

Summary of News from the Far East.

YOKOHAMA.

The present P. and O. mail brings advices from this port to the 22nd October, and by the Pacific mail we have advices one day later, viz., to the 23rd October; the French mail from London Aug. 30 arrived out on the 16th, and the following P. and O. mail of Sept. 6 on the 22nd Oct. The following items of news are from the Japan Herald:—

We have reason to believe, from information which has reached us, that when the history of the recent intercourse between Japan and Korea shall be revealed, it will be found that it has been perfectly courteous and respectful on both sides,—not, perhaps, eminently satisfactory to either party, but in no degree, thus far, warranting apprehensions of serious disagreement, such as the pretended Korean correspondence would imply. We believe, too, that the residence of the Japanese Minister in Korea will be proved to have been subject to no greater restrictions than were, up to a very recent period, imposed by the Japanese upon all foreigners in this empire. And finally, we believe that the visit of the Japanese ship of war to Korea will turn out to have been for no other purpose than that of bringing back to this country the various officials who were left there to transact certain business, which, being now concluded, need detain them no longer. We have no hesitation in declaring the conviction that these sensational stories of impending hostility between the two countries are, without exception, pure inventions of some persons ill-disposed to the Mikado's Government.

Great attentions have been bestowed upon the Chinese Commissioner, Chen, during his residence at Tokei. He was lodged at Hama-go-ten, the establishment always assigned to the most distinguished foreign guests, and was made the centre of as much festivity as his quiet habits would permit. The special consideration shown him is said to have been due to the fact that he is really the first delegated messenger from the sister Empire who has been received in a friendly spirit, and to a generous desire to efface all recollection of the severities sometimes shown to previous Ambassadors.

The misfortunes of the Maria Luz are long in coming to an end. Having lost her live freight, she has now, to crown all, been seized for debt. Acting as agents for a firm in Hong Kong, Messrs. Bavier advanced some $8,000 for repairs, law, and other expenses. The charterer of the vessel at Macao has instructed his agents to demand security for the above and other advances, in default of which, to attach the vessel until these claims shall be satisfied. Captain Hereiro subsequently demanded his papers at the Custom House, which were refused; he then handed in the following protest to the Kanagawa Kencho:—

Digitized by Google

Yokohama, 3rd Oct., 1872.—Having three times demanded of this Kencho the papers of my ship, the Maria Luz, and having each time been refused delivery of them, I am unable to leave the port with my ship; and it being of urgent necessity that I should get back to Hong Kong without any delay, I hereby notify to this Kencho that I quit Yokohama by this day's mail, protesting against the above-mentioned refusal by the Kencho to deliver me the papers of the said ship, and holding the Kencho responsible for all consequences of the refusal and detention of the above-mentioned papers.—RICARDO HEREIRO.

Having issued this protest Capt. Hereiro left by mail steamer for China, leaving his ship in the custody of the Government, which has placed officers on board. It would seem that the Government has at length some compunctious visitings as to the legality of its action, and would fain give up the ship and papers, but nobody can be found to relieve it of its troublesome incumbrance. The captain having gone off to China, the mate was left on board, and the authorities offered to put him in possession, and to give up her papers, but he declined the offer, and has gone off to China, to join the captain. Meantime there is nobody to feed the crew, and the Government have declined exercising towards them the same hospitality that they have bestowed upon the coolie passengers. The men, we hear, have made application to Mr. de Long, who represents Peruvian interests here, for his advice and assistance. Soyeshima Taneomi, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, has addressed the following letter to the Viscount de San Januario, the Governor of Macao:—

SIR,—I hasten to reply to your despatch with reference to the case of the Maria Luz, a Peruvian vessel now in Japanese waters. At no stage of the proceedings has the Government I have the honour to serve questioned that the Government of his Majesty the King of Portugal has done all that it thought necessary to secure that the emigration of Chinese subjects from Macao should be conducted in accordance with the principles of justice and humanity; and no tribunal of Japan has or will hastily presume that the rules which guide the emigration from Macao, and which were framed with the view of protecting Chinese subjects, were other than calculated to meet the object in view.

But while anxious to perform every obligation which the Government of Japan, as a friendly nation, owes to Portugal, the Japanese Government has also duties to perform toward the subjects of the neighbouring State of China, with the Sovereign and people of which it is on terms of cordial amity. The present case concerns alone the State of Peru and the Governments of China and Japan; and in disavowing, as I distinctly do on the part of my Government, any intention to do otherwise than give full credit and place full faith in the intentions of justice and humanity of the Portuguese Government, I cannot see how your Excellency can view this case or the action of the Japanese tribunal therein as affecting the honour or interests of Portugal.

The Russian Grand Duke Alexis is now daily expected. Preparations to give his Royal Highness a suitable reception are being proceeded with. Hamago-ten, the residence that the Duke of Edinburg occupied on the occasion of his visit, and which is assigned to distinguished guests, has been appropriated by the Japanese Government to the use of the Grand Duke.

The Government has decided to grant the sum of two millions of dollars to the Mombusho, or Department of Public Instruction, for purposes of national education, instead of the large sum asked for a few months ago by that office. The projected system of colleges throughout the Empire will now go into effect as soon as suitable teachers can be procured.

One of the results of the visit of the Liu Kiu Commissioners will be the exchange of the historical title of the King of Liu Kiu to that of Kuazoku, or hereditary noble of Japan. This alteration has already been agreed to by the representatives in Yedo, but the consent has to be ratified by the nominal monarch himself before it can take effect.

The offices of the Department of Public Instruction in Yedo are to be removed from the old Chinese College grounds to a yasiki near the Tokiwa-bashi, in the immediate neighbourhood of the Okurasho and Shiheirio. The former buildings will be given up to a "normal school" for the training of native teachers, who will be ultimately employed in the large schools to be established in various parts of the empire.

The Mikado's birthday, the 23rd October, being observed as a general holiday amongst the Japanese, the railway authorities announced special trains to run on that day for general convenience, in anticipation of the augmentation of traffic to be expected.

There has been a disturbance at Sopora, the new capital of Yezo. The coolies, on account of receiving no wages, have been rioting. The affair was attended with loss of life; one officer was killed, and another badly wounded. Four or five coolies were also killed.

The wife of an officer in the country of the ex-Prince of Tosa has given birth to a child having four arms, four legs, four ears, and three eyes; it died half-an-hour after birth.

HIOGO.

The Hiogo News states:—

"The telegraph line between this port and Yokohama is at last to be opened to the use of the public on and after the 9th inst. We are very glad to see this, as we were beginning to be half afraid that the opening of this portion of the line might be postponed by the Japanese authorities till the whole line to Nagasaki should have been completed; but such is not to be the case, and we are sure that the amount of business which we fully expect will wish into their hands will soon satisfy the said authorities of the wisdom of the step upon which they have decided."

It is under consideration to substitute the portrait of the Mikado for the barbaric dragon on the Japanese coinage. Mr. Rieszt, who suddenly left Osaka when called on to answer a charge of travelling beyond treaty limits with a pass, has been arrested. Another case, in which the offence was committed some three or four months ago, by a German named F. Nerring-Bogel, has been punished by a fine of $100.

NAGASAKI.

The telegraph line between this port, Kobe and Yokohama is now in complete working order, and is being constantly used by the officials. We are informed that in a few days all the arrangements will be completed for opening the line to the public.

The potteries at Areta in Hizen have been busily engaged for several months past in preparation of porcelain ware ordered by the Japanese Government. This collection is intended as specimens of Japanese art to be sent to the Vienna Exhibition. It will cost over $10,000, and will be finished in about one month.

H.B.M.S. Salamis leaves for Shanghai and will arrive for the English mail leaving there on the 25th inst. H.B.M.S. Iron Duke will probably leave for the same port. H.B.M.S. Juno remains here about three weeks and then proceeds to Hong Kong via Shanghai. On her voyage up to this place she struck upon an unknown rock in Chinchu harbour, into which she entered during very rough weather.

The Japanese Government steamer Yu-ko-kan now in this harbour leaves for Tai Shu (Tsu-sima) to-morrow afternoon. Three officials from this place will leave in her to meet the Embassy, which is about to proceed to the Korea, relative to the affairs between that country and this empire. The vessels forming the squadron will meet at Tsu-sima, and from thence the Embassy will start for their destination.

It is frequently reported that Nagasaki has declined very much in commercial importance, but the following figures show how erroneous this generally received supposition is.

The total value of goods imported into and exported from Japan in 1871, exclusive of 15,335,562 dollars treasure, is stated by the returns compiled for transmission to H.B.M.'s Government to be $41,366,949, viz, :—

Kanagawa	$30,091,298
Hiogo and Osaka	6,438,929
Nagasaki	4,158,551
Hakodate	678,171

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

Dates extend to the 25th Oct. The P. and O. mail of 6th Sept. arrived out on 18th Oct. The following summary is from the North China Herald:—

The P. and O. Company, not wishing to have their mail steamer again detained at the Woosung Bar, as was the case with the Travancore last English mail, have taken the precaution of sending the Golconda to Woosung before completing her loading.

The French mail steamer Meikong, while going down river, and passing between H.B.M.'s Cadmus and Midge, was caught by the strong tide sweeping off the Pootung shore, and driven alongside the latter vessel, carrying away her own foreyard and injuring some of her boats, and bringing down the Midge's mainyard. In trying to recover way again, the influence of the tide was so great on her immense length as almost to carry her down to the opium hulks. Fortunately she got way on, and proceeded safely on her voyage.

The Hopewell is alongside the Hongkew wharf, reloading her original cargo of tea. She has had three new masts placed in her and several new yards, and we may shortly expect to see her once more among the list of departures for London.

We hear that Mr. C. Hannen, Commissioner of Customs at Tientsin, goes home shortly on leave, and that his place will be taken by Mr. J. H. Hart.

The Supreme Court, sitting as a Court of Vice-Admiralty, was occupied for two days last week in trying the cross-suits arising out of the collision between the ships Hopewell and Annie Gray, near the Woosung Bar. The nominal damages sought by the Hopewell were $25,000, and by the Annie Gray $7,000. The court found that the Annie Gray was in the wrong, and therefore gave judgment in favour of the Hopewell, with costs. The detailed reasons for the finding of the court were given on Monday last. They form a concise summary of the points in the particular case; and the application of general principles and local practice in the navigation of the river are of interest and importance to shipmasters and pilots.

At the Supreme Court, before the Chief Judge, the plaintiff in the case J. L. Brown v. R. Hart was heard in support of a motion to set aside the order of the Law Secretary that the petition in this case be taken off the file of the Court, or that a rehearing should be granted. Messrs. Harwood and Wainewright appeared for the defendant. After hearing Mr. Brown's arguments, his lordship, without calling on the other side to reply, dismissed the motion with costs.

The German Club Race Lotteries for the first day's races, were held on Saturday night. The two principal events are the Maiden and the Criterion. The former secured eighty-two subscribers at $10 each, and the principal sales were—Electricity $100, Protem $105, and Scamp $95. For the Criterion there were fifty-seven subscribers at $5 each, and the auctioneer knocked down Coronet and Ku-pu-chu for $60 each, and Statescraft at $45. The total amount in the Maiden's is $1,640, and in the Criterion $598.

From Peking we hear shortly that the Emperor's wedding-day passed off very quietly. The artist who visited the capital on behalf of the Illustrated London News was successful in getting a good view of the procession.

The Maria Luz coolies, to the number of 228, arrived by the P.M.S. S. New York from Japan, under charge of Chen, the Mixed Court Magistrate, the Commissioner despatched by the Viceroy to act on behalf of the Chinese Government. Mr. Shinagawa, Consul for Japan, returned by the same steamer. The coolies were landed in small parties, and conducted by the Chehsien's officers to quarters prepared for them outside the South Gate, where they will remain till the local authorities can find a suitable vessel to convey them back to their native province of Kwantung.

The Autumn Prize Meeting of the S.V.C. is fixed for Monday and Tuesday, the 11th and 12th prox. Two events are put down for the first day—the National Rifle Association Silver Medal and the Municipal Challenge Cup; and three for the second—the German Challenge and Importers' Cups, and the Champion Sweepstakes. On Friday, the 8th Nov., the Rifle Club holds an opening competition, which will embrace all rifles.

We hear that the "World" eight of the S.R.C. are getting into good form, pulling strongly and steadily, and that there is every prospect of the eight-oar race at the next regatta being equal in closeness and interest to that rowed last spring.

At the Kiangnan Arsenal the other day a new cylinder was cast for the No. 6 frigate now in course of construction. There were ten tons of liquid metal required for the casting, and the cylinder when completed will weigh about seven tons.

HONG KONG.

Dates extend to the 31st Oct. The outward P. and O. mail of 20th Sept. arrived on 28th Oct. The following items are from the China Mail:—

The O.S.S. Co.'s steamer Hector, which left this port on the 28th, brought 1,008 bales of silk from Shanghai; and we observe from our Shanghai files that the now celebrated Captain Hereira, late of the Maria Luz, came on by the same opportunity. We note in this connection that the Japanese Foreign Department has published the Maria Luz case in a pamphlet form.

The members of the club Germania gave one of their combination entertainments on the 28th, in their neatly-fitted theatre and concert-room. As is invariably the case, the members' friends were present in large numbers, amongst whom were his Excellency Sir Arthur and Lady Kennedy and suite, the Acting Chief Justice, and General Whitfeild. As the entertainment was of a semi-private nature, we refrain from a criticism of the programme, but the part-singing, the instrumental duets and quartettes, and the dramatic achievements of the Travelling Student and the sturdy Miller were the principal features of a most varied and enjoyable evening's recreation.

The overland Australian telegraph has been completed. Hong Kong is now brought within a few hours' communication of Melbourne, Sydney, and other centres of Australian trade. Although the opening up of a new telegraphic route has lost its novelty, the completion of the line in question is too important not to be noted; and those who complain of the slowness with which such additions to our facilities for receiving news are made, may profitably be reminded that some 12,000 miles of submarine and 2,000 miles of land wire have been laid and placed in connection with this colony during the past eighteen months.

Amongst the names of the passengers who left lately in the M. M. Co.'s steamer Meikong, will be found that of Baron Richthofen, who returns to Europe to prepare an elaborate account of his explorations in China—a work which, when published, can hardly fail to prove of great interest and value. The book will probably be published both in English and German, and the Baron estimates that some three or four years will be occupied in the work.

We are glad to notice that success has at last crowned the efforts of Mr. F. H. Stuart in raising the German barque Marie, which had been wrecked on a rock off Lintin in the Canton River.

By the Sui Tsing we learn that the American ship Enoch Train is lying off Haucheen Bluff with loss of main top-mast and all her after yards. The Sui Tsing towed her to a safe anchorage. The Enoch Train is from New York with coals, and was dismasted on October 2nd in a typhoon, in lat. 17. 11 N., long. 117. 38 E.

PHILIPPINES.

MANILA.

A Manila correspondent writes:—On the 12th we were visited by a hurricane that has caused considerable loss of life and property. The wind commenced moderately at about ten o'clock from the N.W., gradually increasing in strength till half-past five in the morning. At this hour the hurricane was intense, blowing most furiously; then veering rapidly to the W. N.W., S.W., S., S.S.E., and S.E., it subsided at about 9 A.M.; from midnight to half-past eleven the rain was incessant, and it was providential that when the storm ended the tide commenced to ebb, or else we should have been additionally afflicted by an inundation. The destruction of native huts, roofs, lamp-posts, trees, &c., has been very heavy, no less than 607 of the former are recorded as blown down. In the harbour, the Spanish schooner Genoveva foundered with almost all her crew; a provincial craft was wrecked on the beach, and several others were driven ashore; the Spanish vessels Alyandro and Rodrigo grounded, but have since been towed off; nine sailors of the Alyandro are reported drowned while going off the ship. At Punta Sangley (Cavite) some dead bodies were washed ashore. In Pampanga the hurricane has done a great deal of harm to the sugar crop; report says that at least one-half has been destroyed.

We are informed from Zamboanga that in the morning of the 15th ult., at about ten o'clock, seventy convicts in the fort of "Del Pilar" attacked the soldiers on guard, and after cruelly murdering the officer in command, one sergeant, and two corporals, they took possession of the muskets in the fortress, and sallied out with the intention of penetrating into the town; but in the meantime the Governor, some officers, and all the Spanish residents had placed themselves at the head of the natives, and were prepared to attack the murderers. The war vessels in the harbour also made preparations to bombard the fort, if necessary. The convicts made desperate attempts to enter the town, but finding that their efforts were ineffectual, owing to the stoutness of the defence, they commenced to retire towards the town of Tetuan, leaving three of their number killed, and some wounded. By this time some men had been landed from the gunboats, and an active pursuit was at once organised, which resulted in the almost complete extermination of the prisoners; only ten of them are supposed to have reached the forests, where if they do not perish from hunger and fatigue, they will yet fall into the hands of the authorities.

COCHIN CHINA.

SAIGON.

The latest dates extend to the 28th October. Business was exceedingly dull, and several failures had taken place of Chinese in connection with Singapore. There had been a very severe typhoon on the 23rd Oct, a little to the north of Cape St. James, and the following vessels had returned to port disabled:—Taffarette (French), Blackwatch (British steamer), Kulahome (Siamese), and the Surao (German), was aground at Cape St. James.

The condition of the new rice crop was very satisfactory, and supplies were expected to arrive at market in December.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates extend to the 7th Nov. The outward P. and O. mail of 4th Oct. arrived on 4th Nov. The following items of news are from the Straits Times:—

His Excellency the Governor, on the 28th, proceeded in the Colonial steamer Pluto, accompanied by H.M.S. Zebra, Capt. Denison, to Malacca, Klang, and Langkat. During his Excellency's absence a mob of street coolies, taking it into their heads to resist the measures taken by the police to prevent street obstructions, banded together and went in a body through the streets of the town, and throwing sirrie leaves (supposed to be a sign of the secret societies) into the shops and stalls of the markets, ordered the occupants to close their places immediately, threatening that if any one refused his shop would be immediately ransacked and the inmates severely punished. Shortly after noon, on the 29th, not a single shop in the town remained open, while crowds had collected here and there, throwing stones at and otherwise maltreating policemen found in the streets, gathering round the police stations, smashing hack carriages, robbing money-changers, and others, and giving way to the lawlessness of mobs generally.

A Bugis named Mat Saman, sentenced to death at the last criminal session for murder, but whose sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life, while being escorted by police peons from Her Majesty's Jail to the Convict Lines, was released by the mob, the peons being seriously maltreated, and he has not since been retaken. During the confusion, a gang went to the office of the Registrar under the Contagious Diseases Ordinance and demolished the office furniture and destroyed what papers they found; fortunately these proved to be merely printed forms, the register not being kept there, and the work of registration has since proceeded without interruption. The justices of the peace were called together, and determined upon a proclamation, to be issued in Chinese print, explaining the order that had been given to the police officers, and later in the day the shops were reopened and all rioting ceased. The military, the volunteers, and a number of the European residents, were, however, called out for two nights, lest some attack should be made upon the banks and merchants' godowns. His Excellency the Governor heard of the disturbance on his return to Malacca, and immediately returned to Singapore, reaching here late last Saturday night. The conduct of the police and the authorities in the matter has been very severely criticised. On Monday the Governor issued a proclamation appointing a Commission to inquire into and report upon all the circumstances connected with the riots. Their meetings are to be public, and a shorthand report of the evidence will be published.

The Malacca Treasury embezzlement case is at last to be tried at a special criminal session to be held there by the Chief Justice on the 11th. There is, we understand, a great deal of interest felt in this case at that settlement, as the assistant treasurer had been highly respected for many years in the community, and was believed to have been of irreproachable character. Singapore, too, has its frauds and swindles to lament. Last mail we had to record the failure of the firm of Velge Bros., and the absconding of Mr. Abraham Velge, who was charged with forgery and swindling. Yesterday the Square was startled by the failure of Joshua and Bro., opium traders, with enormous liabilities, the claims of two local banks alone aggregating, it is said, nearly $600,000. There are in this case, also, matters which may cause it to be heard more of hereafter. Mr. A. R. Joshua, the manager of the business, is under arrest on a charge of criminal breach of trust.

The erection of the lighthouse on the North Sands, Malacca Straits, is again delayed, owing to the heavy swell. The barque Norna was chartered for the work, but she has returned to Singapore, and the iron has been stored at Her Majesty's naval coal depot on Pulo Brani. We understand nothing can be done for three or four months to come.

His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to grant twelve months' leave of absence, with half salary, to Mr. H. Ellis, harbour-master of Penang, to proceed to Europe. Captain Fox will continue to act as harbour-master of Penang until further orders.

The Austrian corvette Fasana, Post Captain Funk, arrived in harbour on the 29th October, and gave a salute of twenty-one guns, which was returned from Fort Canning.

Complaints have reached us from Labuan of the indifference or apathy displayed by the Governor with regard to the suppression of piracy in the neighbouring waters. The Sulu trade was being materially interfered with by pirates, and although H.M.S. Hornet was lying idle in Victoria harbour, Governor Bulwer declined to take the responsibility of ordering her after them. We mention this because it has been brought to our notice. We have been hitherto under the impression that H.M.'s naval officers had standing orders to "go for" pirates wherever heard of.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—In the early part of the interval a good business was done in Grey Shirtings at full rates, but a slight decline had since taken place, and the native festivities, on the occasion of the formal opening of the railway, had latterly lessened the demand. Cotton Yarn had been fairly saleable, chiefly Nos. 16 to 24, and 28 to 32, but heavy stocks had caused a further reduction in prices. In Woollens there had been no particular change; Black Velvets and Lastings had continued in good demand, but the stock of the former was very small.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—A fair business had been doing during the interval at slightly lower quotations. Cotton Yarn: Lower counts in less demand; 38/42, no enquiry. Grey Shirtings: Deliveries continued steady; prices, however, had not been maintained. Turkey Red Cambrics enquired for. Taffachelass: No change. Other Cottons in less demand. Camlets: Scarlet in some request, at slightly better rates; Black not much enquired for. Lustres and Orleans: Favourite patterns readily saleable, quotations unchanged. Mousselines de Laine: Business on a smaller scale, at a slight decline in rates. Blankets in request, at former rates, for good assortments. Metals: Nail Rod Iron in more demand, at advancing rates; other descriptions dull.

TIENTSIN.—There has been no improvement in the import market of this port.

HANKOW.—There had been less pressure to realise, the market had assumed a healthier tone and symptoms of a good demand were now apparent. In Woollens few transaction were reported, but quotations for most descriptions remained steady, Long Ells alone showing any marked change. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs. improved 1 to 2 candareens per piece; 8¼ lbs. recovered 2 to 3 candareens from the lowest point; 9 lbs. 10 to 12 oz. quotation for best makes Tls. 2.61 per piece. White Shirtings difficult to move; inquiry of a most limited character. T-Cloths: Active demand, and about 9,500 pieces 7 lbs. placed at an advance of fully 2 to 3 candareens, especially best Mexicans; 8 lbs. out of favour. Drills: Very quiet, but sales at rather better rates. Jeans nothing done; nominal quotations, for best Tls. 2.15 to 2.20 per piece. Fancy Cottons: Sales confined to Brocades and Spots with a few pieces of Chintz.

CHINKIANG.—Business had been somewhat under the average, and the values of 8¼ lbs. Shirtings, good common chops had not ranged over Tls. 1.72 to 1.75.; 7 lbs. Shirtings had not been wanted. T-Cloths, following the course of the Shanghai market, had been depressed, and Mexican 7 lbs. Cloth had only realised Tls. 1.42 to 1.50. Drills had gone off freely, the rates paid being apparently under those current in Shanghai, say Tls. 3.05 to 3.08 per piece for 15 to 15¼ lbs.

SHANGHAI.—Piece Goods: Telegrams reporting an active and advancing Cotton market, and continued monetary pressure at Home, had somewhat restored the confidence of importers, while dealers continued to show more desire to invest at the low rates previously ruling. Woollens: Business had not been large, but prices had been more than maintained. Grey Shirtings: 8¼ lbs. goods had taken a start, and fully 800 bales of Dewhurst's Eagles, quitted at Tls. 1.82½ to Tls. 1.86. Collie's Lion—Dewhurst's Pheasants, and similar qualities at Tls. 1.83 to 1.85, inferior chops at a proportionate improvement. 32,000 pieces Mildewed Pillar and other chops sold at Tls. 1.78, and 10,000 pieces Collie's second quality, also mildewed, at Tls. 1.80. 7-lbs. active at former quotations. Best 10-lbs. at Tls. 2.55 to 2.65. White Shirtings: Occasionally asked for, good 56 reeds at Tls. 1.70, 64 reeds at Tls. 1.84, and 66 reeds at Tls. 2.15. T-Cloths: More inquiry for Common 6 and 7-lbs., as also for good to finest 8-lb. cloth, but great irregularity prevailed, common 6 lbs. Tls. 1.13 to 1.15; 7-lbs. common and fine Tls. 1.25 to 1.45, 8-lbs. Tls. 1.58 to 1.64; Chop Dollar 7-lbs., Tls. 1.50 Drills: Market dull, prices easier. Tls. 3.02 to 3.09 for Dutch, and Tls. 3.04 to 3.15 for 14 to 15 lb. English; Jeans: Quiet, but fairly steady. English Tls. 2.10 to 2.13; English Sheetings 14½ to 16 lbs., Tls. 2.80 to 3.20; Fancy Cottons, inquiry pretty general, but business unimportant. Handkerchiefs, 28 and 23 inch. Tls. 0.50 to 55 and Tls. 0.82½ per doz.; Chintzes, Tls. 1.23 to 1.30 for blue and blown, Tls 1.43 for assorted; Turkey Reds, Tls 2.95 for 2½ lbs Tls 2.13 to 2.15 for 3 lbs; White Brocades, Tls 2.15; Black spots, Tls 2.72; Dyed Damasks, Tls 4.65 to 4.75. Cotton Lastings, Tls to 4.80; Velveteens 26 inch, to Tls 0.22s Woollens; Camlets, Tls 13.50 for Black, Tls 15.75 for Scarlet, Tld 15.95 to 16.10 for assorted; Market at the close quiet, anr. quotations weaker; Spanish Stripes, in good request, and highed. T T B quality sold at Tls. 0.71, and mixed chops of Scarlet places. "to arrive," at Tls. 0.71½; Black Lastings wanted at TlB 12.50 to 13.50; Long Ells; Business scarcely worth noticing. H.D.O. Scarlet, Tls. 6.30; C. P. H. Scarlet, Tls. 6.35, a'sorted, Tls. 5.80 to 5.9. Figured Orleans, Nothing done. Metals.—Dull, and nothing to report. Nail Red Iron, of common brand, offering at Tls. 3.40 and 3.50, without attracting buyers. Coals: No change.

HONG KONG.—In addition to the mail steamers, the Agamemnon steamer from Liverpool and the Canton steamer from London had arrived, bringing fair supplies of Manchester manufactures. During the fortnight a trivial business had been doing in Yarns and Piece Goods. Advices from the coast ports and consuming districts were still of a dull nature, and the desire of importers generally to effect sales to take advantage of the high exchange now ruling, with the belief current amongst the Chinese dealers that values had not seen their lowest, had all tended to bring about the unsatisfactory state of the market.

FOOCHOW.—Sales had been as follows: Grey Shirtings, 8.4 lbs., 1,500 pieces, at $2.65 to 2.70 per piece. T-Cloth, 7 lbs., 1,450 pieces, at $1.90 to 2.15 per piece; Mexican, 7 lbs. and 8 lbs., no sales. Lead: 1,000 pigs, at $6.75 to 7 per picul, against Tea.

CANTON.—Lead: Prices unaltered, but transactions extremely limited. Quotations: Common quality, $6.30 to 6.35; W.B., $6.55 to 6.60.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead and Co. report as follows:—The market for Grey goods had continued very dull, accounts from the neighbouring markets being unfavourable. White Shirtings and some descriptions of Fancy Goods had been in fair enquiry. 39-inch Grey Shirtings 8¼ lbs. in less demand, holders accepted $2.50 to $2.47½ for ordinary; 7 lbs. in better demand at $2.10; 6 lbs. dull at $1.10. 45-inch 8 lbs. demand very limited at $2.50 to $2.52½; 9 lbs. neglected, prices nominal at $2.85. 32-inch T-Cloths: Very quiet, and business small; 5 lbs., $1.32½; 6 lbs., $1.60 to $1.62½; 7 lbs., $1.80 to $1.82½. Madapollams neglected and nothing done. 36-inch Grey Supers: Demand very limited. 36-inch White Shirtings: Fine in good request, more enquiry for medium qualities. Grey Yarn: 40s in some demand at rather low rates; sales at $127½ to $129; 30s in little enquiry, nothing done in 18/24s. Coloured Yarns: T. R. in fair request, Dark Green saleable at $85 to $87; Imperial Red dull. Woollens: Lastings more enquired for; Scarlet Long Ells neglected; Camlets firmly held, but little enquiry. Metals: Iron less firm and prices in favour of buyers; Nailrods, $4.30; Belgian Flat bar, $3.45; Hoop held for $5¼ to 5½. Lead in no demand. Swedish Steel, $4¼.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Business had been very quiet, settlements not exceeding 3,000 piculs. As a rule, holders had shown no particular anxiety to realise, and prices were not materially changed. Arrivals had been light and the scarcity of the medium to good medium grades continued; these sorts remained relatively dear. At the close the market was firm Quotations:—Good common, $29.00 to 30.00 per picul; medium, $32.00 to 35 per picul; good medium, $36.00 to 40.00; fine, $41.00. 10 43.00 per picul; finest, $45.00 to 48 per picul; choice and choicest, $50.00 and upwards.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—A large business had been transacted, and settlements aggregated about 5,500 piculs. Owing to the continued high prices that had been ruling at Yokohama, compared with this market, and the native speculation to meet the demand there, prices had advanced considerably. Stocks were estimated at 3,500 piculs. Settlements to date were 32,000 piculs, being 13,000 piculs in excess of last season's for a similar period. Caller Ou sailed on the 11th Oct. for New York direct, with 845,500 lbs. Tea, and the Devana for Yokohama, to complete her cargo, with 353,638 lbs. from this port. Quotations: Good common, $23 to 26, per picul; medium, $28 to 31; good medium, $33 to 36; fine, $38 to 42; finest, $43 to 48; choice, $50 to 55; choicest $56 and upwards.

KIUKIANG.—Shipments of both Black and Green Teas were being steadily made to Shanghai on native account.

SHANGHAI.—For Black Teas a good enquiry had existed, and a fair amount of business had been done. Prices had generally ruled in favour of buyers, a decline in values of about five mace being noticeable all round. The total reported settlements had been 15,091 chests, re-shipments 417 chests, and the stock was reduced to 14,000 chests. Green Teas: Market for country descriptions less active than during the preceding fortnight, but a fair amount of business had taken place, and no material change was advised. The tendency, had, however, been towards a lower range of values, confirming the reduction recently noted, and a further decline of about a tael per picul in most descriptions had been established. Pingsueys had attracted more attention and had been taken by English buyers at a reduction of about Tls. 3 per picul from last quotations, the quality being, however, very undesirable. Settlements reported during the fortnight 37,623 half-chests of all kinds, and reshipments 1,275 half-chests, leaving a stock of 73,078 half-chests of all kinds.

HANKOW.—Considering the advanced period in the season a fair business had been transacted, the reported purchases having been 5,924 chests. These settlements had been made chiefly on Russian account, at prices fully up to those previously quoted.

FOOCHOW.—Congous had continued to meet with a good demand from English and Australian buyers, the daily settlements averaging 3,150 chests, which quantity was in excess of the daily arrivals from the country, as the stock had been reduced by 8,000 chests during the interval. Prices had had an easy tendency, as the Teamen were ready sellers at current quotations, but there had been no quotable change. About 2,500 chests of Souchong had been settled at rather irregular prices. The Ooloong market remained in the same undisturbed state, and the stock amounted to over 102,000 half-chests. Most of the samples shown were thin and characterless.

AMOY.—Extreme quietness had again prevailed in the Ooloong market, and the settlements during the fortnight had been only 500 half-chests. Operators were declining to buy except at a material decline, while Teamen were altogether unwilling to make sales, though the stock comprised upwards of 39,000 half-chests. Quotations were nominal. The Anglo Saxon was the only vessel on the berth for New York.

CANTON.—Scented Orange Pekoes had been offering at lower rates, but Scented Capers had not been obtainable at any reduction, as all parcels with any pretension to quality had been bought at full prices as soon as offered for sale.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Purchases since the commencement of the month had barely exceeded 100 piculs, continued unfavourable advices from Europe having given a check to business. Silkmen had shown no desire to realise, by accepting lower rates, and, besides, many of them had been fully occupied with the silkworm egg business, to the exclusion of other matters. Quotations unchanged, but must be considered nominal. Unsold stock estimated at about 1,500 piculs. Silkworm Eggs: Settlements to date amounted to about 1,000,000 cards, leaving about 100,000 on the market, and total receipts were not expected to exceed 1,200,000. Quotations: Best, $3.20 to 3.50; good, $2.70 to 3; Middling and Inferior, $2 to 2.70 per card.

SHANGHAI.—Messrs. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular says:—The French mail closed on the 18th Oct. with settlements for the week of 1,400 bales, most of which were taken in barter or in joint account with natives, the prices paid showing barely 5 taels reduction on our last quotations, while the Silk is fully 1s. to 1s. 6d. worse in quality than that purchased at the end of June and the beginning of July. During this week settlements amount to 1,600 bales, at little or no variation in price. Much trouble has been given to buyers by dealers sending in good musters, and after purchase, inferior cargo, which on inspection has had to be rejected. Dealers are very pleased with the past fortnight's business, as the relief came just in time to prevent any further reduction of prices, and in fact the market now closes in their favour.

CANTON.—Notwithstanding unfavourable advices from home, purchases still continued at about 1s. per lb. over prices in London by wire advances, and rates had advanced about $10 all round. In Re-reels, some Lacklows had been settled at $580 for Curio No. 1. Stock:—150 bales Loongkongs, 1,500 bales Tsatlee reels, 70 bales Kowkongs, 120 bales Cumchucks, Lacklows, &c., and 250 bales of inferior descriptions.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, DEC. 4.

Some time ago I mentioned the fact that Mr. P. H. van Diest had asked a concession for the exploration of the Ombilien coal fields, on the West coast of Sumatra, and for the construction of a railway from thence to Padang. This gentleman being on the point of returning to Java has transferred his demand for concession to Mr. J. K. W. Quarles van Ufford. According to what the Minister of the Colonial Department said at the sitting of the 7th of September, it appears that he is not much inclined to grant this concession, because heavy charges upon the Government would result from it if the Government guaranteed the due payment of the interests upon the capital required for the construction of the railway. Both the gentlemen I named have published letters in support of their scheme. They value the sum to be guaranteed by the State at f.350,000 a-year, and they are of opinion that the Government would be called upon for this amount during a few years only, when they would acquire important advantages in return.

LITERATURE.

The Phœnix presents us with a more than usually interesting number this month. The Rev. Thomas Bryson gives an off-hand, but observant account of "A Week in Nanking," conceived in the best spirit of foreign travel. Mr. B. H. Hodgson, whose pen is always welcome, contributes some interesting notes of Nayakote and its tribes. Major MacMahon has a scholarly paper on a rather dry subject; and the Rev. Mr. Edkins has broken new and interesting ground in his inquiry into the "identity of Chinese and Indo-European roots." There are the usual reviews, among which is to be found a notice of Mr. Medhurst's Foreigner in Far Cathay, which, is in our opinion, much too chary for the merits of the book or the credit of the reviewer. We look upon Mr. Medhurst's book as the most valuable contribution to general knowledge of China with which European literature has recently been enriched.

Art for December is simply admirable. It opens with a notice of Mr. Marks's "Princess and Pelicans," illustrated by an admirable photograph, and accompanied by a running commentary in the best style of word-painting drollery. The perusal of this short article, and the inevitable conning of the illustration, will alone repay the reader for the cost of the number. The "Shepherd of the Regno di Napoli" is not less delightful; and the "Girl of the Foundling Hospital" is charming, not only as a chef d'œuvre of art but as a suggestive study. It is not too much to say that, in its new form, Art is a publication to which no one who can afford its very moderate price should omit to subscribe.

Ocean Highways, published by Messrs. George Philip and Son, contains a most interesting article on Public Works in Japan, by Mr. R. H. Brunton, the engineer to the Japanese Government. A map is given, which shows the railways and lighthouses erected or proposed. We make some extracts from this interesting paper. There are other papers containing important information, such as relate to Sir Bartle Frere's mission to Zanzibar, the "Voyage of the Challenger," and the war between the Atalik Ghazi and the Zungans. But all of these must yield in interest to the continuation of the papers entitled the "Threshold of the Unknown Region," which treats particularly of the possibility of the passage of the Polar pack between Greenland and Novaya Zemlya. Of Davis, the discoverer of Davis's Straits, three hundred years ago, and Baffin, after whom the celebrated Bay was named, we have not space to tell. We must be content to refer our readers to Ocean Highways for information on these points, which, we can promise them, is not only full and authentic on these points, but valuable and suggestive on many others.

The People's Magazine is one of the best of the publications of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge. It is well written and well illustrated. It takes part in most of the important social questions of the day, and it observes a just moderation of style which should always command attention to its arguments.

The Cornhill maintains its character as a varied and interesting miscellany. This month it has a special attraction for us in a very sensible article on Chinese Arsenals and Armaments, in which we think we trace a pen not unfamiliar to the readers of this journal. In this we are told that it is not aggression against foreigners, but defence against rebels, which has caused the Chinese to turn their attention to the improvement of their arms.

On the capture of Nanking in 1864 by the Imperial forces the arsenal works were removed from Shanghai to that city, and Dr. Macartney was commissioned to lay out among the ruins left by the insurgents a great extent of workshops and foundries, in which the processes of European manufacture were to be copied. . . . It has lately been shown that gunpowder is not, as is commonly asserted, a Chinese invention, and that the use of explosive compounds was introduced into China at a comparatively late period. . . . In addition to Nanking—where, to the original undertakings in connection with artillery manufacture, experiments in the fabrication and use of torpedoes have of late years been carried on—the arsenals founded by the Chinese are three in number, and are situated respectively at Foochow in the south, at Shanghai in Central China, and at Tientsin in close proximity to the capital. No such thing exists in reality as the Chinese army, navy, or exchequer, viewed as a whole. . . . The empire is divided into a number of semi-independent jurisdictions (eighteen in China proper alone), each of which has its own complete official hierarchy, its army and navy, and its separate revenue system.

The arsenal and dockyard at Foochow appear to have been formed by two Frenchmen, Messrs. Daiguebelle and Giquel, soon after 1866. The site is about forty acres, on the bank of the river Min, below Foochow, and close to the anchorage of foreign shipping. The number of foreign employés (principally French) is between sixty and seventy, including teachers, accountants, draughtsmen, and artisans. The schools of navigation and engineering are presided over by Englishmen. The number of native artisans employed in the arsenal is about 1,500, and of students 300.

Under the direction of their foreign instructors and foremen, these Chinese "hands" have not only constructed buildings and dockyard works which would do credit to any European nation, but have also built and launched a number of steam vessels which have, for several years past, successfully navigated the adjacent waters. . . . It is stated that already a man-of-war like H.M.S. Favourite, of 2,300 tons, and 400-horse power, could be built, her engines, boilers, and screw manufactured, her armament, sails, cordage, iron masts and anchors made, and her midship battery plated with heavy laminated plates rolled at the arsenal. Her guns could be forged there, her shot and shell fitted there, and her copper sheathing rolled out, on the completion of the works in progress.

At Tientsin a school for Chinese troops in European drill and tactics was set on foot eight or nine years ago, though the progress has been materially impeded by the refusal of the Chinese officers to submit to the conditions of European discipline. The writer concludes:—

Regarded in their military aspects, the dockyards of Foochow and Shanghai, the arsenal of Nanking, and the fortifications of Taku, would probably in any future hostilities add comparatively little to the difficulties and dangers of an attacking force. . . . It is from a political point of view, on the other hand, as indicating only too obviously a desire to arm the country for resistance against all further exigencies of improvement, that the warlike preparations of the Chinese are most worthy of attention.

Mrs. Leonowens, whose book on the "Inner life" of the Siamese Court created some sensation a short time since, is now at Boston, United States, where she is delivering lectures on the same subject.

EXTRACT FROM MR. BRUNTON'S PAPER ON JAPAN.

The improvements already completed in Japan are not very extensive; but the germs have been laid for important undertakings, which will no doubt revolutionise the whole country. It should be remembered that Japan, only five years ago, emerged from the thralls of a fierce and bitter civil war, which upset the whole constitution of the country. Since then the mind of the Government has been fully occupied with internal changes, the organisation of departments, and general arrangements, and little time could be given to prosecute extensive works with activity. We will, however, briefly describe such as have been undertaken. Engineering shops, capable of making small engines, boilers, and other iron work were established by the Dutch settlers fifteen or twenty years ago, at Kobe and Nagasaki. These contain the ordinary punching and shearing machines, lathes, drills, planing machines, &c., and are worked entirely by the Japanese themselves. They re-boiler their own steamers, and have turned out small marine engines in a very creditable manner, as well as doing what repairs may be required for the owners of steamships who apply to them. A patent slip, imported from this country, which is capable of taking on vessels drawing 12 or 14 feet of water, has been established at Nagasaki. It is worked under the care of one Englishman, is kept fully occupied, and is found to be of great use. A very important and more extensive work, viz., the establishment of an arsenal and dockyard, was begun about seven years ago, under the auspices of the former Government. It has lately been completed, and is under the superintendence of a staff of French engineers. It is situated at Yokoska, about eight miles from Yokohama. A graving-dock, 350 feet long, and with twenty feet of water on the sill, has been completed there. It is admirably executed, being cut out of rock, with masonary sides, and has iron caissons at its entrance. There is also a patent slip to take on vessels of 12 feet draught. There are besides most extensive machine-shops and foundries, containing all the largest and most useful machinery common to such places, with powerful cranes and all the apparatus necessary for the building or repairing of the largest vessels, roperies and sailmaking shops, with extensive warehouses containing complete stores of all the furnishings necessary for ships. Several small steamers have been built here; and in repairing ocean-going ships, the dock has been found of great use. The total cost to the Government of the entire work has been about £400,000.

The next work in point of seniority which the Government undertook was the erection of lighthouses. This was commenced about four years and a half ago, and has been so far executed under the direction of the writer of this paper. The Japanese have long appreciated the value of a beacon light for the guidance of navigators, and on every projecting headland may now be found a clay building in which a wood fire is nightly burned. But, with the characteristic quickness of perception of the people, a well organised lighthouse, with its delicate optical apparatus, its brilliant and never failing light, had not long been shown them in complete working order, than the untrustworthiness and faulty character of their own system of lighting became apparent to them, and it was doomed; the Government issuing the following

NOTIFICATION.

"Lighthouses are very useful for navigation, and formerly Japanese were in the habit of burning wood fires at the expense of the surrounding people. The maintenance of these fires was very expensive, and they were often put out by the wind or rain, and so they became a danger to navigation. Therefore, there will now be built properly constructed lighthouses at those places where they are found to be most necessary. Any local government or authority desirous of having a lighthouse on any point must make application to this office, as all wood fires must from this time be discontinued and put an end to."

(Signed) "DAI-JO-KWAN."

The Japanese Lights may be divided into two classes, viz., those which, as is seen from the above notification, are required by native craft for their local trade, and those which are erected in accordance with a Treaty stipulation for ocean-going and foreign vessels. The former need only be of a small description, while the latter generally require the most powerful light possible, and, consequently, an expensive style of construction. Of the former, six lights have been completed, though many more are in contemplation; while of the latter, seventeen are now in operation. The optical apparatus for all of them have been got from England, and are of the best description procurable, and the towers and dwellings are constructed in the most substantial and lasting manner. Besides the lights, all dangerous shoals in the track of ships have been buoyed, and beacons erected where considered necessary. It is the intention of the Government to erect a certain number of lighthouses each year, until the whole coast is efficiently illuminated. The total cost, so far, including the purchase of a steam tender and her maintenance, has been about £250,000.

The writer had also the privilege, shortly after his arrival in Japan, of being entrusted with the erection of two short lines of telegraph, viz., between Kobé and Osaka twenty miles, and between Yokohama and Yedo twenty miles. These were the first telegraphs in the country, and were worked with great skill and regularity by native operators for some years. Brequet's dial instrument was adopted, on which was grouped the English alphabet and the forty-seven Japanese characters, and it was found that both languages could be transmitted with ease and rapidity by their means. Telegraph construction has now, however, been made into a separate department, and is superintended by a staff of English engineers. Under their direction the line from Nagasaki to Yedo has been completed, in continuation of the Great Northern Company's cable from Shanghai, thus putting Yedo in direct telegraphic communication with England. Many other lines of telegraph are in contemplation.

Railway works were commenced in Japan about two years and-a-half ago. They were undertaken with the assistance of an English loan, which was floated in the market, and very rapidly taken up. The originally proposed line is from Kobe to Yedo, a distance of about 250 miles; but only two lengths of twenty miles each, viz., from Kobe to Osaka, and from Yokahama to Yedo, have been as yet actively proceeded with. The latter has been lately opened, and from the traffic which has already gone over it, the most flattering hopes of its success are entertained. The railway is on a 3-feet 6-inch gauge, and is laid with cross sleepers, and double-headed rails of about sixty pounds to the yard. The works are generally very light, and the cost of construction should be small. The engines and carriages have been obtained from this country, and are of the ordinary description. The railway is directed by a regular staff of English officials.

These works are all under a Government Department, which has recently been formed, and which is called the "Kobu-sho" or Public Works Office. It is presided over by a Minister of State. He has under him a number of Commissioners, each of whom are entrusted with the special care of one of the undertakings in the charge of the department.

Of the works in contemplation, it is difficult to speak with any degree of accuracy, but it is almost certain that these are of a very extensive nature. Extensions of the railway and telegraph system, an increased number of lighthouses, the working of the valuable mineral products of the country, the introduction of various manufactures and industries, the construction of roads, the improvement of rivers, and the formation of harbours, are all spoken of as things likely to be undertaken. In their earnest endeavours to introduce improvements into their country, if they set to work in the thorough and systematic way which has been their wont, the Japanese may rely on having the best wishes and hearty co-operation of every liberal-minded man in England.

THE FRENCH PRESS ON THE SUEZ CANAL.

WITH every disposition to treat our French neighbours with all possible courtesy, it will, we fancy, be a hard matter for our readers to keep their gravity over the extravagantly absurd article—anent the Suez Canal—which we have translated from the Paris Presse in another column. It speaks volumes of the demoralisation of the French press that such a tirade of utter nonsense should appear in the pages of what used to be considered a respectable journal. It is more important still as showing how wondrously weak must be the cause of M. DE LESSEPS and his followers, when they can lend themselves to such base and frivolous arguments. But, "when all is said and done," the sense of the ridiculous is the feeling which will predominate over all others after reading our French contemporary's magnificient gasconade. That poor dear old PAM's memory should be disturbed for the purpose of dragging his honoured name into a mere squabble about the shareholders and dividends of a Joint Stock Company, which has involved itself in debt and is trying to "squirm" its way out of its embarrassments by repudiating its contracts, is certainly the last thing that we should have expected from the good taste and chivalry of the French. They know, as a nation, that they never had a truer friend, or a more honourable critic and adviser than the immortal statesman whose fame the Presse has, most ill-advisedly, set itself to try to tarnish. The notion of Lord PALMERSTON being "panic-stricken" with anything is too original to escape commemoration; but that he was so much afraid of France as to circulate rumours to the disadvantage of M. DE LESSEPS, and to employ Mr. ROBERT STEPHENSON to endorse them, is simply monstrous. Of course, if M. DE LESSEPS and his organ like this style of argument, they must be most welcome to it. But we expected better things of them. We thought, and we think still—that the French nation could well afford to be content with the greatest triumph of engineering which modern science has achieved. All this was for France, because the greatest engineer of the age happened to be a Frenchman, M. DE LESSEPS was at once the BRUNEL and the STEPHENSON—whose ashes he spurns. He triumphed over the most threatening obstacles, and he accomplished a work which, while the world rolls, will be a lasting monument to his memory. No doubt he spent a great deal more money on his enterprise than he had calculated upon; but, for that, who was to blame but himself? To go back to the early discussions of the feasibility of the Suez Canal is merely to involve ourselves in the discussion of a question which has been finally settled. M. DE LESSEPS, full of his own inspiration, triumphantly carried it through to its completion—he has now only to watch its progress through its probation and proof. If ever figures came in aid of a great undertaking, their "hard logic" has been brought to bear on the results of the first year or two's trading of the Suez Canal. Every month the traffic increases; every month the acknowledgment of the benefit conferred is more and more readily admitted. To check the constantly increasing influx of vessels would be folly; but both folly and madness appear to be chronic, or, rather, intermittent disorders in France. Such foolish articles as that in the Presse may not aggravate them at home, but they may very decidedly deter English investors from taking shares in an undertaking which seeks to prop itself up by such transparently unprincipled means.

THE JAPANESE AND THE FAMINE IN KOREA.

THE Japanese have now the opportunity of performing a noble action, and at the same time putting an end to an ignoble strife. The intelligence of the dreadful famine in Korea, which we published last week, must excite compassion in every heart capable of any feeling at all. Even the horrors of the coolie traffic in Macao, and the slave trade in Zanzibar, which Sir BARTLE FRERE has been despatched to suppress, pale before the harrowing statement of the Chefoo correspondent of the North China Herald that to such extremities are the Koreans reduced that they are fain to sell their young women to the Chinese in order to obtain a little food for the protraction of the lives of the miserable beings who consent to live upon such terms. By all means, let the Japanese despatch their fleets to Korea, but let them be laden, not with guns, but with grain. As for recovering any of the overdue tribute, that is clearly impossible from a people reduced to such extremities. As for the Chinese, on whom the Koreans have so recently pinned their faith, the value of their protestations of friendship may be judged by the fact that they are the very people who are carrying on this harem traffic. Their protection is evidently that of the wolf to the sheepfold. On the other hand, the Japanese Government can by a simple act of generosity, out of their plenty, feed a starving people, and regain the share of influence over the Koreans which they have lately been deprived of. Let them reflect also that they will be advancing the cause of civilisation, to which they are so much attached, by following our English example in helping in their hour of need the most discontented of our subjects—as in Ireland—and the most formidable of our whilom antagonists—as in France. If this train of argument be fairly brought before the Japanese Government at home, and their Embassy here, we cannot doubt that it will be attended with the desired effect.

MR. CYRUS FIELD, associated with Mr. PENDER, Captain SHERARD OSBORN, Baron REUTER, and others, has proposed a scheme for amalgamating all the Submarine Cable Companies now working or in progress. The proposition will, of course, meet with opposition, and a good deal of nice bargaining will be required to bring the scheme to a successful conclusion. The association will be termed the "Globe Telegraph Company," and will, in fact, stand in a similar position to the public as the Government now does for the inland traffic. There is much to recommend the scheme, as tending to equalise the risks, and give a more secure investment for capital in submarine cables.

WE noticed in our last issue the formation of a company to run a line of steamers between London, the Straits, and China, and between New York, the Straits, and China, via the Suez Canal. The boats for this line are now building on the Clyde, and will, it is expected, be ready next March or April. The Agents in China will be Messrs. AUGUSTINE HEARD and Co.; and in London, Messrs. FEARON and Co. The capital, it is stated, has been privately subscribed.

THE last mail from New York brings accounts of the launching of the Calima on the river Delaware, one of the four steamers which we announced some months since as contracted for by the Pacific Mail Company. The Calima is an iron screw-steamer of about 2,000 tons cargo capacity, with passenger accommodation for 150 first-class and 800 steerage. The engines for this steamer as well as the other three have been made on the Clyde, and sent out.

OUR correspondent at Lisbon informs us that a new Governor has been nominated for Macao, Senor QUINTINO D'MACEDO, the late Secretary to the Minister of War, who will, we believe, proceed shortly to this post.

THE Queen has approved the appointment of DON JOSE ANTONIO DE LAVALLE as Spanish Consul at Hong Kong.

GREAT BRITAIN AND THE SUEZ CANAL.

(From the Paris Presse.)

No person, and no body of persons, have any right to complain of the consequences of their own deliberate acts or contracts. This trite observation is called forth by the report that the English Government are about to take steps to prevent the raising of the rates on the Suez Canal, which has been sanctioned by the Sultan and the Khedive. The course proposed by M. de Lesseps will unquestionably weigh heavily on every country whose vessels avail themselves of his great work, for the advance demanded is of a very oppressive character, The British flag will no doubt feel this impost more than any other, because the English have the chief part of the trade with India, China, and Japan in their hands. But, at the same time, it cannot be denied that England has the smallest right of all the maritime Powers to criticise the course which the directors of the Suez Canal Company have been compelled to pursue in order to realise a dividend for their shareholders. The blame that the cost of the construction of the Canal exceeded the estimates of M. de Lesseps, and that it became necessary to borrow so great a loan before the enterprise could be completed, that the interest on debentures swallowed up all prospect of dividend to shareholders, rests entirely with the English Government. The statesman responsible for this measure succeeded in passing it through Parliament in a shape opposed to common sense, and injurious to every European nation—especially to Great Britain.

The Viceroy of Egypt had made a "concession" of the Canal to a Frenchman, M. de Lesseps, in consequence of an esteem which was richly deserved. The mere fact that the concessionaire was a Frenchman was enough to rouse feelings of jealousy and rage in the mind of Lord Palmerston, notwithstanding that M. de Lesseps had done everything in his power to invest the Canal with an international character. Surprising delusion! It seemed as if Lord Palmerston dreaded that the Egypt of 1798 was about to be resuscitated, and that the conqueror of the Pyramids was likely to be revived in the person of M. de Lesseps—whose only object was one of peace, and especially valuable to Great Britain, as the mistress of the East Indies. Lord Palmerston, who had been Under-Secretary for War in 1807, and, afterwards—when the hatred of England to France rose to fever heat (paroxysme)—suffered all the bad passions of the latter time to inflame his mind once more. He moved Heaven and earth to cause the miscarriage of M. de Lesseps's scheme, even after the concession had been granted to him. The firmness of M. de Lesseps, backed by the support of the Viceroy, alone caused the great work to be commenced in spite of the intrigues of the English Premier. Then the latter, vexed and irritated, and excited by the trucklers to British prejudice (against France) had recourse to intrigues and machinations most unworthy of himself and his country. Hypocritically pretending to feel a deep interest in the welfare of the poorer Egyptians, he obtained from the Sultan a firman ordering that "fellahs" should be prevented from working on the Canal, because they would be likely to be fleeced of both health and wealth in the employment. In opposition to this it is well known that the company paid their workmen regularly, and that they did their best to preserve their health under circumstances of the most trying kind.

As soon as Lord Palmerston had obtained the firman abovementioned, he congratulated himself on the prospect of the Company's surrendering at discretion. Every influence, of French origin, however harmless, was ostensibly withdrawn. But, on the other hand, exaggerated accounts of the impracticability of the undertaking were set afloat in every direction. Even Robert Stephenson, the greatest English engineer of the day, was so far "fascinated" by Lord Palmerston that, after surveying the desert, he published a report, declaring his opinion that M. de Lesseps's idea was chimerical. But M. de Lesseps, though feeling himself shamefully deceived, would not give way to the dictum of Robert Stephenson, inspired as he was by Lord Palmerston in a moment of blind French-funk (Gallo-phobie). The great engineer collected round him the most practical men of the day, and with the assistance of their organisation and the labour of 30,000 workmen (fellahs) the Canal became an accomplished fact. No greater undertaking has ever been performed by the hands of men, in the face of a cold and reluctant comity of spectators, including the most enlightened quarter of the globe. The expense of the work was necessarily enormous. The quantity of coal consumed was almost incalculable, and coal was very dear at the time. Besides this, the price of every kind of labour was immensely increased. The inevitable consequence was that the work cost a vast deal more than the original estimates, and that the Company found itself saddled with an enormous debt.

The question therefore now comes before us, in an unanswerable form, that, if the tariff of the Canal is not raised, and the enterprise fails to pay in consequence, the prime blame lies with Lord Palmerston. In his day, the British Parliament was not sufficiently self-reliant to dispute the capricious will of the Premier, although public opinion fervently wished well to the Suez Canal, and hailed with cordiality the completion of the great work. Therefore, if England now resists the payment of enhanced dues by this passage, she has nobody to blame but herself. She must not also forget that there are other flags which have equal cause to complain of the despicable intrigues of Lord Palmerston; and that it devolves on England to take them all in tow if she would clear herself of opprobrium in this matter.

THE JAPANESE EMBASSY—PRESENTATION TO THE QUEEN.

On Thursday the Queen received at Windsor Castle Iwakura, the Chief Ambassador, with Kido, Okubo, Ito, and Yamaguchi, Associate Ambassadors, and the Secretaries of the Embassy, Shioda and Hyashi. The occasion, being one of great historical interest, if not of actual diplomatic character, was invested with the importance of semi-State; and the Ambassadors were accompanied from London by Lord Granville, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a Royal train of saloon carriages being assigned to them, and the Paddington Railway Station being carpeted and otherwise carefully arranged for their departure. The train started at quarter-past twelve o'clock, and reached the Royal platform at Windsor a few minutes before one. A large number of persons were present at the departure of the Embassy and suite from Paddington; and the distinguished visitors found a still larger assemblage of persons at Windsor ready to greet their arrival. On alighting from the train, Iwakura and his companions were led through the Royal waiting-room to the Queen's carriages, which were in attendance to convey the party to the Castle. Sir Harry Parkes and General Alexander took part in the induction of the party to the precincts of English Royalty. Three carriages had been sent from the Castle Mews, two being drawn by four horses, with outriders in the Royal scarlet, and at the railway station a Guard of Honour of the 2nd Battalion of Grenadier Guards was drawn up. The weather was bright and seasonably pleasant; so that the brief spectacle, which excited considerable public curiosity in the Royal borough, was not marred as it would have been had it taken place on an earlier day. Two bands of the Household Brigade were stationed in the Castle; and the National Anthem was played both on their coming and going. After the custom which had prevailed among all Eastern races, from the beginning of history to these prosaic and parsimonious days, the Japanese came bearing gifts. Their offerings, which were without exception costly, were in some instances of considerable size. These more bulky objects were contained in two pair-horse broughams, which followed the three carriages of half-State. At the grand staircase the Ambassadors were received by Lord Sidney, the Lord Chamberlain, who ushered them to the audience chamber, where they were met by Her Majesty, who was accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh and the Princess Beatrice. The Duchess of Sutherland was in attendance on the Queen, and several military officers were present. It may be mentioned that the Japanese party wore Court suits of European fashion, they having seemingly wholly discarded while on their travels the costume of their own country. The Chief Ambassador, after reading an address to the Queen, delivered to Her Majesty his letters of credence. The Royal reply was handed by the Queen to Lord Granville, who gave it to the Ambassador. The visitors, after the reception, lunched at the Castle, and then took their leave, evidently pleased with the gracious welcome they had received at the hands of Royalty. Lord Granville accompanied the deputation back to town, as did Lord Lucan and Colonel Marshall.

ADDRESS OF THE EMPEROR OF JAPAN.

His Majesty the Emperor of Japan, since the achievement of our national reconstruction, and the reorganisation of the administrative power of the Government, being desirous of establishing more intimate and friendly relations with foreign Powers, has commissioned us as his Ambassadors Extraordinary to proceed to the Court of your Gracious Majesty.

We have the great honour of presenting to your Majesty in person, on this occasion the letter of credence from our august Sovereign, and in accordance with his instructions would beg to express to your Majesty renewed assurances of our desire that the friendship now existing between your Majesty's Kingdom and the Empire of Japan may increase in strength, and that nothing may ever occur by which it shall be diminished or discontinued. During our sojourn here we have derived great interest and profit from the study of the various institutions of your enlightened and powerful Kingdom, and we avail ourselves of this opportunity to express our deepest thanks for all the assistance we have had afforded us, and for the kind manner in which we have been received by your subjects, as well as by your Majesty's Government. And as we are now on the eve of our departure we desire to congratulate your Majesty on the prosperity which has attended your Majesty's brilliant reign, and on the happiness and peace of your Majesty's Kingdom.

REPLY OF HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

It has given us great satisfaction to receive the assurances which you have been charged by your Sovereign to convey to us, of his Majesty's sincere desire that the friendship now existing between our dominions and the Empire of Japan may increase in strength, and that nothing may occur by which it shall be diminished or discontinued.

On your return to Japan you may inform your Imperial Master that his Majesty's desire in this respect is fully shared by ourselves.

It is our earnest hope that under his Majesty's wise administration Japan may continue to advance in prosperity, and that the commercial intercourse between the two nations be further developed.

We trust, also, that the future course of Japanese policy may be such as to ensure for Japan the lively sympathy of the nations of Christendom.

On Saturday, the 30th ult., Iwakura and his suite paid a visit to the office of the Graphic newspaper. They were received by the manager, who at some length explained the process of drawing and engraving upon wood. Great interest was evinced on the subject by his Excellency, who was subsequently conducted over the well-arranged printing-offices, which have been recently erected. The machinery excited general admiration amongst the visitors, to whom all the operations necessary for the production of an illustrated newspaper were thoroughly explained. After a thorough initiation into the processes of composing, printing, and folding the journal, his Excellency took his leave, expressing his pleasure and satisfaction at what he had seen and heard. On Monday the Ambassadors visited the works of the Chartered Gas Company, at Beckton, unaware of the crisis which had occurred, and added to their English experience the incidents of an English strike. Some members of the Embassy being informed that the stokers were simply a superior kind of labourers, who having acquired some skill in feeding fires obtained wages averaging 30s. a week, stated that in Japan, where strikes were unknown, men of that class worked for 1s. a week, and expressed their astonishment at any one quarrelling with such advantageous terms. The visitors subsequently went down the river to the southern outfall sewer works at Crossness Point, and the arrangements of the works were explained to them by the manager.

On Wednesday a deputation waited on the Ambassadors at the Buckingham Palace Hotel, to present an address from the Ladies' Committee of the Society for promoting Female Education in the East. The address was presented by the Hon. A. Kinnaird, M.P., and the following answer was returned and handed to him by Iwakura:—

To the Dowager Marchioness of Cholmondeley, the President, Vice-Presidents, &c., Committee of the Society for Promoting Female Education in the East,—We, the Ambassadors of his Majesty the Emperor of Japan, in reply to your earnest words expressing sympathy with the cause of female education in Japan, desire to thank you for the friendly interest thus manifested. We are anxious to gather information respecting your methods of education, and whatever else you may have learned in your long experience which shall tend to the elevation of the wives and daughters of our land. We appreciate your noble efforts put forth for the advancement of the women of the East, and are deeply grateful for your kind offer to aid in this work in our Empire, from which the cloud of seclusion has but recently been dispelled. We shall be most happy to convey to his Majesty the Emperor of Japan an account of this interview, and on his behalf thank you again for your sympathy with what he is endeavouring to accomplish for the welfare of your sisters in Japan.

THE P. AND O. COMPANY'S MEETING.

The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders in the P. and O. Company was held at the offices on the 6th inst., under the presidency of Mr. P. D. Hadow. The report of the directors (given in our last), detailing the operations of the company during the past twelve months, ws taken as read.

The Chairman said there were not many subjects in the report calling for any explanation, as the directors, acting upon their usual custom, had touched upon everything which they thought the shareholders would expect them. At the same time he should be glad to offer any explanation in addition which the shareholders might desire. The accounts had, as usual, been open for the inspection of the shareholders at the office, and, taken in connection with the report, he thought that they would be considered eminently satisfactory. The simple fact was that the board of directors had been pursuing the policy shadowed forth during the past three or four years, of increasing the capacity and efficiency of the fleet without making any extra demands upon the proprietors. During the period mentioned the company had increased its shipping property to the extent of £228,000, whilst the tonnage had in the same period been increased by 12,000, and the horse power to a corresponding amount. Referring to the assets and liabilities, he said the liabilities stood at £12,000 in excess of the amount stated at the previous annual meeting, whilst the revenue figured for £30,000 more, and the expenditure exhibited a corresponding increase. These great results had only been obtained by a corresponding increase in the mileage, which amounted during the year to upwards of 200,000 miles. Referring to the expenditure, he desired to call attention to a paragraph in the report stating that there was a diminution of £12,000. That was a clerical error; the words should have been "the expenditure on the ordinary mail service," which words had been inserted in the report to be forwarded to the shareholders.

The fleet was never in a better condition; its carrying capacity had been increased, and its general efficiency vastly improved. New ships had been built, and old ones had been refitted and renovated. As the shareholders would naturally suppose, that work had been very expensive, but it had been done without calling upon the shareholders for a single farthing. Whilst congratulating them upon the past, it would be idle to conceal that there was a great work in store, in order to maintain the superiority of the company over all other lines. As in the past, so in the future the board hoped to be able to make all the necessary alterations and improvements in the fleet without calling upon the shareholders for a penny. A fair dividend had been maintained, and it could not be increased whilst the company's property was being improved and increased. He hoped at the end of three or four years the fleet would be doubled in value and a larger dividend paid. The board endeavoured to combine the utmost economy with the greatest efficiency. Taking one ship as a sample—the Pera—which was a very expensive vessel, it had been refitted with compound engines and completely overhauled; the result was that the consumption of coal had been reduced from forty-three tons per diem to twenty-three tons. He earnestly wished the company could do the same by all the old vessels in the fleet. The sphere of the company's operations had been enlarged by its taking up the Italian mail service, and he was happy to say that the results had fully borne out the most sanguine anticipations of the board.

There were one or two subjects not mentioned in the report, and he would anticipate the questions of the shareholders by referring to them. The principal one was the Suez Canal. But the reason was that the board had really nothing new to report. The company could not use the Canal to the extent desirable on account of the excessive rates imposed; but it had used it to some extent, and they had paid (of course under protest) the sum of £25,000 during the year. At the same time it was a matter for congratulation that even the payment of so large a sum had left the company a decent profit. Proceedings had been taken, and as they were still pending it was unadvisable to allude to them at length. A conference would take place at Constantinople in February next, at which some decision would be arrived at, and the company had twice memorialised the English Government on the matter, so that there was no doubt British interests would be duly represented. The other subject not alluded to in the report was the Australian mail contract, which would expire in 1873. Active steps were being taken to place the colonial mail service on a sound basis. The English Government would carry the mails free as far as Galle, and contribute £40,000 towards maintaining the service. The colonists were agitating the question, and the Colonial Government would meet in February next in order to make the arrangements mutually beneficial to all interests.

The board had not lost sight of the fact that China played now a most important part in the commerce of this country, and it was possible that as its trade was yearly increasing the service would be increased in that direction. The expenditure in coal had increased, not so much from the enhanced price charged as from the increased mileage run. This was attributable to the fact that long before the rise took place the company made contracts and agreements for a supply. But contracts, like all other things human, came to an end, and the company would be on the alert to take advantage of every and any alteration in the market. The company had used Indian and Australian coal so far as it was advantageous to do so. The only reason that more foreign had not been used was that it could not be obtained at a remunerative price. Coal might be cheap at the pit's mouth, but dear when carried a long distance, where there was no back freight. (Hear.)

He alluded to the services of Mr. Howell, the secretary, who had served the company most efficiently for thirty years, and stated that that gentleman, on account of failing health, had retired on half pay. The company was remarkably well served by all its officers, but there was no one who had done more or rendered more faithful and efficient service than Mr. Howell. (Loud cheers). He hoped that gentleman would long live to enjoy the ease which a long life spent in the service of the company had so justly entitled him to. (Loud cheers.)

Freight from India had been exceptionally low, yet a profit had been made; the company's vessels had run 1,600,000 miles without any casualty, a fact which reflected the highest credit upon the commanders and officers, and for which they ought to be thankful under Providence, and there was reason to look forward to a season of prosperity. He concluded by moving the adoption of the report and accounts. Mr. Roupell briefly seconded the motion.

Mr. Gliddon, for the first time for many years past, was able to give his most unqualified approval to the report.

Mr. Davis, whilst thanking the directors for what they had done, expressed a belief that the company ought to become its own importer of wines and spirits, which would add 1 per cent. to the dividends of the shareholders.

Dr. Beattie condemned the conduct of the Suez Canal Company, which he said charged the Peninsular and Oriental Company twice over, because first of all it charged the gross tonnage and then charged £.10 per head per passenger. He wished to know if any arrangement had been made with the British India Company to connect with that company's new line between Zanzibar and Aden.

Mr. Badderley wished to know if there was a chance of getting a greater return than 1 per cent. from the underwriting account, and if so how soon.

Mr. Jones, having complimented the directors upon the report, asked if any steps had been taken by the Government to improve Galle harbour.

Mr. Mackenzie alluded to the Suez Canal charges, and trusted the directors were in communication with the Foreign Office thereupon. On this subject he also suggested that the directors should give the accounts more in detail, and issue them to the shareholders, and also have the deed of settlement printed. He also alluded to the loss of the Rangoon and the Galle Harbour question.

The Chairman, in reply, said the company could not save £25,000 per annum by importing its own wines and spirits, because the whole consumption for the year was only £50,000. The total cost per ton of the ships, taking a rough average, was £30, inclusive of engine room. Dr. Beattie was quiet right in saying that the Suez Canal charged tonnage on the whole available space of the ships, and in addition charged £.10 per head for the passengers who occupied it, thus doubling the charge to them; but no doubt British interests would be fully represented at the forthcoming conference in Constantinople.

The report was adopted, and a dividend of 8 per cent. for the half year, in addition to 1 per cent. from the underwriting account, declared. Votes of thanks were accorded to the officers, directors, commanders, and to Mr. Howell, and the proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE LATE MR. PEREIRA.—A notice has been issued by Messrs. Tucker, New, and Langdale, solicitors, that claims on the estate of the late Mr. Edward Pereira must be sent in before January 10, 1873. The will of the deceased gentleman was proved on the 26th ult., by the Hon. Margaret Anne Pereira, widow, the relict; Miss Maria Pereira, the sister; and Edward Tegart and Francis Charles New, the executors; the personal estate being sworn under £120,000. The testator bequeaths to his wife £1,000; to the English branch of the Society or Association for the Propagation of the Roman Catholic Faith, £1,000; to the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, established in England in 1844, £100; to his executor Mr. Tegart, £100; to his executor Mr. New, £250; to his butler, John Deakin, if in his service at his decease, £100; and to Mary Keane, if in his service at his decease, £50. All the legacies are given free of duty. Testator's widow is to be at liberty to reside in his house, 30, Grosvenor-square, and to have the use of the stables in Brook-mews; if she ceases to reside there, the said house and stables are to be sold, the proceeds invested, and the income of such investment paid to the widow for life. The residue of the real and personal estate is given upon trust for testator's children equally. The goods and effects will be sold, by order of the executors, on Thursday, December 12 and following days, by Messrs. Phillips and Son.

AN interesting entertainment was given at the Blackheath College for the sons of missionaries in China and other parts of the world in connection with the London Missionary Society and the Baptist Society. The schoolroom served very well to accommodate about a hundred visitors. The boys went through glee singing, French and Latin pieces, and the performance of the farce known as "Slasher and Crasher," which, as its name implies, contains slang not at all in character with the education of missionaries' sons, and it is extraordinary how the committee could have sanctioned the introduction of such trash. This was succeeded by a panorama and lecture on the Holy Land, which was appreciated as more in harmony with the moral training of the scholars.

COLLISION IN HONG HONG HARBOUR—ACTION AGAINST THE P. AND O. COMPANY.—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has given judgment in a motion promoted by the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company. A suit had been brought in the Admiralty Court at Hong Kong for damages to the barque Glint, which was in collision in Hong Kong harbour with the Company's steamer Geelong. The Court found the Geelong to blame, and a special application was made to their lordships for leave to appeal, the usual period for lodging a petition having expired. Leave was granted.

A DESPATCH has been received from Governor Pope Hennessy certifying that the stores and movables taken over at the transfer of Elmina and the Dutch Settlements on the coast of Guinea have been valued by the Joint Commission, under the 3rd Article of the Treaty between Holland and Great Britain, at the sum of £3,790 1s. 6½d. It appears that this sum, as Mr. Knatchbull Hugessen explained in the debate last Session on Mr. Sinclair Aytoun's motion, is to be paid by the Gold Coast Settlement. The new tariff has enabled the Government to do this without resorting to a loan.

MR. HERBERT LAURENCE will deliver his lecture upon "China and the Chinese," illustrated by dissolving views, at the National School Room, Wadhurst, on Wednesday next.

Monetary and Commercial.

The ordinary half-yearly meeting of the proprietors of the P. and O. Company was held on the 6th inst., under the presidency of Mr. P. D. Hadow, when the report was adopted, and a dividend of 3 per cent. for the half-year was declared, together with a bonus of 1 per cent. for the year from the underwriting account. A full report of the proceedings appears in another column.

An extraordinary meeting of the Eastern Telegraph Company (Limited) was held on the 6th inst., when the directors were authorised to issue as many of the unissued shares of the original capital as may be required for establishing a duplicate cable between England and Lisbon, and for laying cables between any of the islands in the Levant. The traffic receipts of the Company for the month of November amounted to £33,665, against £28,687 in the corresponding period of 1871. The directors announce an interim dividend of 3s. per share for the quarter ending the 30th September last.

The Northern Assurance Company announce the proposed payment of an interim dividend at the rate of 8 per cent., free of income-tax, on account of the year 1872.

Messrs. J. Henry Schroeder and Co. have issued notice of the Bonds of the "Amoor River Navigation Company" to be paid off at par on 1st January.

Vice-Chancellor Malins is engaged in trying the case of "Parker v Harvey Lewis, M.P., and others," in which the registered public officer of the National Bank asked the Court to declare that Mr. Harvey Lewis, M.P., Sir Joseph M'Kenna, and Mr. F. B. Henshaw were liable to make good to the National Bank the sum which it was bound to pay under the compromise of the suit which had reference to the purchase of the banking business of Charles Lafitte and Co.

Vice-Chancellor Malins having approved of a further return of ten shillings per share to the shareholders in Overend, Gurney, and Co. (Limited), the liquidators propose to pay the same on the 16th inst.

We are glad to announce that at a meeting of creditors held on 30th Nov., Mr. Clement D. Leggatt and Mr. John R. P. Leggatt, trading at Bombay as Leggatt and Co., and Mr. C. D. Leggatt, trading at Yokohama and London, each received their discharge. It will be remembered that this failure grew out of that of Gledstanes and Co. In reference to this estate, we understand that the inspectors are making fair progress, but the constant reference as to legal points causes undue delay and increases the bitterness of feeling in connection with this unfortunate failure. As to the out-turn of the estate no reliable estimate can be formed at present.

Attention has been repeatedly drawn to the inadequate and capricious nature of the premiums which have for a long time prevailed in the business of marine insurance. In the Life and Fire departments there are sound rules, but the competition at Lloyd's and among the Marine Insurance Companies in London, as well as in Liverpool, Manchester, and Glasgow, including the various mutual clubs, and even Hamburg and Paris, is now, it is said, carried to a reckless point. Last week the losses posted amounted to more than a million sterling (distributed rather evenly over the whole underwriting community), and estimating previous losses during the year, it is thought that 1872 may be considered to have been the worst within any recent experience.

Telegrams from Shanghai report the arrival of the Elizabeth Graham, from London, which vessel was considerably overdue. Sixty guineas premium had been paid on her at Lloyd's the day before the receipt of the telegrams.

The following homeward bound vessels of the P. and O. Company's service will pass through the Suez Canal:—The Delhi, due at Southampton Dec. 9th, the Columbian on the 23rd, and the Deccan on the 6th Jan.

The tenders for £650,000 in bills on India were received on the 4th inst. at the Bank of England, when the amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £426,600; to Bombay, £220,000; and to Madras, £3,400. The minimum price was fixed as before, at 1s. 10½d. on all Presidencies, and tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10½d. will receive about 25 per cent., and on Bombay at that price about 50 per cent. These results show an increase in the demand for means of remittance to the East.

Bar silver—owing to the absence of supplies—has again improved in value, and business has been transacted at 59¾d. per oz. standard. Mexican Dollars of the old coinage have been sold at 60d. per oz., showing a decline of ¾d. per oz. from previous prices. An increased demand for China has caused the new coinage to advance ⅛d. in price for immediate shipment, and these now rule at 58⅞d.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Pera, which left Southampton on the 5th inst., was in gold—to Galle, £3,050; to Madras, £534; in silver—to Hong Kong, £63,070; to Shanghai, £3,255; to Bombay, £17,800;—total, in gold, £3,584; in silver, £84,125.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Percival and Co.'s Circular says:—The market has continued in a most unsatisfactory condition, the recent heavy arrivals having caused dealers to restrict their purchases to the smallest possible extent, whilst some importers have shown increased anxiety to realise, the result being a further decline in prices of nearly all descriptions of Congous, without producing any material increase in the demand. Deliveries last month were on a fair scale, being 13,766,000 lbs., against 14,017,000 lbs. for November last year. The total deliveries as compared with last year now stand thus:—

Black.—Congou: Broken leafs and siftings do not show much alteration; several parcels of old importation have changed hands at 4d. to 4¼d., and new from 6d. to 11d. Good common shipping qualities of Red leafs have sold at about previous rates, 11d. to 1s. 1d., but the good flavoury kinds up to 1s. 2d. have barely maintained previous rates. Medium Kaisow kinds have been freely offered, and the grades ruling from 1s. 3d. to 1s. 8d. have sold fully 1d. per lb. cheaper; fine and finest, although in limited request have realised previous rates. In Packlins but little has been done, but holders have been firm and not inclined to accept lower rates. Black leafs: Ordinary to good common Shantams of old Imports have changed hands from 7¾d. to 9¼d., and New Season's good common from 10d. to 11d., and superior good common from 11½d. to 1s. 1d.; medium Blackish-leaf kinds from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4d. have been more plentiful, and have sold ½d. to 1d. per lb. cheaper; medium to fine have been dealt in to a moderate extent at about previous rates; a few parcels of extra fine have been taken for Export from 2s. 4d. to 2s. 7d. Souchongs have been difficult to move, at a decline of fully 1d. per lb. The demand for Oolongs has been extremely limited, and sales can only be effected at a decline of 1d. to 2d. per lb. Large supplies of Canton Scented Teas have come to hand during the month, chiefly of common quality, and consequently difficult of sale. Fair to good well scented kinds have met with buyers, but at rather lower prices. Tayshan Congou: Sales ex recent arrivals have been made at 10½d. to 1s. for common to fair quality. Green: Large Public Sales "without reserve" have been held, and nearly the whole of the late arrivals have been thus disposed of, Ping Suey kinds showing a drop of 3d. to 4d. per lb. on Gunpowders, and 1d. to 2d. per lb. on Young Hysons. Moyune kinds must also be quoted 1d. to 2d. per lb. cheaper.

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw and Co., report as follows:—We cannot report any improvement in the Silk Market, the slight change for the better which had shown itself upon the more favourable position of the money market having since disappeared, owing to the political agitation in France which has, for the moment at any rate, quite stopped all business of a continental character, and the market at the present moment is very dull, with hardly anything doing; but with these causes removed we may fairly look for better business in the new year. China Silk has experienced little or no change in prices during the last month, the business done has been generally for immediate wants, and importers have claimed full quotations in most instances. In Cantons, more was doing about the middle of November, but this demand has also fallen off, and there is very little inquiry for any descriptions; quotations are unaltered. In Japans, however, there has been more doing, chiefly in fine and best Silks, at fair rates.

Coffee.—Early in the week a rather large supply of Plantation Ceylon offered by auction met an active demand, and last week's advance was supported but not exceeded. Since then there have been no public sales, but a good general business has been done by private contract at steady rates. Sales of some extent have been effected in Plantation Ceylon for arrival at 83s. to 84s., and in Native at 77s. per cwt. An offer of 28 bags Singapore in parchment was sold at 61s.

Horns.—Notwithstanding extensive supplies brought forward at the periodical auction, Thursday there was a good demand for all kinds, and the greater part found buyers. Ox and Cow, with the exception of Australian, realised an advance, but Buffalo and Deer declined, Buffalo 2s. to 3s., and Deer 1s. to 3s. per cwt. Of 13,925 (18 tons) Manila Buffalo offered, 4,500 sold, average 758 to 714 horns at 30s. 6d. to 31s. 6d. 50,186 (73 tons) Siam sold, average 727 to 673 horns at 38s. to 40s., 897 to 724 horns at 35s. 6d. to 37s.; oil damaged, average 572 to 490 horns at 35s., 3,086 (2 tons) Ceylon sold, average 1,896 at 25s. per cwt. Of Deer 2,579 (2 tons) Cochin sold at 53s. to 60s., 19,400 Ceylon sold at 72s. to 75s., inferior 59s. to 60s. per cwt.

Pepper.—Black: The public sales have gone off slowly at a further fractional decline; Singapore sound was bought in at 6½d., but seadamaged sold at 6⅜d. for first class, and 6d. to 6⅜d. for second; Trang bought in at 6⅜d., except damaged, which sold at 6d.; Penang sold at 6d., a few lots 5¾d.; privately sound Singapore has been sold at 6¼d., in Penang at 6d. White: In auction Singapore sold at 12⅛d., Penang at 12d. per lb.

Rice.—The market continues dull. On the spot Necransie has been sold at 9s., Rangoon at 9s. 6d., fine yellow Bengal at 10s., Bassein at 9s. 6d. For arrival 400 tons good white Bengal have been sold at 12s. 9d., and a good business has been done in Dacca, particulars not reported, but supposed at about 9s. to 9s. 3d. quay terms. The floating cargo per Arratoon Apcar, 2,000 tons October shipment, has been sold at 8s. 6d. ex ship, a cargo of 1,500 tons Necransie per steamer, November-December shipment at 8s. 8d. ex ship, or 9s. 7d. landed, and the cargo per steamer Ionia 1,875 tons Necransie, now due, at 8s. 9d. for a near Continental port.

Sugar.—The demand for refining as well as brown kinds continues limited, and business has again been small. In auction 1,601 bags low brown China (duty 4s.) were bought in at 21s. to 21s. 6d., and 148 bags Siam soft yellow (duty 4s. 9d.) at 30s. The parcel of China has since been sold privately at 20s. 9d., also 300 baskets date Penang at 21s. 6d., 500 bags. do. at 22s. 6d., and 7,000 bags unclayed Ilo Ilo Manila at 22s. 6d. to 23s. per cwt.

Shells.—The periodical sales were held on the 3rd inst. Mother-o'-Pearl: Manila and Macassar sold readily at fully the present value. 163 cases Manila were all sold, chiefly fine bold clean shells at £13 to £13 2s. 6d., one lot rather small £11, wormy £6; also 21 cases fine bold Macassar at £14. Ear Shells: Of 187 cases Japan offered 100 cases sold, commencing at £30 10s. and rising to £37; of 43 tons loose ditto 11 tons sold at £15 10s. to £16 10s. per ton. Tortoise: No sales of East Indian.

Tobacco, &c.—Leaf Tobacco: Of 402 bales China offered part sold at 7¾d. to 9½d., inferior 3½d. to 4½d., 29 bales China damaged at 1d. to 5d., 89 bales Japan sold at 8½d. to 9d., and 34 bales Japan damaged 3½d. to 8½d. Cigars: 3 cases Manilas old at 6s. 3d. per lb., and 7 cases ditto Cheroots 6s. per lb., in bond.

Tin.—We have to record a further fall in prices, quotations having declined to £130 to £131 for Straits on the spot, £130 afloat, £143 for Banca, and £135 for Billiton. The continued decline of the past few weeks has been brought about mainly by the fears of holders that the importation of Australian Tin Ore will have a great effect on prices. It is estimated that, including what is arrived and still floating, Tin and Tin Ore, equal to 800 tons metal have been shipped. It is highly probable that, sooner or later, this source of supply will have great effect if the production approaches nearly what some anticipate, but it will be some months before any correct judgment on this matter can be formed.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

TEA.

There has been somewhat more disposition on the part of holders to meet buyers, and considerable sales of Oolong have resulted at a decline from late ruling rates. The market is very quiet, and stocks are steadily accumulating. Late advices from China advise the probability of large exports of Tea to the United States country, which has a depressing effect here. By auction 600 hf. chests Green sold at 97½ cents; 100 do. Oolong, 30 to 51; and 50 do. Japan, 35, cash. The current rates are as follows:—Hyson: common to fair, 45c. to 52c.; superior to fine, 55c. to 68c.; extra fine to finest, 70c. to 95c. Young Hyson: Canton-made, nominal; common to fair, 38c. to 45c.; superior to fine, 52c. to 75c.; extra fine to finest, 80c. to $1.15. Gunpowder and Imperial: Canton-made, nominal; common to fair, 55c. to 65c.; superior to fine, 75c. to 92c.; extra fine to finest, 95c. to $1.40. Hyson Skin and Twankay: Canton-made, nominal; common to fair, 28c. to 31c.; superior to fine, 33c. to 35c.; extra fine to finest, 36c. to 40c. Uncoloured Japan: common to fair, 40c. to 46c.; superior to fine, 50c. to 65c.; extra fine to finest, 70c. to $1.05. Oolong: common to fair, 32c.; superior to fine, 45c. to 62c.; extra fine to finest, 68c. to $1.05. Souchong and Congou: common to fair, 25c. to 35c.; superior to fine, 40c. to 57c.; extra fine to finest, 60c. to $1.

The New York Shipping and Commercial List says:—The Tea trade, we understand, has been disastrous to importers this year, most of them having, it is said, sustained an average loss closely approximating 10 cents per pound. This has arisen mainly from indiscriminate purchasing in China, many orders having been sent out without limits. Some of the older importers, with a prescience which long experience alone confers, left the business mainly in the hands of the comparatively young importers and dealers, foreseeing nothing but disastrous results from such sharp, if not reckless competition. Of course, John Chinaman has profited largely by the high cost of Teas in the supply markets, but, from all that we can learn, he will not have things quite so much his own way another season.

SILK.

With the exception of one or two line sales of re-reeled Canton there has been but a light business done. There is so little trade in manufactured goods that many of the mills throughout the country are working short time, and others have temporarily closed up. In spite of this discouraging state of things importers generally feel pretty firm at present quotations, and are rather inclined to hold their stocks off the market than to make further concessions to meet buyers. Cantons of all grades continue to be in full supply, with only a very light demand. The stock of China re-reels has been considerably increased by recent arrivals, via San Francisco. Usual reel Silks are quiet. Quotations are :—China :—Tsatlee, No. 3 chop, $8.75 to 9.25 ; Taysaam, usual reel, No. 1, $8 to 8.25 ; No. 2, $7.75 to 8 ; Taysaam, re-reeled, $7 to 8 ; Haining, re-reeled, $8.75 to 9.25 ; Tsatlee, re-reeled, $8.50 to 9.12½ ; Canton, re-reeled No. 1, $6.25 to 6.50 ; No. 2, medium and good, $6 to 6.25 ; Cotengown, Nos. 1 and 2, $7 to 7.37½ ; Japan :—Nominal.

COFFEE.—The feature of the market for Brazil Coffee is as before, the fully good and better grades in good demand, while all others, especially the old and undesirable stock, continue neglected. For East India kinds the market is depressed, and, for some descriptions, half a cent lower, the demand at the moment being small, and late quotations for any kind are not now obtainable. We note the sale of 1,000 mats Java in lots at 18¾c. gold.

CORDAGE.—The following are the current quotations, showing no change :—Manila Cordage, sizes above 12-thread, 18½c. ; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, ¼ in. and 5-16 in. diam., 19½c. ; do., 12-thread, ⅜ in. diam., 19c. ; do., Hay Rope, 19c. ; do. Cordage, bolt rope yarns, 20½c. ; do. 6-thread and 9-thread, 21½c. ; Tarred Manila, 18c. ; Fine Tarred Manila Lath Yarn, 19½c.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 20c. gold.

CHINA PRESERVED GINGER rules at $7 currency, duty (35 per cent. ad val.) paid.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.25 gold, and Cassia $1.50 gold.

FIRE CRACKERS.—The stock is closely concentrated, and, with more inquiry, prices have further advanced, and still tend upward ; the sales are 10,000 boxes extra No. 1, closing strong at $2.55 currency.

GAMBIER is quoted at 4½c. to 5c. gold. The market is strong. Stock about 1,500 bales.

HEMP.—Manila has been in better request, but the market is easier ; we quote 10¾c. to 11c. gold, with sales of 2,000 bales per Forward Ho ! and Southern Cross, 1,000 of it to go to Boston, at 10¾c., and 500 do. previously per C. Coventry at 11½c., both gold, sixty days.

INDIGO.—Manila is very dull at 85c. to $1 currency.

RICE.—There is a continued fair demand for both home and foreign kinds, and the market is steady at previous rates, viz., for Rangoon $7 to 7.25 currency (duty paid), and $3.25 to 3.35 gold in bond.

SUGAR.—The market has been brought to a standstill by the almost entire withdrawal of buyers. The trade inquiry is insignificant, and refiners seeing only present and prospective loss at the present low and declining prices of their product, stand almost wholly aloof, and the business in consequence from day to day is about as small as it can well be. There is, however, no pressure to sell, and few sellers at any reduction from previous values, but in the state of things noticed above, previous valuations must be considered entirely nominal.

SPICES.—Invoices and large parcels remain quiet, and we have only to notice the sale of 3,000 bags Sumatra Pepper in bond at a private price. The distributing demand is rather better, Pepper especially moving quite freely. Prices of Mace, Nutmegs, and Pepper are firm, while Cassia, Pimento, Cloves, and Clove Stems have been shaded a little. Dealers are meeting the jobbing demand at, for prime Penang Mace $1.25, Nutmegs prime 95c., China Cassia 28½c. to 29½c., Batavia do. 28c. to 30c., Cassia Vera 25c., Sumatra Pepper 16½c. to 17c., Singapore 17½c. to 17¾c., White 34c. to 35c., Cloves 21c. to 22c., Clove Stems 10½c., all gold.

TIN.—The same dulness and depression so long noticed in the market continues, and prices are irregular, but on the whole favour buyers ; we have only to notice sales of 150 slabs Straits at 30c. to 31c gold. A rumour has been current that 1,000 slabs Straits had been sold in Boston at 30c., but the statement is contradicted.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

PEKING.

THE EMPEROR'S MARRIAGE.

The correspondent of the North China Herald thus reports the marriage ceremony:—

The marriage day of his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China and the august ruler of hundreds of millions of subjects has passed over here as if it had not been. There was no popular excitement or demonstration, such as would accompany the nuptials of royalty in Europe, nor even a very general interest displayed by the citizens of the capital in the event. Everything seemed to be formal, and, so far as the outer barbarian or the more favoured celestial of unofficial position were concerned, perfectly private. For some time we have known that his Majesty Tung-chih would, on this 16th October, in the eleventh year of his reign and sixteenth of his age, be united to the accomplished and virtuous Ah-lu-tê, daughter of Chung-chih, a lecturer in the Hanlin, now raised to the dignity of Duke. We have heard of silks and sycee being sent in any quantity to the capital, and now and again the approaching event was noticed in the Peking Gazette. We were curious, therefore, to see so much of the ceremonial as might be public, but were after all obliged to gratify our curiosity in almost a surreptitious manner. A few days before the event, Chung-how and another high official from the Tsung-li Yamen called on the Foreign Ministers, and suggested that they should ask their nationals to keep out of the way. Some of the Ministers, Mr. Wade among the number, and Mr. Hart for the Customs officials, accordingly issued notifications requesting foreigners to avoid showing themselves while the procession passed along—which the foreigners considerately did, so far as was consistent with their determination to see somewhat of it. Among the wedding guests were the Ambassadors from the Tributary States of Korea, Annam, and Loochow. The first mentioned came, it is said, expressly to do homage on the auspicious occasion. The resident Foreign Ministers, who refuse to kotow, were of course excluded from the ceremonial. Excepting the procession from the Imperial palace to the Empress-elect's residence, everything was conducted within the sacred privacy of the palace. The procession part is, therefore, all that can be noticed.

For some weeks previously the road along the route to be taken by the procession was put under repair and carefully watered and cleaned, so that it was brought up to a pitch of finish altogether exceptional in China. The portion traversed is rather over a mile in length; and on the 10th inst. the processions began by the transference of the Imperial furniture to the palace. The first lot consisted of the Imperial bedstead, of the ordinary Chinese four-poster style, in Canton blackwood, splendidly carved and with rich hangings. A looking-glass, eight wardrobes, eight trunks and a few chairs, all in the same material and style, formed part of the suite; and during the next few days other articles of furniture and objects of vertu were sent in to the palace, many of them, no doubt, wedding presents. About four in the afternoon of the 16th the grand wedding procession issued from the Imperial palace to bring the bride to her Imperial lord. A body of runners preceded it, and at the head of the procession rode a Mongol prince, with his attendants. Then fifty white ponies, with yellow housings, and led by men in scarlet.

The band, dressed in scarlet—silent.

A number of men marching in pairs, with banners—small flags of yellow or red, having blue or black dragons emblazoned on them, and borne on red poles.

A scarlet umbrella of state.

About 200 men with lamps.

Forty-eight large round emblem fans.
Two black umbrellas;
Two white do.
Six yellow do.
Six red do.
Two blue do.
Two embroidered yellow do.

About 150 men with banners.

Two men who walked by the side of the path and bore aloft lamps from which depended banners. These men were clothed in scarlet, and had their dress varied with yellow spots.

Two Princes, one a fine looking man, said to be Prince Kung. These Princes were the masters of the ceremonies.

The Empress's Book and Seal, each borne on a white chair.

The Empress's chair, covered with yellow silk and gold, the poles red, and carried by sixteen eunuch bearers, all in scarlet and freely be-buttoned; sixteen spare bearers following.

A Manchu Prince, with numerous attendants and officials on horseback.

About 200 guards on foot.

In enumerating the etceteras of the procession, we have here the additions—principally the lamp-bearers and the chairs with the Empress's Book and Seal—which were made on the return, between 11 and 12 P.M. The procession was not very long, but the coup d'œil was magnificent. The dresses and appointments were rich and splendid; and everything was carried through in the quietest manner.

SHANGHAI.

Dates extend to the 1st Nov. The outward mail of Sept. 13 (French) arrived on 28th Oct.

The Imperial marriage has passed off very quietly. In the Peking Gazette, just to hand, of 22nd Oct., 1872, we read a note from their Majesties the two Empresses Dowager, to his Majesty Tung-chih, expressing their wishes that his Majesty should in the first moon of next Chinese year (February 1873) ascend the Throne and assume the position of Emperor; and that the regency should then cease. His Majesty commands that the high officers of State will consider the wishes of their Majesties, and later give his Majesty their advice on the subject of the note. We may now therefore conclude that the regency will cease from the first moon of next Chinese year, and that his Majesty Tung-chih will be henceforth both in name and in fact the Emperor of his dominions. In the Gazette of Oct. 23, 1872, we find an edict bearing on the former memorial of the Viceroy of Chihli, Le-hung-chang, who prayed that certain officers, himself included, should be degraded, &c., &c., on account of the bursting of the banks of the Yung-ting and of the consequent inundation of a great portion of Chihli. It is now commanded that, as the banks have been repaired, the officers in question should be reinstated in their positions and ranks.

We learn that the Literary Chancellor of Kiangsu will arrive at Shunkiang in the beginning of November. After finishing the examinations at Soochow and Taitsang, he directed the Chifu to gather together the scholars of seven neighbouring cities at Sungkiang, to await the fixing of the day for the B.A. examination; the B.A. graduates to be examined at the same time for next year's M.A.

The prospectus of the China Coast Steam Navigation Company will be found in our advertising columns. It will be seen that the general agents propose to combine, for the benefit of the new company, the traffic operations of the Nanzing, Appin, Peiho, and Dragon. Considering the growing trade between Shanghai and its Northern and Southern connections, there seems no reason why the consolidation of such a company should not be of general benefit. The agency is in the hands of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co.

We hear that Captain Hutchison, lately owner of the Shaftesbury, has become owner of the P. and O. Co.'s steamer Ottawa, and leaves for Hong Kong to take charge of his new venture.

We hear that the gross amount of the tenders for the Municipal Debenture Loan was Tls. 250,000, and that the allotments were made at an average of 3½ premium.

H.M.S. Iron Duke arrived at Woosung from Nagasaki. It is probable that the fine band of this ship will appear at the race meeting, and we feel sure that if this can be so arranged it will give racegoers much gratification. The Salamis, Admiral Shadwell, has gone up to Hankow.

Our readers will notice that the wall at Messrs. Fogg and Co.'s, about which there has been so much controversy, has been taken down, and is now being replaced in its old position. They will also notice that in the centre of the Bund there is a line drawn, showing the piece of land reclaimed, of which we presume Messrs. Fogg and Co. intend to take possession. We also observe that the Bund line has been similarly marked out, opposite several of the leading hongs.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 31, 1872.

Every day Shanghai is more and more putting on the appearance of an European or American city. The storekeepers now exhibit their wares behind great plate glass windows, which, in a month or so, will be brilliantly lighted with gas during the couple of hours before closing. The sanitary arrangements are rapidly improving, rents are gradually but steadily diminishing, and instead of the large hongs of former days, people who now put money into building specs provide four or six-roomed houses for young married people, of whom the number is largely increasing, chiefly, no doubt, on account of the dimishing cost of living. The country road to the Bubbling Well has long been lined with villas on both sides; but these are now, for the most part, deserted in favour either of the small houses in the settlement, or of terraces of detached or semi-detached houses on the river-road to Wasung. This latter now extends to a point four miles from the Soochow creek bridge, and before the end of the year will have reached two miles farther. Hongkew is being thoroughly drained; work now nearly complete, and the demands of private consumers far down in that quarter have rendered necessary the construction of an auxiliary gasometer on a plot of ground opposite the Hongkew wharf. The comprehensive building scheme for the two divisions of the settlement will very soon be carried out, and it is said that the Council will adopt the wise plan of leaving a considerable share of the expense to be borne by succeeding generations of foreign residents. Tls. 300,000 is spoken of as the probable figure of the municipal loan which will be necessary, and unless the bank take it all up, which is not improbable, an excellent opportunity will be offered to small capitalists of securing a safe and remunerative investment.

There is nothing political. A report is current that the mandarin worshippers in Peking are sadly disgusted at not being invited to take any share in the Imperial nuptial festivities. It is also said (but you know what gup like this is worth) that a powerful secret society pledged to the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty, and to the embroilment of foreign Powers with China, as a step in the desired direction, is known to exist in Shanghai. There is no doubt whatsoever that the Chinese are making the sea approaches to Peking almost impregnable. The correspondent of the Allgemeine Zeitung, whose letter you translated the other day, is quite correct, except in the trivial matter of saying that fortifications are being constructed on a river to the south of Taku. Pehtang (where our troops landed in 1860 and took the Taku forts in the rear) is the place he means, and certainly the manœuvre which was successful then would now either fail or be very costly. The next expedition to Peking must march overland from Chinkiang, and hence must be on a very large scale as regards numbers. This is not intended to prejudge the possibility of a descent by Russia from a different quarter, an event not very unlikely after all.

HONG KONG.

Dates extend to the 7th Nov. There is no later mail to report as arrived out.

THE LECTURE OF DR. LEGGE.

The series of popular lectures, to be given fortnightly in the City Hall Buildings, was inaugurated on the 6th inst. by the Rev. Dr. Legge. St. Andrew's Hall contained an audience larger and more fashionable than any we have ever seen gathered together in Hong Kong at a purely intellectual entertainment. As one of the oldest residents he was just the man to "lecture" those concerned on all these subjects. He had an admirable chance, seeing that the audience comprised his Excellency the Governor, his Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor, and a large number of the higher officials; and the result was, as the Governor characterised it, a compendious and instructive, as well as an interesting lecture—a most valuable leaf from the experience of the past.

Commencing with his first arrival on the island, the Rev. lecturer sketched its formation into a colony and its subsequent history. Nearly thirty years ago—from which time the sketch commenced—the city of Victoria did not require a very large directory to contain the names of its residents, and the then scarcely formed street-lines were easily described. In a chartered cutter, from Macao, Dr. Legge landed, during the reign of Sir Henry Pottinger; with their letters from home twice a year, delivered in a hap-hazard sort of way by means of friendly chitbooks, the life of the early colonists was humourously called before the minds of those now inhabiting Victoria city. The immense strides made by the young colony were graphically shown by comparison between the state of things thirty years ago and that exhibited in these days of steam and telegraphy, extended trade, long lines of streets, and palatial residences.

Having pronounced a hearty eulogium on the energy and enterprise displayed in this marvellous transformation, the learned lecturer passed on to a cursory allusion to the part played by the respective Governors in the development of the colony; Bonham, Bowring, Mercer, Robinson, and MacDonnell. He next spoke of the burglarious era and the piratical era, the latter following the former by a natural course of circumstances; and in passing he spoke in commendatory terms of Sir Richard MacDonnell's antipiracy measures and the efforts made by the Chinese revenue cruisers in the same direction. Of the part taken by Hong Kong in the China War, and of the various other measures of more or less magnitude introduced by Sir H. Robinson and Sir. R. Mac Donnell, we have no space to speak. The scheme of education inaugurated by the former—with which the Rev. Doctor was intimately connected—was highly approved of; and the system of cadets, which was also an idea of Dr. Legge's, was warmly dilated on; while, in a tone "more in sorrow than in anger," he regretted that Sir Richard had subverted the entire scheme. Speaking of the police force, the Rev. Doctor reiterated his favourite theory that the backbone of the force must consist of natives; while in his remarks on the Chinese people—whom he regards as the most law-abiding to be found anywhere—he entered his protest against any departure from the procedure of English law in their government. The police at present existing he regarded as a great improvement on those of past days; but with a thoroughly-qualified superintendent and picked Chinese, he would undertake to clear the colony of crime as thoroughly as any city at home. Passing commendations were given to Mr. Stewart, inspector of schools, and Mr. Douglas, "our model governor of the gaol." The present highly satisfactory state of the colony as the healthiest in the East was also dwelt upon and compared with the easily-explained mortality of former years.

The concluding portion of the lecture was devoted to a consideration of the political condition of the Empire of China; to the comparison of it so frequently made with that of Japan; and to the part which Hong Kong must play in the future. The Rev. Doctor threw an eloquent word-picture of the future on the colony; and concluded amid the unanimous plaudits of all present.

Sir Arthur Kennedy then rose, and, in a few congratulatory words, proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer for his compendious and interesting lecture. From the learned Doctor's experience they ought to find much instruction in his matured judgments; and he was convinced in his own mind that Dr. Legge's views would ere many years be much more appreciated than they were at present. As Dr. Legge had himself said, it was not to be expected that they should agree with him in all his views; but sure he was that Dr. Legge's world-wide fame would yet be regarded as a great honour reflecting on Hong Kong, and that the truth of the views he had now expressed would ultimately be fully recognised. Applause followed, and the audience dispersed.

The United States Service Corvette Lackawana will leave this for Singapore and Calcutta on or about the 15th.

The P. and O. steamers Ottawa and Aden have both been sold, the former it is said for the sum of $65,000. The Aden will come down to Hong Kong, and will again return with the mails to Shanghai, where she will be delivered up to her new owners.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates extend to the 14th Nov. The outward French mail of 11th Oct. arrived on 12th Nov. The following summary is from the Straits Times:—

The heavy loss sustained by the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China, through the failure of Messrs. Joshua and Brother, caused a run on that establishment yesterday. Specie payments were continued without intermission until three P.M., the usual hour for closing, when the doors were shut upon an eager and excited crowd of Chitties, Chinese, and Klings, who remained in the street in front of the building, and would not leave the place. A panic had spread amongst the poorer classes, and petty shopkeepers came from long distances to get their $5 or $10 notes, no matter upon what bank, converted into hard silver without delay. The Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China, in order to allay the panic, kept open to a late hour to meet any demand of this sort; and the example was followed soon after by the Chartered Mercantile Bank, where, after a large amount of specie had been counted out, the doors were again opened and specie payments resumed and continued till 6 P.M. The run continued next morning, but ceased after an hour or two.

Mr. A. R. Joshua was brought before Captain Walshe, police magistrate, and a remand of one week was asked for, which was granted.

A meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held in the Exchange Rooms, for the purpose of taking into consideration the existing system of credit which has borne such disastrous results lately. There were twenty-one members present, whose names we think it will be best for their credit that we do not publish, because every one seemed to have a different opinion from his neighbour upon the very grave question under consideration. All agreed only to differ, and the result was nil. One man thought it extremely inopportune to moot the point in the middle of a panic. Another wanted credit limited to two months and payment of promissory notes strictly enforced when due. Another thought the present system good enough, and that to enforce payment of promissory notes when due would bring down the whole bazaar. Another wanted cash before delivery, and asked if there was now a bazaar to be brought down. Another proposed the adjournment of the meeting for three months. In short, combination and unanimity, for which the Chinese are so remarkable, were clearly proved to be an impossibility, a Utopian dream, amongst the European houses.

The colonial steamer Pluto, Captain Bradbery, left for Malacca, taking down his Honour the Chief Justice, who goes to hold the special criminal session for the trial of the Treasury embezzlement case.

William Waller and Adam Graham were arraigned before F. H. Gottlieb, Esq., junior police magistrate, on a warrant to keep the peace, issued on the information of a Mr. Stephen Edward Howard, describing himself as a newspaper proprietor, charging them with assault and threats of future violence, and declaring that he was afraid of his life. They were ordered to find sureties in $100 each to keep the peace for six months. They were then told there was still another warrant against them for assault, issued by a Mr. T. W. Mercer, also describing himself as a newspaper proprietor of Singapore, and as Mr. Mercer wished to consult counsel, the case was fixed for to morrow. The prisoners were admitted to bail. Mr. Howard then asked to have the further charge of assault heard, which he had made against them, but the defendants asked to be allowed time to engage counsel, which was granted, and the hearing of this charge was also fixed for to-morrow.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

TIENTSIN.—The advices were much more favourable for Piece Goods. Grey Shirtings were in good demand at gradually improving prices, while the other classes of Cotton fabrics shared in the general improvement. Drills specially were sought for, stocks being limited.

HANKOW.—There had been no change in the market. Grey Shirtings were firmly held, but the dealers gave little response, and rates were still Tls. 1.66 to 1.69 for 7-lbs., and Tls. 1.78 to 1.87 for 8¼-lbs. T-Cloths and Drills were unaltered in value.

CHINKIANG.—Advices are unimportant. The market for Grey Shirtings was slowly advancing in sympathy with that of Shanghai. T-Cloths were very flat, and dull of sale, while Drills met with a fair enquiry. The general disposition of importers was not in favour of meeting the views of Chinese dealers.

SHANGHAI.—The market for Plain Cottons had been materially strengthened by further favourable telegrams from home, and by better news both from Hankow and the North; but Fancy Goods and Woollens, with few exceptions, had been moved with difficulty at unremunerative rates. Grey Shirtings: The improvement in 8¼lb. had been continuous, and at the close holders were very firm, the tendency of prices being still upward. Collie's Lion Chop commanded Tls. 1.87; Dewhurst's best Eagles, Tls. 1.90; 7 lbs. very scarce and in request; Ordinary Chops, Tls. 1.68; Heavy Shirtings on offer at low rates, with few purchasers. White Shirtings: Settlements to the extent of about 10,000 pieces good to best; and 1,000 pieces ordinary 64 reeds at Tls. 2.00 to 2.10, and Tls. 1.90 respectively. T-Cloths: A large sale of 8 lbs. 33,000 pieces at Tls. 1.70 had been effected; 6 lbs. common, and 7 lbs. common to best, had been asked for; sales of 7 lbs. computed at 30,000 pieces at Tls. 1.26 to 1.52, the last figure obtained for a small lot of Collie's chop dollar. Drills: Quiet at a decline of 2 to 3 cands.; Dutch, Tls. 3.01 to 3.07½; English 15 lbs., Tls. 3.10 to 3.13½. Jeans: Good English sold at Tls. 2.10 to 2.12; commoner descriptions occasionally asked for at Tls. 2.05 to 2.07. Sheetings: Market stronger, 14 lbs., Tls. 2.70 to 2.85; 15 lbs. ordinary, Tls. 2.92 to 3.00 Fancy Cottons had not attracted much notice. Woollens: Sales extremely limited, and general demand far from active. Metals—Lead: In rather better favour, 300 tons L.B. reported settled at Tls. 4.75 to 4.80. Coals: Very dull. Quotations nominal. Cardiffs, Tls. 10 to 10.75; English, Tls. 9.50; American, Tls. 9.50.

HONG KONG.—Moderate sales of Raw Cotton and Cotton Yarns had been made at about former figures. Manufactured Cotton Goods had been taken to some extent, but low rates had been accepted, and the demand was slack at the close. No movement had taken place in Woollens, other than a few sales of Lastings, at lower figures. Rice has commanded slightly better prices, and some inquiry existed for Japan grain.

TEA.

SHANGHAI.—Black: There had been but a small business during the week. The reported settlements had been 5,789 chests at prices which showed no change in values. The stock was estimated at about 12,000 chests. Green: A steady inquiry had continued at about the values previously ruling, and somewhat larger transactions had taken place, the settlements reported during the week being 26,500 half-chests, and reshipments 3,800 half-chests. Towards the close we hear of further considerable purchases, mainly by one firm, some 13,000 half-chests having, we believe, been purchased in addition to those above reported. The stock, including unreported settlements, was estimated at 59,000 half-chests of all kinds. For New York the vessels loading were the Morro Castle (full), Sarah Nicholson, Centurion, Dilkhoosh, and Mary Whitridge, at £3 per ton of 40 cubic feet; the steamer Surprise had cleared via Amoy, having engaged a small portion of her cargo here at £4 per ton of 40 cubic feet. For London, rates remained unchanged, being £2 15s. per ton of 50 cubic feet per sailing vessel, and £3 per ton of 40 cubic feet per steamer; on the berth were the clipper Glengairn, and steamer Agamemnon.

FOOCHOW.—Fair settlements of Congou had been made. Teamen were still ready sellers of Congous at last quotations, and the tendency of the market was, if anything, weakening, but as yet there had been no noticeable drop in prices. In Souchongs and Scented Teas there had not been any transactions. The Oolong market was re-opened on the 1st November, when settlements were made of 2,639 half-chests at Tls. 19.8 to 21.8 o.b., and of 731 half-chests at Tls. 20.4 o.b. Nothing had been done in the so called fine strings, the teas settled ranging from fair to superior cargo only. Prices had been somewhat irregular, but the basis seems to have been from Tls. 17.5 to 18.5 short for good cargo. Teamen reported that other offers had been made, and it is possible that further business may arise from these, but the generality of buyers of Oolong did not seem disposed to enter the market at current rates. The Silver Eagle had arrived and had been placed on the berth for London at £3 per ton. The James Wilson was on the berth for the Colonies. The vessels expected were—For London, s.s. Agamemnon; for the Colonies, Belted Will and Jessie McDonald. Rate of Freight to London, per steamer, £3 per ton of 40 feet; per sailing vessel, £2 15s. to £3 per ton of 50 feet.

AMOY.—The market continued very quiet, and fairly good clean Oolong could be bought at $17 or as low a point as it has touched for one or two years. Receipts to date were about 208,000 half-chests, and stocks about 45,000 half-chests; only a few chops had been settled, which were for the s.s. Surprise. The Anglo Saxon sailed for New York on the 28th Oct., taking Amoy Oolong, 553,501 lbs.; Tamsui Oolong, 133,472 lbs.; and Congou, 6,851 lbs.; making a total of 693,824 lbs. Tea.

CANTON.—No settlements were reported, and there had been no change in values.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The active enquiry that existed at the date of our last report soon subsided, and the market had remained quiet during the week. Parcels however of desirable quality, owing to their scarcity, had commanded full prices, "Gold Lion" chop having realised Tls. 535, and "Blue Elephant," Tls. 510. Holders of the commoner descriptions, of which the stock chiefly consisted, would now readily accept the figures recently quoted. The additional settlements of all kinds were estimated at 500 bales, making total to date, 40,800 bales, and the unsold stock amounted to 5,000 bales.

CANTON.—During the week the market had been very quiet, with holders firm at previous rates. Settlements reported, 73 bales; the present mail, however, would take 350 bales in all, the bulk of which was purchased before the departure of last mail. Stock—2,000 bales Tsatlee, 80 bales Loonkong, 60 bales Cumchook and Lacklow, and 300 to 400 bales of inferior descriptions. There was a good demand for fine Loonkongs, which were scarce, and commanded high rates. Re-reels were very quiet, and no new settlements or contracts had been reported. Several musters of Kowkong of the sixth crop had arrived, of poor colour, and nibby; but they were not taken as any criterion of the crop, as the first musters are always bad. The yield is said to be short, and the quality bad.

The Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company (Limited) is now issuing Seven per Cent. Bonds for three years to the amount of £150,000. The object in this step is to avoid a permanent increase of the Company's capital. An endorsement of this policy, and, at the same time, a proof of the high state of the Company's credit, is afforded in the fact that these Bonds are quoted 1 to 3 per cent. premium; and that, as we understand, the whole amount has already been covered twice over.

The Directors of the British Indian Extension Telegraph Company (Limited) have declared a further interim dividend of 6s. per share on account of the profits for the year ending 31st December, 1872, payable on and after the 6th prox.

The P. and O. steamer Deccan, due at Southampton, via Suez Canal, on the 6th Jan., is to return to China, via Suez Canal and Bombay, on the 18th. We believe that Sir Harry and Lady Parkes avail of this convenient opportunity.

THE NEW BISHOPRIC FOR CHINA.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—The establishment of a new Bishopric in China is a most important event, and if not done with great care will lead to future trouble. The fact is our last Bishop was Bishop of Victoria (Hong Kong), not of China, and when we come to have a Bishop in China there are three points that should be very carefully regarded.

1. The new Bishop should only have a limited territory apportioned. Say Chekiang province, with the right, of course, to confirm and exercise episcopal functions wherever needed.

2. We must approach China with the intention of making all the land Christian. No mission should start upon any other plan, and, therefore, it is necessary that we begin the church upon a sound foundation, lay one stone and prepare to lay another; before long we may have a native church and native Bishops, and it might even be better, while the Church Missionary Society provide the funds for an unendowed see, that the title be limited to Ningpo, and his episcopal jurisdiction to one province. By no means should the new Bishop be called Bishop of North China. When other Bishops are wanted there might be a difficulty in arranging for the transfer of part of the diocese, more especially if the Bishop were paid by a Missionary Society.

3. It is of great importance when the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel is arranging for a new mission in China that the action and course of American Church Missions should be clearly defined, there must be agreement if not united action. The country is large enough for all, and I believe that missions well conducted, where the training of native clergy is looked upon as the chief feature, rather than the number of poor converts, there is much hope of success. Educate Chinese and use the press rather than the tongue, and some good may be done by well written prayers, translations of our own collects and psalms, but the public preaching to the mob is not the way to win Chinamen until they learn to behave a little and really wish to learn more.

The S. P. G. advertise for four high class intellectual men for China and Japan, and they are right; we want apostolic men who will induce respect, and at first they must be content to hire Chinese to teach them Chinese, and in time these native teachers should be made and would become Christians. Taiping-wang was a converted teacher; see what he did, and if he had had a first-rate man instead of a Roberts to lead him, what might we not have seen? China must be converted by Chinese, not by foreigners, and surely by this time some from America or elsewhere might be found who would be worth having as teachers, to teach in some little place near Nankin, Canton, and Foochow; but do not let us think of making a theological college in a place like Hong Kong, where Chinese would learn to despise Christianity rather than respect it.—Yours faithfully,

December 7, 1872. OLD CHINA.

THE WEDDING OF THE EMPEROR OF CHINA.

The Daily News publishes the following extracts from a private letter:—

Peking, Oct. 15.—The fortunate day and hour for the Imperial wedding have been fixed, and the ceremony will take place at daylight to-morrow (full moon). The foreign Ministers have all been asked to request foreigners not to go to-day or to-morrow into any of the streets through which the procession going for and returning with the bride will pass; and the Ministers have consented, but have returned very cold answers, as the Chinese Government have not had the courtesy to advise them officially that the wedding was to take place. We have been able to see something of the arrangements, but very little, and are hoping to see some more this afternoon. Oct. 16.—We had what I never expected—a perfect view of the procession yesterday. We succeeded in getting immediately opposite the entrance to the Imperial palace, and in persuading the mandarins sent up to order us down that we ought to be allowed to stay, and they fortunately assented. The coup d'œil was magnificent. The procession was not very long, but the dresses and appointments were splendid. First came a prince on horseback; then 48 white ponies with yellow housings, led by men in scarlet; the band, in scarlet, silent; 32 banners, 48 fans (big round things), 2 black umbrellas, 2 white ditto, 6 yellow ditto, 6 red ditto, 2 blue ditto, 2 embroidered yellow ditto, 192 lanterns (all these things carried by men in scarlet); Prince Kung, looking very handsome, on horseback, with his four-bearer chair carried beside him; the chair, yellow and gold, carried by 16 coolies, all in scarlet (with batons) with 16 spare coolies to relieve them (the chair apparently containing the bride); about 100 officials on horseback, in their best clothes; about 200 officials on foot, ditto.

THE WILL OF ADMIRAL COCHRANE.—The will of the late Admiral Sir Thomas John Cochrane, G.C.B., of Belgrave-square, and of Quarr Abbey House, Ryde, has been proved by Mr. Edward Marjoribanks, the acting executor, the personalty being sworn under £200,000. The testator has left to his widow, Dame Rosetta Rebecca Cochrane, such annual sum as, with the income received by her under her marriage settlement, will make up an annuity of £2,400; he also leaves her an additional annuity of £600, and it is directed to be paid out of a sum of £60,000, which, subject to such annuity, he gives to his children by his said wife; to Miss Catherine Farquharson, of Invercauld, he leaves a legacy of £4,000; and upon trust for his sister, Dame Anna Maria, widow of the late Sir Thomas Edward Troubridge, for life, the sum of £4,000; at her decease one moiety of this sum to be given to his niece, Miss Charlotte Frances Troubridge, and the other moiety to the children of the late Sir Thomas St. Vincent Hope Troubridge. The deceased appoints, under the power given him by the settlement executed on his marriage with his late wife, Mrs. Matilda Ross Cochrane, the sum of £10,000 (less £1) equally between his son Alexander Dundas Ross Wisheart Baillie Cochrane and his daughter, Mrs. Marie Teresa Sutherland. The testator gives his widow the option of residing at Quarr House, and if she does so she is to have the use of the furniture and effects there. Subject to such option, Quarr House and all the testator's real estate in the Isle of Wight and county of Southampton is devised to his son Alexander for life, with remainder to his (testator's) son Thomas for life, with remainder to his sons successively, according to priority of birth in tail male. Testator's son Alexander is named residuary legatee.

THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.—At the last meeting of this society part of a translation from the Chinese was read, of a Legend of Dipankara Buddha, by the Rev. S. Beal. The legend is taken from a work, entitled "Fu-pen-hing-tsi-king," or "Miscellaneous Notices respecting the Birth and History of Buddha," translated by Djnanakuta, a native of Gandhara, in Northern India, who lived in the time of the Sin dynasty (581-617 A.D.). This legend, the writer maintains, illustrates plates 29 and 50 of Mr. Fergusson's "Tree and Serpent Worship." The first of these places is supposed to represent the burning of a city, Jambuda, created by Bodhisatva in the air, with its inhabitants trying in vain to escape, and the people of Jambudvipa looking on and lamenting. The second plate the writer takes to be a representation of a maiden with seven utpala-stalks in her hand, witnessing the entrance of Dipankara Buddha into the city Paduma, as related in the legend.

THE members of the Burmese Embassy were received by M. Thiers at Versailles on the 11th inst. M. Thiers informed the Ambassadors that France takes considerable interest in Burmah, owing to its proximity to Cochin China; that he was gratified by seeing the representatives of the King of Burmah in France; and that every attention should be paid to them during their stay. Mr. Edmund Jones, who accompanies the Embassy, was also presented to the President.

HAMBURG, Dec. 10.

In the absence of anything more exciting, our Burgerschaft have been amusing themselves with overhauling the Constitution of this little Republic, the revision of which was specially provided for after the lapse of ten years, which period will terminate next year. On the whole it was found to have worked well, but the chief points that came under discussion had reference to the composition of the Senate. Several motions were made to alter the mode of election, and reducing the number of members. In support of this last proposal it was stated that the present number was not required since the re-establishment of the Empire, which had relieved the local Government from the administration of several departments hitherto presided over by Senators, such as the Post-office, the Telegraphs, the Railways, the Army, the Stamps; and they would probably be very soon called upon to surrender the expensive rights of the lighting up the coast, the pilot establishment, the Seamen's Hospital, the renewal of the beacons and buoys, the responsibility of keeping the fairwater of the Elbe at a proper depth, and removing such obstructions as may be formed by sand-banks, &c. One of these motions—made by Mr. Edgar Ross—went to the extreme length of reducing the number of Senators to three, which in his opinion was quite sufficient. But all these innovations were declined, and the revision ended, like some of the rivers in Africa, by being lost in the sands; and as the alterations passed were of no real importance, the Constitution remains practically the same for another term of ten years.

A subject of much greater commercial importance is the petition of the Chamber of Commerce to the Department for Trade and Navigation to take preliminary steps to induce the Bank of Prussia to establish a Branch establishment in this city as soon as possible, as it has already done at Bremen, where it is found to be a great accommodation to the merchants; but there are many grave objections to this proposal; for, unlike Bremen, we have here such a multitude of private banks ready and willing to afford the public every facility and accommodation in the way of discounting bills and making advances with or without deposits, that there is scarcely room for a fresh one; and then the proposal appears premature, as it is well known that the Imperial Parliament will have to legislate on the subject in the approaching session, when a Bill for the comprehensive regulation of all Banks in Germany will be laid before them. But the principal objection is that, like the fable of the horse and the man, if the Bank be officially invited to open a Branch here, they will feel justified in making onerous conditions and asking for the same privileges as they enjoy in Prussia; whereas there is no law to prevent their founding a Branch establishment here any day in the year; and if they have not hitherto done so, it is sufficient proof that they do not consider such a course to be beneficial to the interests of their shareholders.

A meeting of delegates from the North-German seaports and other commercial towns has been held at Rostock, to uphold the principles of free trade. On the motion of the delegates from Konigsberg, Dantzig, and Stettin, the following resolution was passed, and a committee appointed to carry it to the Chancellor of the Empire, and press upon him the importance of the same: "The Conference of Delegates is unanimously of opinion that the final object of a reform of the Custom-house tariff is its liberation from all protective duties and others tending to place obstacles in the way of free communication and traffic, and retaining only a few financial duties. As the first and immediate steps to be taken in this direction, they strongly suggest and recommend: 1, the repeal of the export duty on rags; 2, the repeal of the import duties on all descriptions of iron and chemicals; 3, a general reduction of the present duties on yarns with a corresponding revision of the duties on manufactured articles; 4, repeal of the duty on rice; and 5, simplification of the tariff by expunging therefrom all duties that cost more in collecting than they bring in to the revenue." The commission appointed to draw up the memorial embodying the above heads for presentation to the Chancellor, is composed of the representatives of Rostock, Konigsberg, Danzig, Stettin, and Hamburg. A resolution was then moved by Herr Stephan, the delegate of Konigsberg, to the following effect, and unanimously passed:—"The Conference greets with lively satisfaction the intended immediate repeal of the salt-tax, and hopes that with reference to the proposed augmentation of the duty on tobacco, the existing protection on the home-grown article may by degrees be totally made to disappear." And finally a motion made by the port of Swinemunde to memorialise the Prussian Minister for Finance on the subject of ports of distress was agreed to, its object being to liberate all vessels obliged to enter a port of distress—Nothhaven—either from contrary winds, storms, ice, the repair of sea damages, obtaining provisions or fuel, or to receive orders for their ultimate port of destination and discharge—from the payment of all local dues and dock charges.

The crew of the Hertha, which has passed three years and two months on the China and Japan station, and lately returned to Wilhelmshaven, have now been dismissed out of the reserve, and sent to their respective homes. There were about three hundred men, and as the greater part of them hail from Baltic ports, they passed through this city under charge of two naval officers. They all appeared to be in excellent spirits, and full of nautical fun and practical jokes, perfectly realising our old stereotyped idea of "Jack ashore," but at the same time evincing an evident and natural longing for their native fleshpots in their parental homes.

The East of Siberia Trading Company in this city give notice that Herr Johann Kuster, of Nicolayefsk, on the Amoor, has been elected a member of the board of directors.

By Royal decree, dated Copenhagen, Nov. 28 last, Herr R. Jensen, partner in the firm of Messrs. John Burd and Co., of Hong Kong, is appointed Consul at that port for his Majesty the King of Denmark.

COMMERCIAL.

The near approach of the Christmas holidays manifests itself already, and interferes much with business, so that the markets for all descriptions of Produce are for the time lamed and neglected. The sales of Teas were confined to the execution of a few orders for Congou and Souchong for the local trade. There has been a fair demand for Cassia Lignea at the rather reduced rates of 9⅞ to 10 schillings banco. Pepper is dull of sale, and a shade lower. The 300 chests of Star Annis, imported per Corona, from Hong Kong, have been privately sold by the importers at secret prices, and the 100 chests ditto, per Sampan, were declared in transit, and been sent on to the interior. Rice is firmly held, but no transactions are reported. Of Spelter 1,000 centners have been taken at 15½ marks banco per centner, under which figure there are no sellers.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, DEC. 11.

The discussion of the Budget of the Home Department has lasted long, but all things must come to an end. The Budget has been passed unanimously. The last days of the debate were fraught with surprises. The Minister promised more railways to complete the existing system, or, if private capitalists should undertake the construction of the new lines he would give financial aid; he further promised a new building for the University at Leyden, and last, but not least, a new building in which to display the rich collection of beautiful pictures and other objects of art, which is now heaped up promiscuously at Amsterdam. The résumé of the debate is that the Minister intends to spend a considerable sum of money upon public works, education and science, and art, which is to find in him a benevolent protector. Most certainly Mr. Geertsema is not an embodiment of eloquence, but such a programme is sure to meet with general sympathy. It is further very remarkable that the Chamber voted by 43 against 25 a credit of 5,000 guilders to promote a better system of education for young ladies. Of course, this miserable sum was not the subject of the debate, but the principle has been fought out, and Parliament is convinced that this branch of education needs improvement. The debate upon lower class education was very dull.

After the Home Budget had been got rid of the subject of the Naval Department was brought forward, and a prolonged and exciting debate ensued; all sorts of technical questions regarding our navy were asked, but at last the Minister won the battle—his Budget being passed by a large majority (48—14 votes). The members then took a few days of rest—that is they went to work in the sections—to recruit their powers for the great parliamentary struggle—the debate upon the Budget of the War Department, which has begun to-day. Several members have already turned their guns on the Minister; they say we spend too much money for our defence—two hundred and three millions in the last fourteen years—and that we are, nevertheless, utterly unable to defend our country, that our military organisation is very bad, that the Minister has no system; and they maintain that the Chamber ought not to grant so large a sum as is now asked for—seventeen millions—without a complete reorganisation being effected in our army and our means of defence. Time alone will show whether the majority hold with these opinions—I, for my part, hope they will. Strange rumours have found their way, even to the English newspapers, about the reorganisation of our defences. It has been asserted that all the lines of defence would be given up, except that of Amsterdam—Utrecht, which would be so strengthened as to be in a position to withstand, if required, an attack by the whole German army. These rumours found a reply in some leaders in the German papers, demonstrating that Holland was trembling in fear of an attack from its German neighbours. These articles would have been amusing, if they had been less brutal. But it is not only the German papers which have spoken, the Paris press has also spread some curious items of news. Thus it was asserted by the Presse, of course "under reserve," that a German agent had distributed ten thousand rifles amongst the natives of Sumatra, who are at war with the Dutch Government, and that the revolutionists had thrown up entrenchments, which could not have been made by themselves without aid from Europeans. With this little story I take my leave of military matters. The major-general of the East India army, D. L. de Brabant, has quitted the service, receiving the Knighthood of the Netherlands Lion.

The very rough and stormy weather which has prevailed during the last few weeks makes it necessary for me to post my letter a day sooner than usual. Last week owing to this cause I could only send a short and incomplete report of the last meeting of the shareholders of the Rotterdam Bank. Let me add that this financial establishment will most probably in a short time increase its capital to fifteen millions. The shares have advanced to 116½—which certainly proves that the public has abundant confidence in the communication made by the leading manager, Mr. Muller, that the next dividend will be very satisfactory. The business has increased so much that more managers will have to be appointed. Mr. Canters will shortly return from Java after having liquidated the branch there. It was decided that the commissaries may be re-elected, and it is intended to allow foreigners to be elected to this office as well as to that of manager. The shares will be quoted upon all the principal foreign Bourses, and the Bank is free to undertake financial operations, except speculations in public shares and merchandise.

Belgium, it seems, is not very prosperous with its financial establishments. The stoppage of the Banque de l'Union is an utter disaster which recals that of Mr. Langrand, and we must be thankful that our financial establishments are not—as far as is known—injured by this failure. Some weeks ago I mentioned that an influential company had been established here, with a capital of fifteen millions, to promote trade and industry. I now hear that this Rotterdam Trading Company has asked for a concession to explorate Fyenoord, that is, to build a new town on the other side of our river. The exact details of this scheme are not yet known, but in my next letter I may be able to furnish particulars.

A local paper, the Weesper Courant, is informed by its Hague correspondent that the relations between the Minister of the Colonial Department, Mr. Fransen van de Putte, and the Governor-General of Java, Mr. Loudon, are not so couleur de rose as is desirable. It seems that the latter maintains—and this, indeed, agrees with his known character—an independent position, and declines to be the mere serviteur of the Minister. The correspondent adds that already much sharp correspondence has been interchanged.

The King, who is now at his seat het Loo, enjoying in this horrible weather the pleasure of shooting, has appointed as our Minister resident in Japan Mr. F. P. van der Hoeven, now our representative at the Court of Italy, in which post he is to be succeeded by Mr. W. F. H. von Weckerlin.

The news, spread by the Java papers, that a new journal was to be established there, under the editorship of Messrs. van Vloten, v. d. Linden, Douwes Dekker, and Roorda van Eysinga, is contradicted.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Transactions in our leading articles of colonial and foreign Produce have been devoid of animation, and the late excitement as regards Coffee has a good deal abated. Prices of this article, as well as of Sugar, are, however, well supported. Parcels of Java Tobacco, offered for sale by private tender, have realised full rates.

COFFEE.—The demand has been brisk, and the inactivity which has prevailed in the market is mainly to be attributed to the reservedness of holders. No shipments of private importation were offered on sale, and second-hand parcels of Trading Company's Coffee are also but little brought forward, while 48½c. is demanded for good ordinary Java. Sales have been closed at Amsterdam of 400 bags Timor, ex Electra, at 47½c.

SUGAR continues in a healthy position, but I have only to report the sale of 275 baskets No 7, afloat, on secret terms.

TEA.—The brokers' valuations of the cargo of China ex Duna, from Foochow, via Suez Canal, to be offered for sale by public auction here on the 19th inst., range between 83c. and 140c. according to quality.

TOBACCO.—About 7,000 bales of several marks changed hands by secret tender.

SPICES.—The tone of our market remains unaltered. Transactions are on a limited scale.

RICE.—There is nothing to report; the demand remains inactive.

TIN.—No alteration is to be reported in the market, in which there continues to be but little doing. Banca has been selling at f.86½ for usual prompt and f.84½ and f.83 for delivery ex the coming spring sale, and Billiton on the spot at f.83.

HIDES continue to be well thought of, but no sales have been closed from first hands. Several parcels of Java Cows and Buffaloes, will soon be placed on the market for sale by secret tender.

INDIGO.—The business in this article has been confined to a few small lots of Java, which sold in the proportion of the prices of the late public sales.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Dec. 6, at Texel, from Batavia (via Suez Canal), Seagull; 10, at Texel, from Samarang, Herschel; from Batavia, Anna Elisabeth.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.—For Java, per Mina, Messrs. v.d. Wal and family, Zieke and family, Luther and family, v.d. Linden and family; Mrs. Nahuis; Messrs. Morus, de Lange, van Hunsel, Kasteleyn, Hamer, and Leigstra; per steamer Koning der Nederlanden, Miss Van der Byl; Messrs. H. B. van Daalen and family; J. J. Hendricks, H. E. Tromp, H. Rosenthal, J. A. Hardeman, J. C. van Hasselt, A. L. van Hasselt, J. D. Baaker, J. F. Sas, G. Mammen, J. A. Jansen, E. Scheltema, W. C. de Jongh and family; J. D. Vane and family; J. C. van Gheel.

THE IMPERIAL MARRIAGE AND THE FOREIGN MINISTERS.

THE news which reaches us from Peking of the completion of the Imperial marriage is coupled with the significant announcement that not only were the Foreign Ministers not invited to the ceremony, but that the only official information on the subject vouchsafed to them by the Chinese Government was the request forwarded at the last moment that neither they nor their subordinates would leave their Legations on the days set apart for the marriage festivities. "A straw will show which way the wind blows," and the studied discourtesy thus displayed by the Government towards the representatives of the Treaty Powers augurs ill for the friendly solution of the Audience Question. We have reason to believe that the answers returned by the Ministers were couched in coldly formal terms as a hint to Prince KUNG that they were fully aware of the slight put upon them. In good truth the position of affairs in China is enough to make even the most long-suffering politician lose patience. It is now more than thirty years since Sir HENRY POTTINGER concluded his celebrated Treaty within the walls of Nanking. And what progress have we made in our relations with the Empire in those three decades? Five ports were then open to trade, now we have access to twelve; then our Minister resided at Hong Kong, now he has a house at Peking. Such are the relative positions occupied by us in China in 1842 and 1872. But even this gives an exaggerated idea of the advance really made; for, though the British flag flies over the Liang Kung Foo, yet it may fairly be questioned whether the position of our Envoy, at present, be not less dignified than when he directed affairs from the Government House at Hong Kong. It is true that he resides in the capital, and that he is thus in direct communication with the TSUNG-LI YAMUN, but this only makes the slights put upon him by the Chinese Government the more personally offensive and conspicuously obvious. Of this the mandarins are perfectly aware, and ever since the withdrawal of our troops from the neighbourhood of Peking, they have lost no opportunity of nullifying the effect produced among the natives by our success in arms, by offering every slight it has been possible for them to confer upon the personnel of the British and other Legations.

A reference to the visit of the Duke of EDINBURGH to Peking will fairly illustrate our remarks. It will be remembered that during his stay in the capital the Chinese Government took no notice whatever of his presence, although they were perfectly well aware of his arrival, thus proclaiming publicly their contempt for every scion of royalty other than those which surround the Dragon Throne. To this act of discourtesy we submitted, as we have submitted to scores of others; but it would have been far wiser if, instead of courting an insult by visiting Peking, the Duke of EDINBURGH had avoided the capital altogether, and contented himself with viewing those other cities in China where, no special honour being possible, their omission could not be taken to imply an affront. In this same way the position of our Minister in Peking has laid him open to numerous slights which could never have been offered him had he remained in Hong Kong, and thus an advantage which if properly used might, years ago, have placed our relations with China on a firm international basis, has by the weakness of our policy been turned to our discredit. In saying this we are by no means unmindful of the different commercial privileges which have of late years been conceded to us by the Chinese Government; but we would ask what greater indignity could they have offered to the representatives of the QUEEN and of the other European Sovereigns at Peking than by, at the last moment, imforming them of the intended marriage of the EMPEROR, only to request that they and their subordinates would not show themselves in the streets on the days set apart for the ceremony?

THE second of the batch of new steamers building on the Delaware for the fleet of the Pacific Mail Company has been launched and named the Acapulco. This vessel has been constructed by Messrs. HURLAN and HOLLINGSWORTH, and her length is about 320 feet, beam 40 feet, depth of hold 30 feet. She has four decks, and her carrying capacity is 4,500 tons. The engines are on the compound principle, with cylinders 51 and 88 inches in diameter, and with 42 inches of stroke; she has four boilers 9 feet 9 inches in length, and 13 feet in diameter, connected to one smoke-stack; each boiler is made of 13-16-inch boiler-iron, double riveted, and capable of carrying a working pressure of 70 pounds of steam. The line shafting is 13½ inches in diameter, the propeller-wheel being 16 feet 3 inches, with a varying pitch of 22 to 26 feet. When the Acapulco was launched she drew 7 feet. Three more ships are now being built at the Delaware Works at Chester. One is 312 feet, and two are 421 feet long, and of 40 and 47 feet breadth of beam respectively. The name of the first one, noticed in our last, is the Colon.

COMPLAINTS continue to reach us of the inefficiency of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Cable, and the want of connection with Foochow and other coast ports. Some allusion was made by the chairman of the China Submarine Company as to laying a duplicate line. This had better be carried out without delay, or the establishment of a third company will be the result. There is a determination on the part of both the Chinese and foreign merchants, engaged in the Coast trade, to rectify the present unsatisfactory state of communication as speedily as possible.

IT is perhaps amongst the things not generally known, that our Government will not permit the landing of any submarine cable at Hong Kong, and other British possessions, for which a special concession has been granted by a foreign Government. It is difficult to see with what object this regulation is enforced; it certainly seems very similar to Chinese obstructiveness, about which we have so often to complain. We believe that this obstacle has been the chief one in the laying down a cable to connect Manila with Hong Kong.

OUR Holland correspondent announces the appointment of Mr. F. P. VAN DER HOEVEN, late Minister at the Court of the King of ITALY, to be Minister and Plenipotentiary at Yedo. Our Hamburg Correspondent informs us that Mr. JENSEN, of the firm of Messrs. JOHN BURD and Co., has been confirmed as Consul at Hong Kong for Denmark.

THE Crown Agents for the Colonies have invited tenders for the laying of a Submarine Telegraph Cable between Natal and Mauritius, and thence on to Aden, to connect with the British India Company's line. We believe that these Colonies are prepared to pay something in the shape of a guaranteed interest, on the necessary capital.

MR. SULLY, the provisional liquidator of the "Joint National Agency," the concern which was established by Messrs. BOWLES BROS., and in which the Japanese made deposits to the extent of some £20,000, is now gathering in the assets of the Company, and will report on the prospects and condition of the estate on the 21st inst.

A TELEGRAM has been received from Calcutta announcing that Mr. COOPER and the Panthay Prince HASSAN, who left this country in September for Talifoo, have stopped in Rangoon, owing to reports that Talifoo was in the occupation of Chinese troops.

THE CHINA BISHOPRIC.

A VERY important declaration has been published in connection with the Colonial Bishopric's Fund, subscribed with the names of the four Archbishops and twenty-nine Bishops of the Churches of England and Ireland. It proposes the endowment of nineteen new Bishoprics, and of eight already in existence, but for which only partial or temporary provision has yet been made. With reference to an announcement we lately made as to the appointment of a Bishop to China, we find in the declaration the following:—"The "Church Missionary Society has expressed its readiness to "pay, for the present, the salary of an additional Bishop in "China, and steps have been taken with a view to an ap- "pointment. Ultimately his salary should be provided for "by a permanent endowment." We wish especially to call the attention of our readers—both at home and in China—to the words we have printed in italics. We believe that they will do much to reassure the minds of many who looked with apprehension on the proposal to appoint a Missionary Bishop for the North of China, not only nominated by, but dependent on, and receiving his instructions from, a society—however excellent that society might be. That apprehension, well-founded, as we think, in principle, derived in this case additional force from the fact that no body of men sitting in London could possess acquaintance with the peculiar necessities of the Church in China in any degree to be compared with that of a Bishop residing there, who ought to be left to a more free exercise of his functions than a Society's Bishop could possibly be. We are, therefore, glad to find that the payment of the salary of the new Bishop by the "Church Missionary Society" is to be considered only as a temporary measure; the consecration of the Rev. W. A. RUSSELL, was performed in Westminster Abbey on the 15th inst., being the Third Sunday in Advent. Mr. RUSSELL is well known in China, where he has long laboured with zeal, perseverance, and success; and his appointment will be welcomed by his brethren the clergy, by the native converts, and by the foreign community residing there. In wishing him much happiness and success as a bishop, we at the same time desire to urge upon the friends of the Church the importance of providing a permanent endowment for the office which he is about to fill. It is not proposed by the Council —say the Bishops in their declaration—that the entire endowment of these sees should be raised in England, but that the Christians in each country and the merchants who derive wealth from thence, should unite according to their ability with the Colonial Bishopries' Council, with the Church societies, and others in England, in providing the necessary funds. We earnestly commend these words to the generous consideration of the merchants of China, than whom a more liberal class of men does not, we think, exist.

THE P. AND O. COMPANY.

THE account of this Company's meeting must have been perused by our readers with too much interest to leave room for us to make any other comment on it than congratulation. The results as reported speak for themselves. A quarter of a million sterling has been added to the value of their shipping property, and their vessels have traversed 200,000 more miles than in any former year. All this progress has been accomplished without calling up a shilling of capital; and the usual or a little more than the usual dividend was fairly earned in the face of such low freights that one would have thought it better to leave them to their competitors. Nothing could be more satisfactory than the report. Even the irrepressible Mr. JONES was satisfied, and (as it is understood that one of his orations is a sine qua non at the meetings of every company of which he is a shareholder and not a director) he absolutely found words to congratulate the directors. The directors of the P. and O. Company have made gigantic strides in adapting their vessels to the requirements of the age, and the judgment that they have exercised is proved by the economy of the results. The benefit has been demonstrated. Under such circumstances, our usual task is taken out of our hands. We have nothing before us but to wish continued prosperity to the P. and O. Company—which is about synonymous with wishing long life to the present energetic directors.

CHRISTIANITY IN JAPAN.

In the course of the discussion on the budget in the French National Assembly, Count Desbassayns de Richemont took advantage of the presentation of the credits for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to call the attention of the Government to the persecution of Christians in Japan. He had, he said, hoped from information given some time back in the journals that the Japanese Government had put an end to its barbarous acts, but unfortunately more recent accounts had not realised that expectation, and he regretted to say that of 3,000 Christians who had been banished, 1,000 had died after sufferings of all kinds, and the others were languishing in their exile, decimated by misery and ill-treatment The Court of Japan, anxious to obtain a position in the concert of civilised nations, was at this moment sending an Embassy to visit the different European Powers, and he wished to ask the Minister for Foreign Affairs whether he could give any information on the subject, and whether he did not think that the presence of that Embassy was a favourable opportunity for raising the voice of France on so painful a question.

M. de Goulard, Minister of Foreign Affairs, replied that the Assembly could entertain no doubt as to the solicitude of the Government. The fresh information received by the last speaker, which he trusted was not entirely exact, caused the apprehension that persecutions, not yet generally known, continued in Japan, and had led to results more sad and deplorable than anything contained in the official correspondence. He had some time back received a despatch which, while attracting his attention to that painful subject, seemed to reduce the facts to less serious proportions. He then wrote to the French Charge d'Affaires for further particulars, but had not yet received an answer. The Assembly was probably aware that there had been discovered in the interior of the country a Christian colony, which had existed for a long time past, and was an interesting relic of former missions. It would seem that this colony, by some caprice of the local authority, had been dispersed and exposed to cruel treatment. He was informed that the persecution, although odious and inhuman, had not been sanguinary, but it had at least resulted in acts which may have eventually compromised not only the safety and liberty of the persons stricken, but their lives also. The French Government would spare no pains to obtain the most precise information; it would employ all its influence with a Government which was not deaf to the voice of civilisation, to obtain from it a conduct more worthy of a nation which wished to take a place among civilised countries. A solemn and important embassy was indeed expected in France; nothing so far indicated that it was charged with any other mission than that of studying European arts, railways, electric telegraphs, and all the curiosities and novelties that had illustrated the present age. The French Government would not only hasten to exhibit to the Embassy all those precious things, and initiate it in all the material benefits of modern civilisation, but it would neglect no opportunity of acting in such a manner that when the Ambassadors returned to Asia they might teach the Japanese populations something still more precious, namely, humanity and religious tolerance.

THE JAPANESE EMBASSY.

In pursuance of a meeting of the Bishops at Lambeth Palace, in which among other subjects the effort recently made by the Japanese Government to restrain the persecution of the Christians was discussed, the Archbishop of Canterbury paid a formal visit to the Japanese Ambassadors at the Buckingham Palace Hotel. His Grace expressed in his own name and in that of his brethren his thankfulness for the progress which has been made in the cause of religious liberty in Japan, and his earnest hope that the intercourse at present existing between England and Japan may lead to further good results. The visit of the Archbishop was followed by that of a deputation, consisting of the president, secretaries, and members of the Council of the Evangelical Alliance, who presented a memorial asking that all enactments against the Christian religion might be repealed throughout Japan. The deputation was introduced by Lord Ebury, the president of the society, and the following answer to the memorial was handed to him by Iwakura.

To the Council of the Evangelical Alliance.—Gentlemen,—We are very much gratified with the visit of a deputation from so influential a body as the British Evangelical Alliance. Your words, expressive of deep interest in the Empire from which we have come as the Ambassadors of his Majesty the Emperor, are fully appreciated by us; and your desire that our mission may result in greater prosperity to our land is fully reciprocated with respect to the kingdom of Great Britain. We cannot allow this opportunity to pass without a word of reply concerning the reported persecutions in Japan to which you have alluded. We are glad to assure you in this public manner that the statement that "the Imperial laws against the introduction and profession of Christianity have of late been promulgated" is not correct. The desire of the Government is to do what is best for its subjects, and to foster a spirit of greater religious as well as civil liberty. We refer you to our present attitude, both at home and abroad, in confirmation of the fact that this is the feeling of the central Power.

The Ambassadors commenced the past week—the last of their stay in England—with a visit to the Prince and Princess of Wales at Sandringham. Iwakura, with the four Associate Ambassadors, and the two secretaries, travelled by an early train from London, accompanied by Sir Harry Parkes, Major-General Alexander, and Mr. Aston, and were met at the railway station at Wolferton by Major Grey, equerry-in-attendance on the Prince of Wales. Carriages were in waiting, by which they were conveyed (amidst a furious storm of wind, rain, and sleet) to Sandringham house, where the Prince and Princess, the Royal children, and suite, were assembled in the reception saloon to meet them, and the members of the Embassy were severally presented. The interview was divested, for the most part, of State ceremonial, and assumed the character of a friendly visit. The Ambassadors were entertained by the Prince and Princess at luncheon, and afterwards (the storm having subsided) a tour was made of the royal gardens, conservatories, and tropical houses. Having taken leave of the Prince and Princess, the Embassy left for London. They have since been entertained at dinner by Sir Harry Parkes and Sir Arthur Kinnaird, M.P., and have paid a visit of inspection to a large range of wharves and warehouses on the Surrey shore of the Thames near London-bridge known as "Butler's Wharf," through which the Ambassadors were conducted by Mr. Hutchins, the chairman of the board of directors.

On the 11th inst. all the members of the Embassy, accompanied by General Alexander, attended the Cattle Show at the Agricultural Hall. They were received by Mr. Sidney, the secretary of the Agricultural Hall Company, who conducted them over the most important parts of the show. Mr. Ransome explained the use of the machinery and implements; and Mr. Sutton described the nature and properties of the roots on which cattle are fed in this country. The Ambassadors were then shown the Devons, Herefords, and Shorthorns, as the first three English breeds of horned stock; and, afterwards, the sheep. From what was said it appeared that some members of the Embassy are considering the practicability of a cross between their sheep and the most profitable English breeds. After having viewed the show of animals, the Ambassadors were entertained at luncheon by the directors in the Board Room and before leaving, Iwakura purchased a neat Parisian phaeton which was exhibited in the Hall.

The Ambassadors will leave London for Paris this day.

(THE TIMES.)

The visit of the Japanese Embassy to this country may be supposed to have terminated with the formal reception of the Ambassadors by Her Majesty on Thursday last, and they and we may now review the incidents and compute the results of a mission so truly extraordinary. We live in an age of such marvels that few things cause much astonishment; yet, if anybody had predicted thirty years ago that an accredited Embassy would really arrive in this country from Japan, he would have been ridiculed for his pains. Japan was then, and had long been, the most mysterious region of the whole globe, the more so because it was neither savage nor uncivilised, but the seat of a most ancient race, with an organised Government, well-developed industries, and venerable traditions. The manners and customs of the inhabitants were said to resemble in some degree those of the Chinese, but China itself was only imperfectly known, while of Japan we possessed merely the strange and fragmentary accounts which had filtered through the journals of certain Russian prisoners. The Japanese had bound themselves, or were bound by their rulers, to national seclusion. One country alone was allowed once a year to send a single ship to their ports, and through this channel a few characteristic wares and products of the country found their way to Europe. Twenty years have not elapsed, even now, since this seclusion was interrupted by Treaties establishing commercial intercourse, and yet our own eyes have seen the representatives of this remarkable people, and the Queen of England has received a letter from the unapproachable Mikado of Japan.

Asiatics are so prone to reserve in their manners and conversation that it would not be easy to say what the departing Embassy really thought of England and the English, or what reports of us, our country and our doings, the Ambassadors will carry back with them. They have, it must be owned, been well received. They have seen everything they could wish to see; they have been treated with courtesy, and even with cordiality, by our municipal bodies, and the dignity of their character has been recognised by a reception at Court. Perhaps, however, it may have occurred to our visitors that the aristocracy of England was somewent less demonstrative than that of their own country. Japan is the land of great nobles. If we may believe all we read of it, the state of society must be very like that existing in England some five centuries ago. Feudalism is the chief institution of the country. The Daimios, or great noblemen, enjoy incomes as large as those of our richest peers, and they exercise a territorial jurisdiction unknown in England since the Wars of the Roses. Their retainers are numerous enough to form small armies; indeed, the aggregate force of these followers is exceedingly large. Our three Northern Earls were not more powerful in the 15th century than the Japanese Daimios are now, and it is impossible not to imagine that the Ambassadors, impressed with the precedents of their own land, may have anticipated more hospitality and attention than they actually experienced from the Daimios of England. However, we have our own ways, as these visitors no doubt discovered; and, as they came to learn, and found no obstacles in the way of acquiring information, we may hope their satisfaction is substantially complete.

The question now is, what will follow. How far shall we, or they, be the better for this singular visit? We have been told—though all reports from Japan must be regarded as imperfect or doubtful—that the country is almost in a state of revolution from the rapidity of its recent progress. What in Europe is described at the Rénaissance of civilisation or society has burst upon Japan with the abruptness of a social convulsion. We have made but little impression on the Chinese, and not much more, until very lately, on the Hindoos, but an intercourse of a few years' duration with the world outside them has sufficed to throw the Japanese into a ferment of reforms. Perhaps the truth is that the spirit of inquiry and progress always existed among them, for their policy of seclusion was of comparatively modern date, and the traditions of earlier times may have still survived, to quicken into life again when impediments were removed. At any rate, this very Embassy is enough to prove the change which must have passed over the people and their Government. The Mikado, who has now addressed a letter to our Queen, was, till lately, even in Japan itself, a mysterious and almost unknown personage. None but members of his own family are permitted, we hear, to learn his name. Like the mythical princes of Hindostan, he is supposed to be of Divine extraction, and the practical administration of the country—so far as it is not in the hands of the Daimios—was for many generations left to devolve on a humbler representative of sovereignty. With all these vestiges, however, of primæval society, the Japanese, like their neighbours the Chinamen, have a strong practical turn. Take any average specimens of either people, and they are as alert, as versatile, and as sharp-sighted as the Americans themselves. A Chinaman will learn any trade, live on any wages, and keep himself going wherever he may be; and the natives of Japan, we read, are in these respects by no means behind the Chinese. They are even said to possess some advantages of national character, and to approach more nearly to the European, or even the English, stamp than any other Oriental people. What will they do now, after thus reviving and extending their knowledge of the great modern world?

We have had Japanese visitors before, but this was a Japanese Embassy. Nation was formally brought into contact with nation, and the idea of seclusion or isolation ought to be entirely abandoned. Practically we suppose it is so, though the territory of Japan is by no means very accessible even now, and we hear not only of the existence but of the possible predominance of a party in the country bent upon once more keeping foreigners at a distance. There are rumours of civil war, of Daimios in insurrection, and of revolutions at Court. On the other hand, it is said that the great nobles are really anxious to be free traders, but that their wishes are thwarted by the Government. We have, in point of fact, much to learn of the country, and it is probable that the Japanese Ambassadors know more about us at this moment than we know about them. It is certainly curious that of late years our trade with Japan should have gradually declined, until, in 1870, it was less than a third of what it had been in 1867. Such an effect must have been due to artificial causes. No one can imagine that a people so shrewd and industrious as the Japanese would, after beginning to buy and sell in modern fashion, be disposed of their own accord to surrender the manifold and obvious fruits of such an intercourse. There must be intervention somewhere, dictated, no doubt, by private interests or social prejudices, and we may hope one result of this visit to Europe will be the removal of the obstacles thus established. The Japanese are peculiarly diligent and ingenious, and it is, indeed, a curious proof of their success in handicraft that one of their products should have brought with it a name to be naturalised in our language at a time when all the ports of Japan were closed, except, at rare intervals, to the Dutch, and when the whole country, with its inhabitants, was nothing better than a mystery. These days, however, are past. Willingly or unwillingly, princes and people alike have put themselves in communication with the outer world once more, and from this position there will be no second withdrawal. Let us hope that our visitors, on their return to their native land, will give a good account of our disposition towards their country, and that such intercourse as is for the benefit of both peoples may be speedily developed and long maintained between Japanese and English.

Monetary and Commercial.

The directors of the Eastern Telegraph Company announce that the average actual time in the transmission of messages from Bombay during the month of November was 1 hour and 37 minutes, which, by comparison with the return for October, is an improvement in speed of 22 minutes. An improvement of 1½ hours has also occurred in the average speed from China.

At an extraordinary meeting of the National Bank of India (Limited), the resolution passed on the 19th ult., altering the Articles of Association, was confirmed.

The half-yearly meeting of the proprietors of the Union Bank of London will be held on the 15th proximo, to receive a report for the six months, and to declare a dividend.

The half-yearly court of the proprietors of East India Stock was held on the 11th inst., Mr. J. Harvey Astell in the chair.

The Chairman referred to the death of Colonel Sykes since the last court, by which the Company had lost a most efficient and valuable servant, who had on many occasions sacrificed his own personal advantage and rendered himself unpopular by forwarding the views of the Company. (Hear.) The vacancy thus caused on the board had been filled up by the late Field-Marshal Sir G. Pollock, to whose worth any testimony he might bear would be needless. In his place Mr. Charles Helps had beeen elected on the board of directors. The dividend for the half-year would be paid as usual at the Bank of England on the 6th January.

Some discussion arose upon the election of two gentlemen to fill vacancies on the by-laws committee, and in the result Colonel Rathbone and Mr. Cust were appointed, subject to the opinion of counsel as to the legality of the election being made at this meeting instead of that in June next. The Chairman said there would be only two more dividends to pay, after which the Company would, according to its Act, cease to exist. The proceedings then terminated.

Messrs. Dickinson, Rose and Co. announce by circular that Mr. Henry Akroyd, of Halifax, has joined their firm, which will in future be conducted under the style of Dickinson, Akroyd and Co.

An adjudication in bankruptcy was made yesterday against the partners in the firm of Bowles Brothers and Co., the American bankers—namely Charles Stetson, Peabody Bowles, Robert Caldwell Mackay Bowles, William Burrows Bowles, Henry Cushing Stetson, and Nathan Appleton; and Mr. John Young (of the firm of Messrs. Turquand, Youngs, and Co.), of 16, Tokenhouse-yard, has been appointed receiver. Messrs. Richard Jones and Co., Lancaster-place, Strand, are the solicitors to the petition.

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council have not yet delivered judgment in the case of Hart v. Gumpach.

Bar silver has been sold at 59¾d. per oz. standard, showing a slight decline in price from that previously current. Mexican Dollars continue to arrive from New York, and new coinage has been sold at 58¾d. per oz. The market for the old coin is very quiet.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade returns for November show, with regard to the coal and iron trades, an enormous increase in the value of shipments, accompanied by a decrease in quantities. Of coal the increase in the value of our exports has been 85 per cent., and of iron it has been 38 per cent., against a diminution of tonnage in both cases of about 7 per cent. As regards cotton goods, the shipments of yarn show an increase of 26 per cent. in value and 33 per cent. in quantity, while in finished articles it has been 10 per cent. in value and 5 per cent. in quantity. Of other goods the increase in value has been—apparel, 40 per cent.; alkali, 56 per cent.; beer and ale, 29 per cent.; earthenware, 19 per cent.; haberdashery, 16 per cent.; hardware, 15 per cent.; linen manufactures, 5 per cent.; machinery, 50 per cent.; and silk manufactures, 13 per cent. The only important items on the adverse side are woollen manufactures, which show a decrease in value of 6 per cent., with a slight increase in quantity, and unenumerated articles 7 per cent.

The imports of China Tea in November were considerably less than in the corresponding month last year, being 16,000,000 lbs., against fully 21,000,000 lbs. in 1871; those of Indian were, however, fully half a million lbs. larger, the figures 2,000,000 lbs., against 1,450,000 lbs. The total for the year show a reduced surplus of barely five million lbs. The entries for home use last month were barely equal to those of the preceding year, although at the same time the difference is very slight, and the total remains four million lbs. in excess of 1871. The exports continue on about the same scale as previously this year, the total being rather less. The stock at the close of November showed a smaller surplus, viz., 4,400,000 lbs. Statement for the first eleven months is as follows:—

TEA.

During the week there has been no change in the tone of our market, which continues without animation, the trade and exporters only buying for immediate wants. Importers generally refrain from pressing their Teas, but those who are sellers have to take lower prices to induce business. Public sales, both of China and India Tea, continue frequent, the former again comprising further invoices of Green Teas. The public sales of the week have comprised 12,317 packages, of which nearly the whole was offered and sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week amount to 3,099,356 lbs., against 3,341,729 lbs. last year.

Black.—Red leaf: New siftings sell at 6d. to 7d., leafy kinds, sweet in the cup 8d. to 11d., inferior flavoury at 1s. to 1s. 1d., good flavoury and Kaisow kinds 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 3d., the latter and medium Kaisow at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d. close at 1d. per lb. decline; fine at 1s. 7d. to 1s. 10d., finest 1s. 11d. to 2s. 2d., the sales have been limited to a few parcels. Pakling: A parcel of finest reported sold for export at 2s. 1d. to 2s. 4d. per lb., second class quality is in full supply. Tayshan leaf: Ordinary common in boxes has sold at 8d. to 10d., good common to fair 10½d. to 1s., and are in abundant supply; the steamer Orchis brought supplies of autumn leaf, chiefly medium, strong malty burnt, a portion sold at 1s. 3d. per lb. Black leaf: There has been less doing in common kinds, no supplies of importance being on offer; fair quality at 1s. to 1s. 1½d., closes at ¼d. per lb. lower; medium to fine at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 7d., at 1d. per lb. decline; finest at 1s. 9d. to 2s. no change. Souchong and Oolong: No transactions of note to record. Scented Tea: In Canton kinds a limited business has been done, part by auction, and prices show a decline of 1d. to 2d. per lb. on sales a fortnight since. Foochow kinds are the turn lower, medium Scented Orange Pekoe selling at 1s. 3½d. to 1s. 4d. per lb. Green: Large supplies per steamers, the bulk of which has been submitted to public sale without reserve, and sold at still lower prices, dealers being heavy in stock, not having worked off early purchases. Imports since 1st Aug. to 30th ult. are 4,615,000 lbs., and the Antenor's cargo of 500,000 lbs. is now on offer, several parcels being declared for unreserved sale during the week.

SILK.

A dragging unsatisfactory market continues, purchases are made simply to supply actual wants, manufacturers being unwilling to lay in stock at this period of the year, preferring to run the chance of any change in prices which may occur later on. Continental demand is almost nil, owing to the unsettled state of French politics, and this also adds to the dulness of the market. Prices of China Silk remain nominally the same, Importers, as a rule, holding their Silks for full rates. Cantons are unaltered, and Japans are without change. Deliveries have fallen off, being from 1st to 11th December:—China, 634 bales; Canton, 195 bales; Japan, 225 bales; Bengal, 133 bales; total, 1,187 bales.

COFFEE.

The market for Plantation Ceylon continues excited; and moderate supplies, consisting of fine ordinary and low middling kinds, offered by auction have been taken off with active competition at a further advance, the latest prices paid being, triage 78s. to 80s., small 82s., low middling 85s. to 85s. 6d., middling 86s. to 88s. 6d., peaberry 99s. 6d. per cwt. For arrival sales to considerable extent have been effected at 84s., both with and without guarantee of crops; 700 bags Native Ceylon August sailing have been sold at 77s. 6d., and 400 bags ditto September at 78s. per cwt.

The stock has undergone a further remarkable diminution, the deliveries last week having been heavy, and 1,250 tons in excess of those in 1871, and as the landings were about 1,100 tons less, the deficiency in the stock now reaches the unusual amount of 8,200 tons. The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 82,674 cwt., against 113,583 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1871; Native, 8,358 cwt., against 23,909 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the forty-nine weeks ended Dec. 7, 1872, was, of Ceylon, 31,021 tons, against 37,134 tons during the corresponding period of 1871; of all descriptions, 61,062 tons, against 70,430 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 10,227 tons, against 10,522 tons; of all descriptions, 18,582 tons, against 18,980 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 24,369 tons, against 30,563 tons; of all descriptions, 50,630 tons, against 56,490 tons. The stock on Nov. 23, was, of Ceylon, 5,356 tons, against 9,655 tons; of all descriptions 11,554 tons, against 19,769 tons.

SUGAR.

The market continues in the same dull state reported for the past few weeks, refiners abstaining from buying as far as possible, and there being little demand for other purposes, sales are limited, and prices of low brown kinds are again cheaper. Manila meets little if any inquiry, and no sales have occurred. The only business done in East India kinds has been in Penang; in auction 406 baskets date sort sold at 21s. to 21s. 6d., one lot good dry 22s. 6d.; privately 700 bags low brown have been sold at 22s. 6d. to 23s., and 700 baskets date kind at 21s. 9d. per cwt.

The deliveries show a large falling off, and are about 1,700 tons less than last year, and as the landings, which include 725 tons Madras, and 1,020 tons Manila, are nearly 1,300 tons in excess of those in 1871, the surplus in the stock is further enlarged, and now amounts to 21,000 tons. Stock, Nov. 30, 65,073 tons, against 46,857 tons; Dec. 7, 65,120 tons, against 43,930 tons. The quantity of Sugar landed in the forty-nine weeks ended Dec. 6, 1872, was, of Penang, 5,254 tons, against 1,583 tons in the corresponding period of 1871; of Manila, Java, and China, 32,066 tons, against 21,406 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 3,144 tons, against 3,721 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 25,070 tons, against 33,661 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 205 tons, against 319 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 1,690 tons, against 2,463 tons. The stock on Dec. 6, was, of Penang, 2,341 tons, against 519 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 18,241 tons, against 13,077 tons.

CASUALTIES.

Advices from St. Helena state that the Dutch ship Willemina and Clara, Herwerden, from Batavia, for Amsterdam, having been struck by a heavy sea whilst off the Cape of Good Hope, it was feared that she had in consequence sustained some damage to deck beams, &c. A survey was held on the 30th Oct., when the surveyors recommended that a portion of the cargo should be discharged, in order that the beams might be examined. After landing 180 chests tea and 509 bags coffee, another survey was called on the 2nd Nov., and recommended certain repairs to be effected, which, being completed, the cargo was reshipped, and the vessel sailed for Amsterdam on the 7th November.

The Chin Kiang (str.), which left London Dec. 5, for Singapore, China, &c. (via S.C.), put into Plymouth 11th, with machinery out of order.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS.—RHEUMATIC PAINS.—Many thousands of martyrs from rheumatism have found human life but one long disease, and after consulting all the most eminent medical men in vain, and trying all sorts of supposed remedies without relief, have grown weary of existence, and have ceased to hope for comfort on this side of the grave, until some lucky accident has called their attention to Holloway's Pills and Ointment. These are genuine remedies indeed. Persons bedridden for months with rheumatic pains and swellings, after the Ointment has been well rubbed into the parts affected, and the blood purified by a course of these Pills, have found themselves restored in an incredibly short time to perfect health and ease.

THE CHINA COAST STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY has been formed for the purpose of acquiring and working the steamers Appin, Peiho, Nanzing, and Dragon, now running under the management of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, & Co., as well as a new boat, in course of construction in England. These boats are intended to ply in conjunction with the steamers of the North China Steamer Company, between the ports of Shanghai, Chefoo, Tientsin, and Newchwang; Foochow, Swatow, Amoy, and elsewhere, in China and Japan.

The Capital to be called up in the first instance is Tls. 325,000, and the remainder when required for the purchase or construction of two other boats, which it is intended to add to the Company's fleet.

The net earnings of the Company are to be applied—first, to the payment annually of 10 per cent. interest upon its Capital; secondly, to the accumulation of a Reserve Fund amounting to Tls. 100,000; and thirdly, by moieties, to the distribution of profits amongst the shareholders in the way of dividend, and to the increase of Tls. 200,000 of the said reserve fund. When that fund shall have reached the sum of Tls. 200,000, the moiety of profits previously applied to the accumulation thereof will be disposed of according to a vote of the shareholders in the Company. The Company will be under the general management of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co.; assisted by four directors, to be elected annually from among the shareholders.

The deed of settlement can be seen at the office of W. Harwood, Esq., the Company's solicitor, from whom, or from Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co., any information can be obtained.

Three thousand shares have been already appropriated, and the Company's operations will commence on the 1st January, 1873.

Applications for the remaining shares should be made to the undersigned at their office in Shanghai, or to one of the agents of the Company, on or before the 30th November next.

Dates by the Pacific Mail steamer Alaska, from Yokohama, are up to the 7th Nov., and from Nagasaki to 29th Oct.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

The Imperial Russian visitor arrived here last Sunday afternoon in the frigate Svetland, but without any flag flying to denote that he was on board. Salutes were given to the flag of Admiral Possiet, which flew from the foremast, by the Russian flagship Vitiaz, French gunboat Linois, and the Japanese corvette Tukusuna, which were returned by the Svetland as she steamed up the harbour. The arrival created but little excitement here, beyond a small crowd of Celestials and natives, who dispersed immediately the vessel came to anchor; there was nothing to be seen unusual on shore. Afloat a little more activity was visible, and boats which went alongside with officers in full uniform were numerous. Since the visitor has been here it has been something like a bombardment, owing to the numerous salutes given. The meaning of them is not very clearly understood by the public, but they are no doubt given to distinguished Japanese visitors. I hear that he will not hoist the Imperial ensign at this port. This evening he landed in a barge under a salute from the Japanese corvette, which manned yards and cheered. She had flags flying, &c.

This evening an illumination of the native town has taken place, and also at the Russian Consulate, but the other part of the settlement is in darkness. The Japanese corvette has her yards and outline illuminated.

This afternoon a murderous attack has been made by a Japanese carpenter, with an axe, on a poor, harmless foreigner, who was lying in bed at the time the fellow entered his premises. He is not expected to survive, as one of his eyes has been cut out, and part of his skull—the brain being laid bare. The ruffian escaped, but the police are making an active search, and will get him, there is little doubt. The victim is a poor coffee house keeper named Johnson.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

A correspondent at this port, under date 29th Oct., says:—

For a week back we have been hearing it said that his Excellency Li Hung-chang, the Governor General, would, at the end of the month, proceed to Taku to inspect the forts there. About 7.30 yesterday evening we heard the Chinese gunboats in harbour fire each a salute of three guns, when we knew his Excellency had gone on board one of them to proceed to Taku this forenoon. The gunboat passed through the harbour at daylight this morning. It is said that his Excellency will return to Tientsin on the 31st inst, and that a few days later he will proceed southward to visit five prefectures of the province on a tour of inspection. The Imperial edict in 1870 notified that the Governor-General would yearly pass six months at Tientsin, and six months at Paouting, and, as he has already resided here this year over six months, we may consider that his Excellency on starting for the south of the province a few days hence leaves here also for Paouting.

Two soldiers belonging to the Viceroy's Southern Legion, stationed at Sekow, about ten li from here, were yesterday afternoon beheaded for attempting to desert. We had a strong gale yesterday and during the night from the north, making the weather much colder. This morning at daylight Fahrenheit's thermometer, hung inside the verandah, showed 37 deg.

Our races will begin two days hence, and as we have just had a blow from the north we may reasonably expect fine weather, although cold, during the race days.

SHANGHAI.

Dates extend to the 8th Nov. The outward P. and O. mail of Sept. 20 arrived on the 6th Nov.

The French mail steamer Sindh, after starting on Friday last, was obliged to anchor below the harbour-master's hulk, owing to some disarrangement of her machinery. She got away on Saturday morning, the defect in her machinery having been temporarily repaired. The races have been the great event of the week. Beginning on Friday last, they were finished on Tuesday. Fine weather was enjoyed, and the meeting was one of the most successful ever held in Shanghai. An unusually large number of good ponies had been in training, the season for which had also been highly favourable; and in addition to those belonging to local stables, there were several cracks from Tientsin.

A return cricket match between the S. C. C. and the Royal Navy was played, and resulted in a victory for the former by three wickets, after a long and evenly contested game. This squares the account with the Iron Duke cricketers, who chiefly made up the Eleven, and who beat the local Eleven last spring.

The small bridge on the Cemetery-road has now been replaced by a culvert, over which the roadway is laid, and pending the putting up of iron railings on either side, the hardwood balustrades of the old bridge were brought into use. On Tuesday morning it was found that the railing on one side had been taken clean away, while that on the other side had been thrown into the Creek.

On the 1st inst. the toll-collectors were withdrawn from the Soochow Creek Bridge, and some one has since been employed, whether legitimately or not we have not learned, in knocking in the windows and otherwise damaging the watchmen's houses on the bridge. Although now at liberty to use the bridge free of toll, the majority of the Chinese passengers favour the other, perhaps because it is at a point on which a large foot passenger traffic debouches from the Gnoamen-road.

We hear that the Gas Company's holder at Hongkew has been completed, and the residents there are now receiving better light than they have hitherto enjoyed The holder was first put in operation by the company's manager on Thursday evening last; and will, it is hoped, enable the company to give both settlements better gas, and thus meet the numerous complaints of a state of matters which the consumers have born patiently for a long time. The whole of the machinery has been erected by the Pootung Foundry Company.

Korea appears determined to carry out her policy of exclusiveness most rigidly. We hear that the Regent of that country has ordered all Koreans on Russian territory to return, and has declared it a capital offence for natives to leave Korea, except when they go to China, and even these absentees are ordered to come back under threats of minor punishment.

From Chefoo we hear that the Netherlands brig Vondel, Capt. P. Groubeck, was lost on the South-east Shantung Promontory, on the night of the 25th inst., about 11 o'clock. The brig was on a voyage from Amoy to Newchwang, and had about 2,000 piculs of cargo on board. No lives were lost, and the captain and crew arrived at Chefoo on the morning of the 29th, bringing nothing with them except what they were clothed in, the natives near the situation of the wreck having taken forcible possession of the ship and threatened to murder the captain and crew unless they left the place at once. A friendly junk stood by the vessel, and the captain engaged her to convey him and the crew to Chefoo, agreeing to pay $160 as remuneration. The junk proceeded towards Chefoo, but on the afternoon of the 28th a heavy northerly blow sprung up, and she was unable to fetch the port. The captain and crew were therefore landed from the junk in a fishing boat, about fifteen miles from Chefoo, and were obliged to travel that distance on foot. $12 was to be paid to the people of the fishing boat for landing them from the junk. Representations have been made to the native authorities regarding the manner in which the captain and crew were treated, with a request that steps be taken to recover their private effects, if possible. The wreck has been sold at auction, as it lies, for $200.

HONG KONG.

Dates extend to the 14th Nov. The outward French mail of 27th Sept. arrived on the 8th Nov.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

HONG KONG, Nov. 14, 1872.

We have no important events transpiring. H.E. the Governor pursues the even tenour of his way, and, while by no means unpopular, seems determined to ignore the strong feeling that exists regarding social intercourse with the Chinese. People say that if he wishes to show attention to the leading native merchants—who, it must be remembered, are all of Coolie origin, and in native eyes] rank immeasurably below the lowest yamun runner—he might do so without asking them to meet English ladies and gentlemen. The question is of course one of taste, but the fact is that caste prejudices are not to be overcome in a day, even by so determined a propagandist as H.E. If I am rightly informed he argues from the negro populations he has previously governed: but he overlooks the important fact that the negro looks up to the white man, and feels honoured by his attentions, while the Chinaman looks down upon the European, and accepts even the civilities of a governor as a just tribute to his own superiority. Even merchants who have greatly to do with natives, and who uniformly treat with them at their offices on equal terms, agree that the Governor's experiment is a mistake. It would be different were the Chinamen only contemned by the European. In such a case it would be quite right to try and break down the barriers erected by the latter against a class possessing many good points. But one hardly feels comfortable in showing attentions to people you do not like, and perhaps despise, while conscious that your guest is all the while wondering at your impertinence in thinking yourself good enough company for him.

The China Punch has appeared, but I cannot say that it is a marked success. The drawings are feeble and the jokes mild. It gives, however, promise of something better, as it is well printed. I note that the China Mail office is responsible for the typography, but the gentlemen connected with that establishment deny having any control or interest in the publication whatever, it being executed as a job. Unlike a good many denials of this sort, their disclaimer, is, I believe, true, as I happen to know one or two of the "Punch ring," who confirmed it.

Amateur theatricals have of late been the order of the day. Like all similar affairs, they have been put through at an expense of much time, money, and trouble and have still lacked perfection. Thanks to the breakage of the Northern Cable (it is always getting broken, or stolen, or mislaid, or generally disorganised) the amateurs had a little more time than usual during the week preceding their performance, so that the acting was creditably up to the mark.

Nothing has as yet been heard about the opening of Hainan though instructions are expected daily.

Sir Arthur Kennedy, Lady Kennedy, and Miss Kennedy returned from Macao on the 1st in the Chinese corvette Ta An Lan. As the distinguished passengers left the ship a salute of three guns was fired.

The Advertiser understands that a Rice-Mill Company is about being started, and that the building will be upon the same site as the former mill at West Point, which was burned down a few months ago.

The U.S. Admiral's flagship Alaska arrived in harbour 2nd Nov., when the usual salutes were fired. Admiral Jenkins proceeds to Singapore, there to await the Hartford, on which he will hoist his flag during his tenure of service in these waters.

The following account, duly certified, of the average amount of bank notes in circulation in Hong Kong, during the month ending 31st October, 1872, is published in Saturday's Gazette:—

BANGKOK.

The Siam Advertiser has the following:—

In addition to the usual festivities of the season, in which the Siamese Kings and Government officers take a very prominent part, the Siamese Government has had his Excellency, H. I. C. Hoogeven, his Netherlands Majesty's Ambassador, and the Commander van Trojen, and the officers of H.N.M.'s steam corvette, Vice-Admiral Koopman, to entertain as national guests. The manner in which the Siamese Government has performed this duty has been fully detailed in our previous issues. From these descriptions it is manifest that this reception has been more marked than receptions heretofore given, and much more acceptable to European ideas and tastes. Most of the ridiculous and absurd requisitions, that the Government previously claimed and which foreign Ambassadors yielded in condescension to their weakness, were during the visit of the present Embassy, completely ignored by the Siamese Government. Were it not for the prostrate attitude of the princes and nobles, in the presence of their King at both the public audiences of both the Kings, the entire reception was what the most fastidious European must have commended. "Young Siam," with its manly bearing and progressive tendencies, showed to admirable advantage. "Old Siam," however, provoked irrepressible s iles; its quaintness cannot be praised, viewed from whatever standpoint. Rigid observance of European etiquette alone is at an infinite distance from true civilisation, and the rigid virtue, honesty of purpose and useful intelligence that is its superstructure.

Mr. Charles Twite, mining geologist to the King of Siam, has made two mineral surveys, one of them being to some old-established gold workings at Kabin, seventy five miles E N.E. of the capital, where he found an auriferous quartz lode, in some places howing a width of 35 feet, which he traced for about a mile and a quarter. The other was a land journey of 250 miles, through jungle, to the northern extremity of Siam, close upon British Burmah. Here Mr. Twite found an immense district of gravel, containing gold, but inundated for about eight months of the year. The western districts appear to be very rich in silver, lead, copper, and antimonial ores, as well as iron ores, from which the natives manufacture a very superior iron. Siam requires only capital and energy to develop its important mineral resources.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates extend to the 21st Nov. The outward P. and O. mail of 18th Oct. arrived on 18th Nov. The following summary is from the Straits Times:—

The principal news has been the failure of Messrs. Cheng Tee, Wat Seng and Co., and Ong Ah Soon, Tek Eng and Co., following closely upon that of Joshua and Brother. A meeting of the creditors of these firms was held on the 11th, when the liabilities of Messrs. Cheng Tee, Wat Seng and Co. were found to amount to some $560,000 and their assets, good and bad, to less than half that sum, while the amount likely to be realised by the creditors was only $90,000 to $100,000, besides $40,000 to secured creditors. Messrs. Ong Ah Soon and Co.'s liabilities, roughly estimated, were some $320,000, and their assets about $125,000, out of which it is believed the creditors may get about $27,500, or less than 9 per cent. These and other recent failures led to a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce on the 12th, nominally to consider the present system of credit sales, but there was such a total want of unanimity manifested in the opinions of the members, that the meeting amounted to nothing, and the only conclusion come to was that each individual member of the body would conduct his business to suit himself.

The case against A. R. Joshua, charged with criminal breach of trust, has not yet come on for hearing at the Police-court, he having been remanded until the 25th inst. The Oriental Bank has instituted proceedings against the Mercantile Bank to recover a bill of lading for 280 chests of opium, on which the Oriental Bank had made advances in Calcutta, a draft on Joshua, with documents, being sent down here to the manager of the Oriental Bank for collection. A transhipment of the opium for China took place here, necessitating a new financial arrangement, on the part of Joshua, and a new draft with documents. By some means, which will be elucidated in due course, the new bill of lading got into the possession of the Mercantile Bank without the knowledge or consent of the manager of the Oriental Bank, and was impounded for security against a large debit balance of Joshua with the Mercantile Bank. An injunction has been applied for in the Supreme Court by the Oriental Bank against the Mercantile Bank to prevent the opium being dealt with pending a trial at law, and the result was that the bill of lading was ordered to be deposited with the Accountant-General of the Supreme Court (the Colonial Treasurer), to await a further order of the Court. This affair has created no small amount of acrimonious discussion, and has increased not a little the difficulties of the situation.

Taken altogether, the past three weeks have been the blackest ever witnessed in Singapore. Never before have there been such astounding revelations of sharp practices, kite-flying, and unscrupulous dealing generally. The result is utter distrust, demoralisation, and stagnation in business in the Square, and it is feared, with some reason, that the end is not yet, and perhaps the Square will not be alone in purgatory for its sins. It is hard to say so, but the truth is the truth, and it is well and time that people at home should know it. There cannot be the slightest doubt but that Europeans have themselves in the main to blame for their present trouble. They overtrade and encourage overtrade in the Chinese dealers, who are nothing loath, by giving practically unlimited credit, the large houses trusting to their del credere accounts, and each individual merchant, whether doing a large or small business, trusting to luck or his own sharpness to get any dealer who is becoming shaky, out of his books in time, leaving his neighbours in a hole. All and sundry have had such a lesson read to them in this month of November, 1872, upon this overtrade and credit system, as they never had before, and such as, it is to be hoped, will not be forgotten for some time to come.

The Legislative Council have concluded the labours of the session. The Summary Jurisdiction Bill and the Prisons Bill have been passed, and the Post-office Bill, directed against the Chinese private post-offices, has been withdrawn. The session will be formally closed at Penang, whither his Excellency went on the 16th. At the meeting on the 8th, the Hon. Mr. Shelford gave notice of his intention to ask the Government concerning the disturbances at Salangore, whereupon his Excellency stated that Tunkoo dia Oodin did not appear to be able to preserve the peace of the territory, but was expecting reinforcements from Pahang. Later private advices announce that the men from Pahang had arrived in the territory and gained an important post, and Tunkoo dia Oodin was sending troops to effect a junction with them, when they would be able to make good head against their enemies.

A special criminal session was held at Malacca on the 11th, to try Overree, late assistant treasurer, and Fernandez, late chief clerk in the Malacca Treasury, for embezzlement of upwards of $9,000, discovered through a surprise survey of their department some time back. The case was finished the first day, and the prisoners were sentenced each to seven years' transportation.

The only arrival via the Suez Canal has been the Menelaus on the 11th from Liverpool. The departures have been the Patroclus and Gordon Castle for London on the 12th, Godavery on the 19th for Marseilles, and Alma for Toulon, and Surprise for New York on the 20th.

From Labuan we learn by private advices that small-pox was spreading all over Brunei, and that no measures were taken to arrest its progress. Captain Ross, of the Simson, on his last trip to Labuan, took up with him a handsome little steamer for the Sultan of Brunei. She is about forty to fifty tons register, and cost $16,500. The s. s. Cleator, Captain Paxton, escorted the little new arrival from Labuan to Brunei. H.M.S. Hornet, Captain Osborn, left Labuan for this port via Sarawak on the 5th, and, we believe, has brought down, as passenger, the Rev. W. D. Beard, the late and last colonial chaplain of Labuan, whose office has been abolished. The Hornet has returned from Sarawak, having left that port on the 14th.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

TIENTSIN.—A general improvement in Piece Goods is reported from the North, but the ruling rates were considerably under those current at Shanghai. The close proximity of winter was the assigned cause of the activity prevailing when the last steamer left Tientsin. Stocks were light, and the dealers seemed desirous of laying in their winter requirements while the season was open to them. Prices were gradually creeping up, and higher quotations are looked for by the next advices.

HANKOW.—A fair amount of business had been done during the fortnight, but the demand had not been so active as was anticipated. In Grey Shirtings quotations showed a marked improvement, but in other staples there was little change to note. Woollens had been in very limited request, and sales had been of quite a retail character. Cotton Goods: Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., show a further advance of 3 candareens per piece, and stocks were in small compass. 8¼ lbs. had also advanced in value to about the same extent, owing more to the influence of Shanghai advices, than to any active demand. Ordinary chops were in request from Tls. 1.81 to 1.83 per piece, and Eagles also were enquired for at Tls. 1.86 to 1.88. No sales of 9 lbs. 10/12 oz. reported, and quotations nominally unaltered. White Shirtings: Sales on a most meagre scale at about previous rates. T-Cloths: Small inquiry for 6 lbs. but little done, importers asking higher rates than dealers were prepared to offer. In 7 lbs. fair business. Quotations without change. 8lbs. placed at Tls. 1.69 to 1.70, the latter being the quotation for Dewhurst's M.T. chop. A few hundred pieces Blue Dragon ticket sold at 1.75, but no quantity could be placed at this figure. Drills: More active, and prices fully maintained. Jeans: Best sold at Tls. 2.20, but the demand very small, and quotations nominal. Woollens and Worsteds: Long Ells. Not a single transaction reported. Camlets very quiet and weaker. Medium Cloths without inquiry. Lastings in moderate request and best assortments worth Tls. 11.60. Figured Orleans: No sales. Metals—Lead: No sales reported—but quotations one mace higher, Tls. 4.70 to 4.80. Quicksilver: Sales at Tls. 80.50.

CHINKIANG.—Advancing prices in Shanghai were having a corresponding effect at this place, and by last accounts the holders of all kinds of Plain Cottons were demanding a still further rise in value for their stocks. Drills had been quoted at a fair profit on Shanghai rates.

SHANGHAI.—Fancy Cottons and Woollen Goods had been dull of sale throughout the week; but the market for the principal Plain Cotton fabrics had been quite excited, and, notwitstanding the intervention of the autumn holidays, an extensive business had been done in them at, in some instances, a marked improvement in quotations. Grey Shirtings: Tientsin advices of a more favourable tenor had been received, and dealers and speculators had bought large quantities, paying up to Tls. 1.88 for common Lie Eagles, Tls. 1.90 for Collie's Lion and Dewhurst's Eagles. 7-lbs. had been in great request at Tls. 1.70 to 1.71½, for very ordinary; there was almost nothing in stock, and the trade had shown considerable eagerness to secure such parcels as were offering in vessels expected. Best Dewhurst's 7 lbs. were saleable at Tls. 1.73 per piece, but holders were demanding Tls. 1.75. No change in heavy Shirtings. White Shirtings advanced 5 cands. Good to best 64 Reeds, Tls. 2.05 to 2.15. Lower Reeds improving, but finer qualities not wanted, and the quotations for them nominal. T-Cloths: Great irregularity still prevailed, but, on the whole, the market had improved. 7 lbs. best Mexicans sold at Tls. 1.50 up to Tls. 1.55; ruling rates, Tls. 1.50 for Mendel's Hand and Branch; Tls. 1.52 to 1.53 for Collie's Chop Dollar, and Tls. 1.54 to 1.55 for finest Stags and Pagodas. Dewhurst's M.T. placed at Tls. 1.47 to 1.48; T. at Tls. 1.32 to 1.35. 6 lbs., Tls. 1.17 to 1.20 for fair ordinary cloth. 8 lbs., Tls. 1.73 for

Dewhursts M.T., and Tls. 1.62 to 1.70 for other chops. Drills, Jeans, and Sheetings had not attracted much notice. Drills: Dutch and English, Tls. 3.01 to 3.05, and Tls. 3.04 to 3.16. Jeans: English, Tls. 2.07 to 2.10. Sheetings: English, 14 to 15 lbs., Tls. 2.82 to 2.97. Fancy Cottons: Dyed Brocades in demand at Tls. 2.90 for best assorted, and Tls. 3.00 for Gentian; Velveteens, 18-inches to 26-inches in better favour; Tls. 2.23 for fair White Brocades has been refused; Turkey Red Shirtings and Black Velvets taken to a small extent. Woollens: Market extremely quiet for nearly every description. Metals: Market for Iron of all kinds depressed, and few sales had transpired. Lead: No demand, and rates unchanged.

FOOCHOW.—Grey Shirtings were nominally quoted at $2.70 per piece T-Cloths: No sales. Price, $2.25 nominal. Lead: 505 pigs reported as sold to teamen at $6.75 per picul.

HONG KONG.—Business in imports had been upon a small scale. A rather better inquiry had been manifested, but this had not favourably affected prices. The general impression amongst the dealers was that values had seen their lowest, but until more confidence should be manifested amongst importers and firmness exhibited, no great improvement was looked for. Cotton Yarn: In 16/24s transactions had been confined to the lower qualities; best makes weak owing to absence of demand; 28/32s in small stock and asked for, but no advance obtained. Sales of 38/42s very restricted; common chops in fair supply but favourite marks scarce. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs. in slight speculative request, and a moderate business done at $2.10 for best chops; 8.4 lbs. quite neglected; 10 lbs., better inquiry at former prices. White Shirtings: Still stagnant. Grey T-Cloths: A few transactions in 6 lbs. common reported at about $1.58 to 1.59 for Dewhurst's T.; 7 lbs. of similar chop neglected. All Mexican qualities in a very depressed state. Grey Drills: English, no sales are reported. Prices nominally unaltered; American, although not in stock, quoted about 10c. lower; Dutch weaker; English Jeans unsaleable. Fancy Goods: Supplies of White Spots and White Brocades restricted, but sales difficult to effect; Dyed Spots and Dyed Brocades in trivial demand; Dyed Damasks unchanged; T. R. Shirtings taken for Japan; Assorted Chintzes and Gentian Twills disposed of at former values; T. R. Handkerchiefs out of request, but Brown asked for to a small extent; Velvets and Velveteens shipped to Japan; prices firm at a slight advance. Woollens and Worsteds: Broad, Medium, and Habit Cloths all difficult to sell, although holders were willing to accept a reduction upon last quotations; Scarlet Spanish Stripes of HH and CPH chops wanted at previous prices; Assorted without alteration; Blankets could not be sold, as arrivals had been upon a large scale; Long Ells, Scarlet declined 2c. to 3c. per piece; Assorted getting into moderate stock; Camlets in small stock, but rates are above the ideas of dealers. Lastings could not be quitted; Crape Lastings not asked for; Figured Lustres, inquiry very slight; Plain Lustres of good chop saleable. Metals: Nail Rod Iron declined 20 to 40 cents per picul; Bar out of request; Hoop, fair arrivals and a fall of 25 cents established. Round, wanted; Iron Wire showed a considerable decline; Steel maintained former rates: Quicksilver and Yellow Metal steady; Lead, owing to advance in England improved, and large speculative purchases made, at $5.90 to $6 per picul for cash, and $6.05 to $6.10 per picul to arrive.

CANTON.—Lead: Rates had given way slightly, transactions, however, had been limited, and stocks were unaltered. Quotations, sales and stocks—Lead: Common quality, $6.25 to 6.30; W.B. quality, $6.50 to 6.55; Sales, common quality, 600 piculs. Stocks, 3,000 piculs. W.B. quality, sales none. Stock 600 piculs.

BATAVIA.—The market for Cotton Goods had been in a depressed state, and as the wet season was setting in there was no prospect of any improvement. The business transacted had been on a most restricted scale, and the sales effected had been so few and so insignificant in character as to render it extremely difficult to furnish reliable quotations. For all descriptions of plain staples there was an entire absence of demand, while the Mahomedan New Year was approaching without materially improving the position of Fancy Goods, as dearness of rice prevented natives from making their customary purchases for the festive season.

SINGAPORE.—The market for all imports had been very dull, and only a small business had been done in Piece Goods, Grey Goods especially having been very difficult to place. There was little change in prices, but to move a quantity holders seemed ready to accept lower rates. Grey Thirtings had been in poorer demand. T-Cloths of all weights remained very quiet and sales were unimportant. White Shirtings: Medium and fine makes had been in fair demand. Grey Yarn had been neglected, and few sales had been effected; prices were weaker. Woollens were in little inquiry. There was no business doing in Iron, buyers holding off in expectation of seeing prices decline, in consequence of telegrams received from England quoting lower rates. Yellow Metal: There had been almost no inquiry, and sales were very trifling. Copper Sheathing: The heavier sizes, 18 to 30 oz., had come into better request, but there were none in stock; it was difficult, however, to obtain remunerative rates. Pig Lead continued dull and slow of sale. Coals: Cardiff were in good inquiry, but very scarce; West Hartley difficult to move, unless at a reduction in price.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

KIUKIANG.—No settlements made.

HANKOW.—The market continued to be well supplied for the advanced season of the year; late arrivals had consisted for the most part of Shantun leaf, and lower rates had been accepted for this grade towards the close. The reported settlements had been 5,496 chests, and reshipments to Shanghai about 2,000 chests.

SHANGHAI.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer, and Co.'s Report is as follows:—Black: Our season is so far advanced and the business lately transacted of such a limited character that we have but few remarks to make thereon. Settlements since the 24th Oct. amount to 5,800 chests and 7,250 half-chests. Arrivals have been on a par with sales, leaving the stock at 5,915 chests and 14,900 half-chests, equal to 13,400 chests, against 13,000 chests on hand at same time last year. Late arrivals are nearly all common, beneath the grade of common Black leaf. Some purchases of these have been made at 9¼d. to 9½d. Chops of rather better quality have been taken at 10¾d. to 1s. 0¼d. Common to fair Hohow at 1s. 0¾d. to 1s. 2d., and Oopack and Ningchows of similar grade at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3¼d., a few small parcels rather preferable, bringing 1s. 4d. to 1s. 5½d. We quote rates as last advised, the market closing with more inquiry. Green: We have to advise large transactions, settlements and shipments during the fortnight aggregating 53,500 half-chests and 7,880 boxes. English firms have been the principal operators; we therefore presume that a large proportion of the Tea settled is intended for the London market. We do not quote rates any easier, for although prices have ranged somewhat lower, we make a proportionate decline in quality. Stock is reduced to 54,000 half chests, against 43,000 half-chests at same date in 1871. Export to England is 2½ millions, and to America 1¾ million pounds in excess of last year. Prices have ranged, for Pingsueys from Tls. 38 to 45, and from Tls. 32 to 45 for country Teas of average proportion, some fine lines selling at Tls. 53 to 60, Shanghai packed are quoted at Tls. 27 to 39.2.5 per picul proportion.

FOOCHOW.—Congous had continued in fair demand, and as settlements had been greatly in excess of receipt prices had been supported. Some 3,400 half-chests of fair to superior cargo Oolongs were settled on the 1st and 2nd Nov., on a basis of Tls. 20.3 to 21.3 o.b. for good cargo, followed on the 5th by the settlement of 850 packages on the same basis; and since then about 21,300 half-chests had found buyers, in which were included three fine strings purchased at Tls. 23.55 and 26.05, proportion price, or about five taels under the average cost of the transactions which took place two months previously. These fine strings were on a basis of about Tls. 17.8 to 19.8 o.b. for good cargo, hence the necessity for some irregularity in the quotations for cargo grades. Many of the holders of fine strings refuse to submit to the reduction established in the foregoing instance.

AMOY.—The Oolong market remained quiet until within a few days of the close, when buying was again commenced on a basis of prices about $2 below those previously quoted; some 15,000 half-chests had been settled, leaving a stock of 30,000, with about 6,000 half-chests more to come in to complete the anticipated supply for the season. Fair cargo Tea was quoted $18 to 19, and good cargo $21 to 22 per picul. The s.s. Surprise sailed on the 10th Nov. for New York, and the British barque Thracian was engaged full for that port at £2 15s. per ton of 40 cubic feet.

CANTON.—Small settlements made, and no material alteration in the market. Scented Orange Pekoes had been obtainable on slightly easier terms, but Scented Capers had not changed in value.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—A steady business had been done throughout the fortnight, resulting in the settlement of 1,500 bales. Prices were Tls. 5 higher for medium to good Tsatlees, last purchases having been Choping's No. 3 Chicks Tls. 580, "Dragon Chop" Tls. 572½, "Gold Lion" Tls. 545, "Blue Flag" Tls. 520, "Blue Elephant" Tls. 515, and Red Peacock Tls. 495. Common Tsatlees, being in full supply and difficult of sale at home, were comparatively neglected. In Hainins no business had taken place. The Long Reels on offer were too inferior to induce purchases, and the same remark applied to most of the Laeyangs. Arrivals had kept pace with settlements, but amongst the stock there was a large quantity of Yellow Silk. Settlements for the fortnight, Chinas, 1,500 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 1872, 41,800 bales; 1871, 38,000 bales; 1870, 23,550 bales. Comparative unsold stock on this market on the 7th November, 1872, 4,500 bales; 1871, 4,500 bales; 1870, 4,500 bales.

CANTON.—The market was very quiet and uninteresting, it being the interval between the finish of the fifth crop and the arrival of the sixth in bulk; rates were slightly easier, with a slack demand. About 100 bales of the sixth crop had arrived in the market, which proved, however, to be of but poor quality; the supplies arriving later may be expected to be better. Settlements during the fortnight amounted to 120 bales, of which some 73 went forward by the last French mail. Stock was estimated at 2,000 bales Tsatlee reel, 60 bales Loongkong, 50 bales Cumchook and Lacklow, and 300 of inferior kinds. Rereels still remained quiet, and we hear of no fresh contracts. Prices were unchanged, and extra fine Lacklow is scarce.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, DEC. 18.

The Minister of the War Department has won the battle, or rather the fact that a Ministerial crisis was threatened has saved the War Budget, which was carried by 46 against 32 votes. This shows a very powerful minority. General van Stirum, who has shown himself a good military man, has not had much success as Minister, and general opinion is in accordance with what some papers say, that he is not at all fit for his post. He is no debater, and has to read his defence, he misunderstands every speaker, and in a word makes a deplorable figure in Parliament. Notwithstanding that he asks for his department a credit of seventeen millions, that is three millions more than last year, this money would have been granted without much opposition if he had only stated a definite plan to reorganise our army and our means of defence. But this he has not done. On the contrary, a good many persons fear that these seventeen millions will go the same way as the 200 millions, which have been thrown away during the last fourteen years in so-called "improvements" of our defences. Thrown away is the correct expression. It was clearly proved during the debate that the actual state of our army, and of our fortresses, renders us simply defenceless against any attack from Foreign Powers A Liberal member endeavoured to force the Minister to lay before the members as soon as possible a plan for the reorganisation of our fortress-system. He proposed such an amendment as would enable the Chamber to refuse the money asked for, only a partial improvement of the line of defence Utrecht-Amsterdam. His proposal was, however, rejected after a very sharp debate, in which we learn that a "Fortress Bill" is on its way to the Chamber, and it is to reach the members in conjunction with a Bill to abolish the system of "substitution" in the army (a measure to which the majority of the Chamber is opposed) But these are only promises, and probably months will elapse before we hear anything definite. Notwithstanding that the end of the year is so close at hand, and that the Chamber is still involved in the Budget debates, a day has been lost in discussions upon a Bill to alter the East India Budget of 1872—a mere question of form, but which created a warm and sharp discussion, of which the issue was that Mr van Kirkwyke proposed to impeach the ex-Minister of the Colonies, Mr. de Waal, because he had withheld some East India millions from the Dutch treasury, and placed them at the disposal of the Colonial Government. The majority disapproved such a proposal, considering that there were no reasons for applying the article of our fundamental law which refers to Ministerial responsibility. After this digression the Chamber resumed the debate upon the Budget of the Financial Department.

A general lull prevails on the Bourse, and very few transactions take place ; prices, however, are well maintained, but there is no speculative demand. The money market is very tight ; the weekly account of the Bank shows, it is true, some improvement, but in the open market money is dearer. In my last letter I told you that the Rotterdam Commercial Society had laid before the members of our Town Council some documents, by which it was proposed to purchase 400,000 cubic meters of land on the opposite bank of the river, where, according to a fixed plan, a new town should be built, as there is no room for extension on this side of the river. The town, however, has only at disposal for the realisation of this project an amount of f.3,600,000, which is not sufficient. The society offers a sum of f.2,600,000 for the land, and the town funds will then be sufficient to build a very considerable part of the new town, with its harbours and commercial establishments. This project creates much interest here, but I regret to say that it meets in the newspapers with much opposition, in the first place, because the Municipality assigns its rights over to the company, which, it is feared, will not study the interest of our city. On the 28th of this month this important question must be decided.

I have already told you that a direct line of British steamers between our port and Java will be established next year. I now hear that the steamer Wyberton will be put on the berth here (or in the event of frost at Nieuwe Diep), about the 14th of January, to sail on the 25th of that month for Batavia, Samarang, and Sourabaya, direct through the Suez Canal. Subsequently a steamer will be despatched from our port regularly every six weeks. It is also stated that a new line of steamers will be inaugurated in the month of March, between Rotterdam and New York. From Amsterdam I hear more bad rumours. The number of houses stopping payment increases, the main cause being over speculation in cotton. It seems that the brokers have drugged everyone with this article, so much so, that I find among many important commercial houses the proprietor of a café chantant, whose estate shows a deficit of f.75,000. It seems that private liquidation is being carried out with good success in many cases. I fear that there will be many losers in Java.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

The business done in Colonial Produce since my last letter has been of little importance, and bears evidence of the approaching close of the year, in the face of which transactions are, as usual, mainly confined to purchases for the hand to-mouth wants of retailers. Prices are in general mainly supported by the forbearance of holders to press sales. Cotton, Coffee, and Tobacco are very firm.

COFFEE has relapsed into a very quiet position, but prices are firmly maintained in the proportion of 48¼c. for good ordinary Java. Sales have been closed of the following shipments of private importations :—375 bags Bali, ex Æolus ; 400 bags, ex County of Bute ; 475 bags Java, ex Elisabeth Maria ; 1,110 bags do. W.I., cured by Wyberton ; 2,182 bags do., ex Electra, at 45½c.

SUGAR.—No change is to be noticed in the market, but I have no transactions to report. Both holders and buyers keep backward, and no revival in the demand is looked forward to until after the turn of the year.

TEA.—Without anything doing, in anticipation of the public sale advertised here for the 19th inst., of 351/4, 5,813/12, and 2,135/16 chests China, ex steamer Duna from Foochow, valued by the brokers at from 83c. to 140c. ; in addition to which 100/12 chests China Congou will also be brought to the hammer. The business done in our market has been mainly confined to the sale of 117/4 chests China Pekoe, ex Cheops, being a portion of the lots bought in at the public auction of the 25th October last.

TOBACCO.—Several parcels of sundry marks have found buyers at prices which did not transpire.

SPICES are very quiet. In the total absence of demand for export and speculation the business doing is confined to the requirements for consumptive wants.

RICE.—There is no demand, and prices are barely supported.

RATTANS without anything doing.

TIN.—The demand remains inactive. Banca has sold for usual prompt at f.86¼ to f.85½ and Billiton on the spot at f.81.

INDIGO (JAVA).—There is no change in the market ; the article is quiet. Manila : The 725 kilograms offered for public sale are valued at f.30 to f.35 per half kilo., according to quality.

COTTON.—An animated demand has prevailed for this article, and sales have been making of North American, Nov.-Jan. shipment, at advancing prices. East Indian does not attract attention.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

TRAUTMAN V. LAY.

The plaintiff in this case (which was tried on the 17th inst. before Chief Justice Bovill and a special jury) was a merchant in the City and also at Shanghai, and the defendant was formerly Chief Inspector of Chinese Customs at Peking, and in 1867 became commissioner for the Japanese Government, and was employed to raise a loan of £1,000,000 for them for the purpose of carrying out some railway works. There was an agreement to employ the plaintiff as agent in this transaction, and he also had a power of attorney to act for the defendant. Things went on upon this footing for some time, but on the 3rd of June the defendant wrote to the plaintiff—"Permit me by this to withdraw from you my power of attorney as to Japan, dated 5th February, which has become unnecessary by an undertaking on the part of the Oriental Banking Corporation to act as my agent in all monetary matters connected with the Japanese Government, and the friendly relations between the Government and the Oriental Bank, you will at once see, make this a most desirable step." The plaintiff claimed in this action damages upon the ground that he had been improperly dismissed from his employment as agent, and one of the questions raised upon the record was whether the defendant was or not justified in dismissing the plaintiff. Sir John Karslake, Mr. H. Lloyd, Q.C., Mr. M'Intyre, Q.C., and Mr. A. L. Smith appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Giffard, Q.C., Mr. Staveley Hill, Q.C., and Mr. Nasmith for the defendant.

Much correspondence was read; the plaintiff was examined at length, and much discussion took place, the case occupying a day and a half. In the end an arrangement was come to between the counsel that there should be a verdict for the plaintiff for the damages in the declaration, subject to an agreement which had been come to between the parties which was not made public. The costs in the suit are very heavy.

COURT OF CHANCERY.

DIVORCE SUIT.—HOWELL V. HOWELL.

An application was made to Vice-Chancellor Malins by counsel on behalf of Mr. Howell, the late secretary to the P. and O. Company, to restrain the defendant, Mrs. Howell, from taking proceedings in the Divorce Court to obtain alimony from her husband, the plaintiff. The parties were married in 1865; and, unhappy differences having arisen between them, a deed of separation was executed in 1869, by which Mr. Howell undertook to pay to his wife the annual sum of £400 so long as he should continue secretary to the Company; and, upon his ceasing to retain that appointment, then he was to pay her the sum of £100 a year, and Mrs. Howell by the same deed covenanted that she would not molest the plaintiff, or endeavour to seek restitution of conjugal rights, or seek to obtain from him a larger allowance than that which was provided by the deed of separation. Mr. Howell had now ceased to occupy the position of secretary to the Company, and he had proposed to allow his wife the annual sum of £250, being £150 more than was provided for by the deed; but Mrs. Howell, not being satisfied with this sum, had taken proceedings in the Divorce Court to enforce a larger amount of alimony, which it was submitted was a breach of the covenant contained in the deed.

The Vice-Chancellor made an interim order for an injunction to extend over the next motion day.

The Thetis, screw corvette, 13 guns, 1,322 tons, 350-horse power, which, as we recently stated, is to be commissioned for the China station, is now being prepared for sea at Devonport Dockyard. We understand that the Thetis will relieve the Zebra on the station.

It is officially announced that the despatch-vessel Salamis will be paid off at Hong Kong, and be recommissioned by Lieutenant the Hon. A. C. Littleton, whose appointment to the vessel we noticed a few weeks since.

By telegram from Singapore we learn that the troop-ship Adventure arrived there on the 19th inst., from Hong Kong, having on board the head-quarters and right wing of the 1st Battalion, 10th Regiment, which has been removed from Hong Kong.

The Mosquito, gun-boat, reached Gibraltar on the 18th inst., en route for the China station.

A vacancy has occurred on the list of officers in receipt of naval pensions in consequence of the death of Retired Captain J. R. Fittock. The deceased officer, who expired at his residence at New-cross, in his eightieth year, was promoted to the rank of master in the Surly, 10, cutter, at the Nore in 1827, and served in the Blenheim, 60, during the operations in China, from 1840 to 1842, and was present at the taking of the Bogue forts, Canton, Amoy, Chusan, and Ningpo. He was transferred to home service in 1855, but went again to China in 1856, on special service. Was promoted to retired captain in 1858, and he obtained a naval pension in 1863. The death is also recorded of another naval officer who served in China, Commander T. B. Christopher, who died last week at Castletown, in the Isle of Man, at the age of sixty. He served throughout the naval operations in China, where he was nominated in 1841 acting lieutenant of the Blenheim, and was subsequently confirmed in that appointment and transferred to the Herald He returned to England in 1843, having received a medal for his services in China.

Major F. J. Hutchison, half pay late 64th foot, recently returned from Ceylon, where he acted for five years as deputy assistant quartermaster general, has been selected to succeed Major Griffiths, Royal Artillery, as garrison instructor at Devonport. Major Hutchison entered the Army Dec. 22, 1848, and became Major April 1, 1870. He served with the 64th Foot in the Persian campaign of 1856, including the storm and capture of Reshire, and surrender of Bushire (medal with clasp). Served also in the Indian mutiny campaign, including the action of Kerkeroulie, capture of Bareilly, attack of Mohomdee, and affairs of Shahjehanpore and Bunnai (medal).

Captain Hewett, V.C., who commanded the Ocean, the late flag-ship of the China station, has been selected by the Lords of the Admiralty to succeed Captain John E. Commerell, V.C., C.B., as Commodore of the second class and Commanding-in-Chief Her Majesty's ships on the Cape of Good Hope and West Coast of Africa station. Captain Hewett will commission the iron-built, wood-sheathed, unarmoured, screw corvette Volage, 3,078 tons, 4,532-horse power, at Portsmouth, to carry his Commodore's broad pendant, and to relieve the Rattlesnake, now carrying the pendant of Commodore Commerell.

THE IMPERIAL MARRIAGE.

FOR the first time in the history of China, except for the brief space when the Allied flags waved over the An-ting Gate, Peking has been invaded by the ubiquitous "Special Correspondent." The marriage of a potentate who rules over three hundred million of the human race, who exercises jurisdiction over a territory as extensive as any half-dozen kingdoms of the whole world, and about whom so very little is known as is of the Emperor of CHINA, was sure to attract attention. The enormous wealth at his command, and the position of lofty supremacy which he occupies in the eyes of his subjects, naturally gave rise to the belief that on the occasion of his marriage his capital would be the scene of a display of Oriental state and splendour befitting his rank, as the most powerful sovereign in the East. But the result only furnishes an additional proof of how vain it is for the uninitiated to attempt to form any idea by analogy with ourselves of the probable conduct of Chinamen on any given occasion, or of the motives which guide them. To the Celestial mind that honour which hedges about a king is to be preserved only by his remaining in seclusion; to be exposed to the public gaze in the streets of Peking would, even if surrounded by all the paraphernalia of Oriental State, be destructive to the sanctity with which every true Chinaman is taught to look upon the "Son of Heaven," and would excite as much astonishment among the Pekingese as would the sight of the QUEEN elbowing her way along the pavements of the Strand at the most crowded time of the day, among ourselves.

The only portion of the marriage ceremony which took place outside the Palace walls was partly hidden under the cover of night, and was to be peeped at only through holes made in the paper windows of the upper story of a squalid opium shop. But though the correspondent has little to tell of what he saw, he has much to say of what he heard. His letter, which appeared in the Daily News of the 16th, is full of the gossip which is floating about Peking on the subject of the marriage. Like most gossip, a good deal of this is, of course, merely vague rumour, but there is doubtless much—and it must be confessed that the picture it presents to us of the Imperial alliance is neither a pleasing nor a hopeful one—that is true. There is the entire absence of all right of free choice on the part of the EMPEROR in the selection of the bride; there is the natural reluctance felt by the eligible young ladies of China to enter the Imperial prison, which is bounded by the yellow-tiled walls of the Palace, and there is the foreshadowing of the degraded life which awaits even the most lofty inmate of an Eastern harem.

ONE RESULT OF THE "MARIA LUZ" CASE.

OUT of evil sometimes comes good, as has been proved in the case of the captive coolies on board the Maria Luz, whose misfortunes have induced the Chinese Government to take cognisance, under the terms of a treaty, of judicial proceedings in a foreign country, and have roused them to an energetic sense of their responsibility on behalf of their countrymen when under the weight of calamity. It will be remembered that as soon as it was reported in China that a Court of Inquiry was about to sit at Yokohama on the case of the Maria Luz coolies, CHEN, the magistrate of the Mixed Court at Shanghai, was sent over to represent his Government at the trial. On his arrival at Yokohama he was treated with the greatest courtesy by the Japanese officials, and one of the principal palaces of the city—that in which the Duke of EDINBURGH was lodged—was placed at his disposal. While the inquiry lasted the coolies were housed and fed at the expense of the Japanese Government; and when the decision of the Court declared them to be free men they were handed over to CHEN, who returned to Shanghai with his 228 clients, doubtless much pleased with the reception he had met with in the land of the Rising Sun. Fortunately the courtesy and humanity shown by the Japanese in this case seem to have made a real impression on the Chinese mandarins; for we hear that not only were the rescued coolies taken, on landing, under the immediate protection of the Shanghai authorities until such time as a ship could be chartered to take them to their native province of Kwang-tung, but that orders had been issued that passages should be provided for forty-five Japanese sailors, who had been wrecked near Chefoo, to their native land, at the expense of the Chinese Government. Both nations are to be congratulated on the result of this first post-treaty international communication, and it leads us to hope that the civilising example set by Japan will not be without its effect on the conservative instincts of the Chinese.

CEYLON.

IF any of the electors of Chelsea are subscribers to the Banffshire Journal they must have been highly amused by the quiet way in which the "travellers' tales" of the Republican baronet were demolished by Mr. ALEXANDER BROWN, of Kandy, Ceylon, in his lecture at the County Hall. It is on information of this sterling kind, which is drawn from experience, and free from the taint of sensationalism, and bookmaking, that the British public have, in their collective character, mainly to rely. Mr. BROWN has entitled himself to the gratitude of his countrymen by devoting an interval in his visit home to the explanation of the true condition and constitution of Ceylon. If he would add to the benefit already conferred, he has only to publish the information, contained in his lecture, in a form in which it is likely to be widely circulated, and in which it is certain to do an infinity of good. There are a score of periodicals whose editors would welcome such valuable and closely-packed information as that with which Mr. BROWN has refuted the misstatements of the ex-editor of the Athenæum.

As for the pith and substance of the information which Mr. BROWN gave his townsmen, they are already too-well known among our readers to require recapitulation. Ceylon is simply the most prosperous colony that England possesses; its prosperity has been attained in a shorter time than was ever equalled elsewhere; its industry has been conducted by free labour; and, in forty years, the island has been converted from a mere military dependency into a colony which, besides not costing the mother country one farthing, has created a commerce with her merchants of ten millions sterling per annum. Much of this amazing progress must no doubt be ascribed to the fertility of the soil; much to the situation of the island; and much more to the energy of the residents, determined to develop the resources of the country in the right way. Much also must fairly attach to the fortunate appointment of such Governors as Sir HERCULES ROBINSON and Mr. GREGORY. Only one "bad debt" stands on the Cingalese ledger—their account with the Home Government. Surprising as the progress of our friends in Ceylon has been in the last few years, they may feel a melancholy pride in the reflection that, however great the results of their own exertions have proved to be, they might have been immeasurably quickened and increased if the Colonial-office had not been deaf to their representations, and blind to their requirements. But what the Colonial-office failed to do for them they manfully undertook to achieve for themselves—and did it. In such hands as theirs the improvements that still require to be effected—the Paumben Channel, the formation of harbours at Colombo and Galle, and the extension of the railways—are sure to be carried out in spite of the neglect of a Secretary of State who ought to have perceived, years ago, that Ceylon was the most wealthy and promising dependency in his department.

WE have to report another defection from the Consular Service, and we may expect many more will find that "they can better themselves." Mr. MCKEAN, who joined the Consular Service in 1865, and who was for some time stationed as accountant to H.M. Legation at Peking, before being sent as assistant to the Consulate at Newchwang, has, we learn, resigned his appointment in Her MAJESTY'S Service, and accepted the position of English Instructor at the School of Languages at Peking. In this capacity he succeeds Mr. M. J. O'BRIEN, who was also an assistant in the Consular Service, who retires from the post to take an appointment in the Chinese Customs. In the present condition and prospects of the Consular Service it is not surprising if the junior members, and especially the more active and promising among them, should endeavour to seek a career elsewhere than in the service of the British Government.

THE report of an action, TRAUTMAN v. LAY, will be found in another column. As this action arose out of our recent new relations with the Japanese Government as borrowers in the English market, and as it appears that that Government had in the first instance, by the edicts read in Court, empowered Mr. LAY to raise a loan of a million sterling, and by its subsequent edict had terminated its connection with Mr. LAY, it is greatly to be regretted that the form which the case took excluded the possibility of that thorough elucidation of Mr. LAY'S connection with the Government which would have thrown light upon a state of affairs at present incomprehensible.

THE Netherlands India Steam Company will, we understand, commence next April or May to run a steamer from Batavia to Australia and back, calling at the principal ports of Adelaide, Melbourne, Sydney, and Brisbane, and returning via Torres Straits, or by Cape Leeuwin according to the season. The Company is supported in this service by a small subsidy from the Dutch Government, is bound to make five voyages in each year, and has liberty to call at intermediate ports, both in going and returning, so that the steamers will possibly call at Fremantle, in Western Australia, and at Timor (Kcepang), if inducement offers.

WE understand that the French Government is occupied at the present moment in the organisation of an expedition to explore the river Tong-kin and the province of Yunan; the command of the vessel appointed for this duty has been given to Lieutenant DELAPORTE. A scientific mission is also charged with the exploration to the centre of China; this latter is placed under the superintendence of M. DARBY DE TIERSAINT, French Consul at Canton, and is also organised and assisted by the Marine Department.

THE Consecration of the Rev. W. A. RUSSELL as Bishop of North China was performed by the Archbishop of CANTERBURY on Sunday, the 15th inst. A full account of the ceremony will be found in another column. A correspondent in our last issue called attention to the impolicy of giving so wide a name to the appointment as "North China," and it is to be feared that mischief will crop up at some future day on this ground. Nothing is decided at present as to a Bishop for Victoria, Hong Kong.

THE Crown Agents for the Colonies have engaged for the Hong Kong Government twenty men from the Metropolitan police force, at a salary of $40 per month. These men will be provided with a passage to Hong Kong by one of HOLT'S steamers in January; should they serve five years and give satisfaction, they will be provided with a passage home. Mr. CREAGH, the Deputy-Superintendent at Hong Kong, who has been on a visit to this country, has, we believe, approved the men selected.

THE Japanese Ambassadors, with their Secretaries and suite, left London on the 16th inst. for Paris, where they were received by special delegates of the French Government, including Baron OUTREY, and quartered at the Hotel on the Champs Elysee, lately occupied by the Turkish Ambassador. Their stay in Paris will probably extend over two months.

THE Great Eastern has now on board nearly 2,000 miles of telegraph cable, which has been contracted for by the Telegraph Construction Company with the French Atlantic Telegraph Company, to be laid next June, between a point at the Land's-End and New York, touching at Halifax. This cable will be connected with special land lines, or underground wires, so as to carry the messages at once into the city of New York.

WE understand that the Governor of Yedo, JASHIE KIMONASA YURI, and K. IWAMI returned to Yokohama by the last mail. Mr. YURI has been making inquiries respecting municipal government, police, and other regulations in cities, in order to avail himself of any useful measures for the government of the city of Yedo.

THE directors of the P. and O. Company have arranged with the various railway companies to grant through tickets to passengers by their vessels, to Venice and Brindisi. This will be greatly appreciated, as much uncertainty and annoyance has been experienced hitherto.

Advices from Australia mention that Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha was at Sydney, and was to proceed from there to China, accompanied by his brother. The first cargo of Japanese produce, consisting of rice, salt, and bricks, arrived at Sydney on the 5th of October.

THE CONSECRATION OF THE BISHOP OF NORTH CHINA.

The ceremony of consecrating the Bishop for North China was performed at Westminster Abbey by the Archbishop of Canterbury, together with the Bishops for Mauritius and Hudson's Bay, on Sunday, the 15th inst. The Archbishop was assisted by the Bishops of London and Rochester and Sierra Leone, with Bishops Claughton (late of Colombo), Anderson, Ryan, and McIlvaine, U.S. The newly-appointed Bishops are the Rev. Peter Roys-ton (formerly of Trinity College, Cambridge, and late Resident Tutor of the Church Missionary College at Islington), for the Mauritius; the Rev. J. Hordern for the Hudson's Bay District; and the Rev. W. A. Russell for North China. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Miller, Vicar of Greenwich.

At eleven o'clock the Bishops intended to perform the service entered the choir and proceeded to the Sacrarium. The Archbishop opened the service, the Bishop of Rochester and the Bishop of London following. The preacher, Canon Miller, was then conducted to the pulpit, and took for his text Acts xv., 26 v., "Men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."

He began by pointing out what he considered a defect in our Prayer-book, namely, that there were no special prayers for such an occasion as that they were met to celebrate; he thought he might say this without any feeling of disloyalty. Much and highly as he venerated the Prayer-book, he must own—and all would own—it was not perfect; it was the composition of man, after all. Men, cold, selfish, calculating, worldly men, said our missions were a failure; he denied it most emphatically. What was it that had called forth the Day of Intercession, which was to be kept on Friday next? The failure of missions? No; but their great success. The field was so wide, the harvest so great, but the labourers so few. Therefore they were going to pray the Lord of the harvest to stir up men—not illiterate men, not men unsuited for the work, but men of piety, of learning, of devotion, of zeal, and love of souls, to go forth from our universities, from our country vicarages, from friends and home ties, to work abroad in distant and unhealthy climes, for God and the love of souls. There had been blots, sad blots, in some of the missionary work; but there was a long roll of those who had forsaken all in order to carry the blessings of the Gospel, in order to tell of the love of Jesus to those who knew him not. Time would indeed fail him to enumerate half the list; and those who were now going out, and who were to be consecrated that day, were men well tried for the work. Our missions a failure, said the canon: as men judge, yes—as God judgeth no. Had a religious census been taken in the days when our Saviour worked on earth, when the few assembled in the upper room, it would have been denounced by worldlings as a complete failure, but the quiet unobserved work which the Saviour did would not appear in a religious census; but we knew for certainty of lepers being cleansed, the deaf made to hear, the blind to see, the dumb to speak, ah! and many a soul not told of in the Gospels, succoured, comforted, forgiven, blessed! In a magnificent peroration the learned and eloquent canon spoke of the fitness of those about to be consecrated, and implored the vast congregation not to be mere sightseers, but to spend the time in prayer for God's blessing on them. He trusted that the two great societies, the Church Missionary Society and the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, would work in harmony and achieve yet more glorious results.

At the conclusion of the sermon the Archbishop of Canterbury took his seat in his vice-regal chair, in front of the altar, the three candidates were then presented, separately, by two Bishops, as fit and proper persons; the Archbishop requesting Mr. Dyke, the Apparitor-General (in the case of each one) to read the "Queen's License," for creating the said Bishops. The Rev. Mr. Royston, Mr. Hordern and Mr. Russell then took the oaths administered by the Bishop of London.

The Precentor than chanted the litany, the choir giving the responses. and after a short interval. the three Bishops. standing in front of the Archbishop. were asked the usual questions regarding their faith, &c., to which they gave assent, "By the help of God I will so do." They then retired and robed, the choir chanting the Veni Creator; on reappearing they knelt before the Archbishop, who, with the whole six Bishops, placed their hands on the head of each, pronouncing the formula of consecration, "By our hands receive, &c." The three Bishops then entered the altar rails. and the offertory basins were handed round. the Archbishop's chair being removed. This ended, the Archbishop administered the Holy Communion to the Dean of Westminster, the Bishop of London, and the Chief Canon. The Dean communicated the newly consecrated Bishops and the other Bishops, after which the clergy and visitors approached the altar, and were communicated by all the Bishops present.

The Benediction was then pronounced by the Archbishop, and the Bishops retired to the "Jerusalem Chamber" to disrobe and present the offerings to the Church Missionary Society. and the Society for Propagating the Gospel. The ceremony occupied over three hours, the abbey being crowded. It was intended that four bishops should be consecrated, but some difficulties have arisen in reference to the appointment of the Rev. H. Rowley to the bishopric of Madagascar, and the consecration has consequently been deferred.

Monetary and Commercial.

The half-yearly meeting of the Ceylon Company was held on the 17th inst., Mr. L. Acland in the chair. The report stated that the crop of coffee, which the directors. in June last, stated would be exceedingly small, had not proved more satisfactory than they anticipated. There was, however, every reason to suppose that the deficiency of this year was quite exceptional, and the directors felt justified in proposing the division of an interim dividend at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum, drawing upon the reserve or undivided profits for payment, as they looked forward with confidence to replacing the amount so drawn before the end of the financial year. The deficiency in the crop had affected the whole island. The total produce in 1869-70 was 1,019,242 cwt., in 1870-71 923,276 cwt., while that for 1871-72 was only 758,777 cwt.

At the meeting the chairman stated that decrease in the dividend was owing to the smallness of the coffee crop at Ceylon. If the crop had been the same as last year the accounts would have been in a better state than they were that time last year. The smallness of the crop was owing to the unfavourable weather, it being wet when dry weather was required, and dry when wet weather was wanted. As regarded the crop of the company, it was one-third less, having been last year 59,458 cwt., while for this year it was only 42,000 cwt. True, higher prices had been attained, but they had not compensated for the falling off in the supply, for while the crop was one-third less they had only received an addition in the sales of one-ninth, while the cost for a small crop was as great as for a large one, the expenses being upon the number of acres under cultivation, and not upon the quantity picked. They foresaw in June last that there would be a small crop, but could not say what effect it would have upon the accounts. It had been usual to declare an interim dividend out of the balance of profit up to the 30th of September, but it was evident it could not be done on the present occasion. The question of the payment of a dividend, however, engaged the anxious attention of the directors, and after much deliberation it was decided to entrench upon the reserve fund and pay a small interim dividend, that fund having been in a great measure provided to make up dividends. The directors had been urged by some shareholders not to pay any dividend upon the present occasion, but the board deemed it best for the general interest of the proprietary that a dividend should be paid, and be hoped the meeting would approve of that course. From Mauritius the accounts were satisfactory; the sugar crop, though being late, was of good quality, and was realising higher prices. The coffee crop now being gathered in Ceylon would, if the prices now ruling were maintained, fully make up for the deficiency in the last crop. Some slight discussion having ensued relative to the estates having been overvalued, the paying of too high dividends in the early history of the company, the necessity of having a managing director in Ceylon, and of the board of directors being re-formed, the report was adopted and the dividend declared.

It is announced that interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum will be paid on Great Northern Telegraph shares on the 1st January.

Vice-Chancellor Malins has been engaged for nearly three weeks in trying the case of "Parker v. Harvey Lewis, M.P., and others," in which the registered public officer of the National Bank asked the Court to declare that Mr. Harvey Lewis, M.P., Sir Joseph M'Kenna, and Mr. F. B. Henshaw were liable to make good to the National Bank the sum which it was bound to pay under the compromise of the suit which had reference to the purchase of the banking business of Charles Lafitte and Co. The hearing of evidence and arguments in the suit was brought to a close on the 16th inst. The Vice-Chancellor said that the importance and the complexity of the case required him to postpone judgment until January; and paid a tribute to the skill and ability with which, on both sides, the case had been conducted.

The accounts from Manchester continue to report difficulties. The suspension is announced of the old established firm of Messrs. J. A. Simpson and Son, of Preston, manufacturers, with liabilities of about £35,000; and Messrs. Sale, Shipman, and Co., of Preston and Manchester, have filed a petition in the Preston County Court.

Tenders for £650,000 in bills on India were received on the 18th inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, £415,700; Bombay, £220,000; and Madras, £14,300. The minimum was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10¼d. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10⅜d. will receive about 14 per cent.; and on Bombay at that price, 24 per cent.; above, in full. These results show a somewhat increased demand for the means of remittance to the East.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Delhi, which left Southampton yesterday, was in gold—to Galle, £1,860; to Madras, £498; in silver—to Bombay, £4,500; to Singapore, £3,600; to Shanghai, £3,100; to Hong Kong, £3,880; to Hobson's Bay, £745; to Sydney, £26,000;—total, in gold, £2,358; in silver, £41,825.

Bar Silver, owing to short supplies, has improved to 59¾d. for Fine Bars, the demand being principally for the Continent. Mexican Dollars, to the value of about £40,000, have come to hand from New York and the West Indies; they have been taken chiefly for the China and the Straits, and the prices have been unaltered.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

—o—

TEA.

The market continues extremely quiet. The arrivals during the week have been very heavy; but a large proportion of the Teas have not been shown, owing to the near approach of the Christmas holidays. For the few sales that have been made prices show no material change. The quantity of China Tea offered at public auction has been small, but that of India Tea a full average amount. The deliveries for the week amount to 2 606.000 lbs., against 3,481.000 lbs. last year.

Congous.—Red-leafs kinds: Siftings and broken leaf kinds show no material change, the demand being moderate. There has been a fair business in good common Congous free from dust; whilst fair Kaisow kinds, with rather broken leaf, have been saleable from 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1d. per lb. Good Kaisows have been but little dealt in. Fine to finest show no change, but transactions have been small. In Pak Lin kinds there is no change to notice. A few sales have been made in fair to good medium kinds without change in prices. In fine to finest a few sales have been made at former rates. New make kinds: Sales have been made of common at 11d. to 11½d. per lb., and of good quality at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 4½d. per lb. In Oolongs, Souchongs, and Flowery Pekoes, business has been too trifling to afford subject for special remarks. Uncoloured Japans have been without change. Scented Teas: Canton Capers, the common to fair qualities have been dull of sale at former prices; good to fine have been saleable to a fair extent at previous rates; Fewchow kinds show no change; Canton Orange Pekoes continue very difficult of sale. To-day, 1,620 packages have been sold without reserve. In Canton kinds there is no change, either in demand or prices. The public sales have amounted to only 6,306 packages, the whole of which have been sold without reserve.

CASUALTIES.

Advices from Singapore, Nov. 13, state that the Dilpussund (barque), Dray, New York to Yokohama, with coals, was totally dismasted in a typhoon, off Manila, and being met by the Gordon Castle (str.), was towed by her into Singapore, 11th; the surveyors report that she will probably have to be docked for repairs.

A telegram from Shanghai, Dec. 13, announces that arrangements have been made to salve the cargo of the Tonbridge, from London to that port (wrecked between Gutzlaff and Harper Island), at 40 per cent. of the value when recovered; the salvage, however, entirely depends upon the weather.

The Alcyone, of Amsterdam, Woelders, from Batavia to Holland, has been posted by the committee of Lloyds as a missing vessel.

The Herschel, Friedrich, arrived at Texel, Dec. 10, from Samarang, reports having thrown part of her cargo overboard, and had her bulwarks stove.

Advices from Cape Town, Nov. 5, state that the Prinses Amalia (Dutch), Timmerman, from Batavia to Amsterdam, which put into Table Bay, Oct. 14, leaky, &c., would probably proceed Nov. 25; 600 bags of damaged coffee had been sold.

Advices from Rotterdam, Dec. 12, state that a telegram had been received there from Helvoet, announcing that fifteen passengers had arrived at that port from the Noach III., ship, Hoefman, from Batavia for Rotterdam, which vessel they report at anchor about 40 miles N. by W. of the Goeree, with loss of masts, &c.

(via S.C.), owing to heavy weather put into Plymouth, 11, to land the pilots, and not with machinery out of order as reported in our last issue; we understand she is intended for the China coast trade, and is consigned to Messrs. Siemssen and Co.

THE NOURMAHAL FROM JAPAN.—CHARGE AGAINST THE CAPTAIN AND MATE.—Immediately on the arrival of the Nourmahal from Hiogo, three weeks ago, the Board of Trade instituted an inquiry into the conduct of Alfred Milledge, master, and John Carolan, the first mate. Charges of incompetency from drunkenness and other causes having been preferred against them, the inquiry was held by a local marine board at St. Katherine's Dock House, Tower-hill, presided over by Mr. Maude. The proceedings were brought to a close on the 13th inst., the evidence being chiefly confined to some three or four instances of gross drunkeness at times when there was the greatest need for sobriety. It transpired that ale, wine, and spirits, part of the Nourmahal's outward cargo, had been broached, and that Captain Milledge was cognisant of the fact, not objecting to partake of liquor, which, as he saw, had been taken out of the ship's hold by young lads acting under the mate. Although claims for short delivery have been made against the owners, yet no entry of deficiency appears in either the ordinary or official log. The Board, after a most patient investigation, decided that the charges had been fully proved, and ordered the certificates of both master and mate to be suspended for a period of six months, the chairman observing that the suspension would have been for a longer period but the board had taken into consideration the fact that this was the first occasion on which either of the delinquents had been placed on trial for such offence.]

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

NOTHING BETTER.—With the shortening days and foggy atmospheres the human system will certainly be more or less deranged, and notably these invaluable Pills exert a greater and more beneficial influence over loss of appetite, dyspepsia, bilious errors, irregularity of the bowels, and nervous disorders than any other medicine. Their mode of action is thoroughly consonant with reason. They completely purify the blood, relieve both head and stomach of all faulty functions, and expel all oppressive accumulations from the bowels. With the blood purified, and all poisons purged from the system, regularity must prevail throughout the body. Aches and pains must cease; healthful energy must supplant weariness; and the shaky nerves must regain their wholesome tone.

Summary of News from the Far East.

YOKOHAMA.

The present French mail brings advices from this port to the 12th November; the French mail from London Sept. 13 arrived out on the 31st Oct., and the following P. and O. mail of Sept. 20 on the 7th Nov. The following items of news are from the Japan Herald:—

Some controversy has been going on respecting the recent changes at the Nanko, or Imperial College at Yedo, over which Mr. Verbeck, a naturalised American gentleman, presides. A short time ago there were a few Englishmen employed as teachers; these, however (their time of service expiring), have not been re-engaged, Americans having been engaged instead. A number of letters from Mr. Verbeck, vindicating his conduct in the affair, together with replies from the other side, have been published.

Active preparations are being made by the Government in order to have Japan fully represented at the forthcoming Austrian Exhibition. It is said that Sawa, Okuma, and probably Arisagawa-no-Miya, are the commissioners selected to visit it, and that they leave Japan for Europe in the course of two months. Quantities of goods, principally from Osaka and Kioto, are continually arriving in Yedo, and have been placed in a large yash'ki near to the Tokeifu. The public will be allowed to inspect the articles before they are shipped.

Permits to allow foreigners to visit places of interest outside of treaty limits, which have before been almost invariably granted when requested, have now been refused, in consequence of a member of the community making an improper use of one.

It is stated that the Japanese Government have obtained a credit of one million dollars, in order to sustain the value of native coinage, and to prevent it falling below a certain value, and also for the purpose of enabling them to pay for shipments of bullion made on their account.

The native town has been for some nights illuminated by gas, manufactured by a native company, under foreign supervision. The gas is of fair quality, and is greatly appreciated by the natives. A committee from the foreign community has the subject of lighting the European settlement in hand, and it is not improbable that it may be lit with gas during the winter.

The autumn meeting of the Yokohama Race Club commenced on the 30th Oct., and ended on the 1st Nov. The meetiug on the whole was successful, and on the third day H. E. Oye Tak, the Governor of Kanagawa, together with other officials, and Sanjo Daijin, the Prime Minister, attended, and seemed greatly interested in the various events. The "Kencho Cup," a prize awarded by the Governor for a race, was presented to the winner by Mrs. Oye Tak.

A meeting of the Yokohama branch of the Asiatic Society was held on 30th Oct., presided over by Mr. Watson, H.B.M.'s Charge d'Affairs. Papers were read by Mr. E. Satow, on the Loo Choo Islands, and by Dr. Hadlow, on the Hyalonema Mirabilis, or glass coral.

The British Consulate was broken open during the night of the 4th Nov., and a sum to the extent of $300 was stolen. The thieves have not yet been caught.

The Ly-ee-moon, which was bought some years ago by the Japanese from Messrs. Dent and Co., for $180,000, has lately been re-sold for a sum under $30,000.

Hyashi, interpreter at the Saibansho, has been appointed Japanese Vice-Consul at Hong Kong.

The following is from the Japan Mail:—

Annexed is the correspondence addressed to the committee appointed to address Mr. Watson and Sir Edmund Hornby on the question of the arrest and imprisonment of Mr. Cousens. It seems to have been given to the public without the permission of the committee, and in defiance of a promise that it should be withheld until that permission was granted. Let us hope that some possible forgetfulness can be pleaded to excuse the act:—

GENTLEMEN,—As the Memorial which you have presented to me refers to a matter of a judicial nature, and as all such cases in which Her Majesty's subjects in Japan are concerned come under the cognisance of the Chief Judge of Her Majesty's Supreme Court of China and Japan, I shall refer this Memorial to Sir Edmund Hornby, and shall in due course transmit to you any observations which he may have to make upon it.—I have the honour to remain, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

R. G. WATSON.

GENTLEMEN,—As I have learnt from the newspapers the object of the Memorial you desire to present to me, I may at once say that I cannot receive it If Mr. Cousens desired to question the legality of the decision of the Consul, it was quite open to him to do so in the way pointed out in the Order in Council. The course now pursued can have no other object than to put pressure on a judge to depart from the ordinary course of procedure, and to induce him to submit his judgment to the wishes or desires of a public meeting, got up, not with a view to a fair and impartial inquiry, but for the purpose of giving effect to a predetermined judgment founded on one-sided evidence. Such a course is entirely un-English (although in politics it may be becoming a favourite mode of proceeding with a certain class), but as far as my influence extends it shall never become a practice in judicial proceedings.—I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

EDMUND HORNBY, Chief Judge.

Sir Edmund Hornby's reply merits the attentive consideration of the British community. To that considerable and not unimportant section of it comprising those whose signatures are attached to the Memorial, a gross and unnecessary discourtesy has been addressed. We fail to see anything wrong or offensive in the Memorial itself, or in the mode in which it was brought under Sir Edmund Hornby's notice. Whatever error, if any, has been committed, was an error of judgment merely; at the most a mistaken view of the manner in which the complaint against the proceedings in Mr. Cousens's case ought to have been preferred. Such error of judgment might be a good reason for refusing to receive the Memorial, but neither explains nor justifies the studied and extremely unintelligent discourtesy with which that refusal was accompanied. No doubt Mr. Cousens was technically wrong in not availing himself of the mode pointed out, very vaguely, it is true, but still pointed out, in the rules of procedure for appealing from the decision against him. His error on a mere matter of procedure, and under circumstances when professional advice was unattainable, is surely hardly advanced by Sir Edmund Hornby as conclusive against all further notice being by any possibility taken of the case.

Owing to an exposé made by Mr. Dickins when the Maria Luz case was being heard, the Government has been induced to temporarily close the Yoshiwarra, and to announce that it will no longer sanction and enforce prostitution contracts. Those contracts already existing are being disposed of by the Judicial department, the women being called up and interrogated—as to how long they have been under contract; how much they were sold for; and how much—if any—they owe to their purchaser. Answers having been given, an amicable arrangement is made, the purchaser receiving a proportion of his purchase money back, and the woman being free to occupy herself as she may be inclined. The Geishas or singing girls are now being freed, but they generally manifest a strong desire to carry on their previous business.

NAGASAKI.

We have advices from this port to the 10th November.

The Great Northern Telegraph Company's land-lines through Russia have been thoroughly repaired. The cause of the interruption is attributed to their being laid with greater regard to getting them finished than to doing the work substantially, a mistake which has now been remedied. The Great Northern has also recently repaired a damaged part of the submarine cable near Vladiwostok. This was found to be caused by the cable resting on a sharp reef of rock, and necessitated it being picked up and relaid in another place. A new staff of Customs officials is being introduced, from Yedo.

The Russian frigate Svetlana, with the Grand Duke Alexis on board, left this port for Yedo, via Hiogo, on the 9th Nov. She was escorted by the Japanese corvette Nit-sin-kan and the Russian flagship Vitiaz, the former having Prince Date on board, and the latter Rear-Admiral Fedorovski. As the squadron steamed away, a parting salute was given by the Japanese Government battery.

The murderer of the man Johnson has been arrested. He proves to be the son of a native doctor, and said he paid Johnson visits for the purpose of learning English; that Johnson insulted him, and that in self-defence he inflicted the wounds of which his victim died. He now awaits his trial.

It is stated that Holt's line of steamers will occasionally include Japan in their ports of call, and that the trial, if successful, will lead to it becoming a permanent service. The Achilles is expected from Yokohama on or about the 17th Nov.

CHINA.

PEKING AND TIENTSIN.

The Peking Gazettes contain some further references to the termination of the Regency, and also the Imperial marriage. That of the 21st Oct. contains an Edict from the Empresses-Dowager, conferring various honours on the princes and ministers who have taken a prominent part in the government of the empire during the past eleven years. The title of Chin-wang, or Prince of the Blood, is made hereditary in the family of Prince Kung for ever, and his services to the State during the Regency are singled out for special praise. Wensiang, the well-known member of the Foreign-office, is allowed the high privilege of using a sedan chair in the Imperial or Forbidden City.

A Tientsin correspondent writes:—By the Customs' Peking courier of the 3rd November we learn the important news that an edict had appeared on the afternoon of the 1st inst., proclaiming that the Astronomical Board had selected the 26th day of the 1st moon of next year (23rd February, 1873) as the auspicious day for his Majesty Tung-che to become the virtual Ruler of his Dominions, or in other words to ascend the throne as Emperor, and the Regency of the two Empresses-dowager to cease. His Excellency Li-Hung-chang left this city at two P.M. to-day, for a tour of inspection in the southern part of this province.

The friends of Li-hung-Chang will be glad to learn that the Peking Gazette contains an edict from the Emperor, approving of the late memorial sent up to the Throne by Li, and restoring the rank and official buttons of the officers who were degraded on account of the failure of the dykes, embankments, &c., pardoning their want of success, and promoting others concerned in the work. To Chou-Fuk, one of the small mandarins, who superintended the work of repairs, is given the rank of Taoutai, "for the extraordinary diligence, wisdom and energy he displayed in carrying on and completing the control and mastery of the turbulent waters."

SHANGHAI.

Our advices from this port extend to the 15th November; the French mail, from London, September 27, arrived out on the 14th November. The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:—

On the 1st of November a new Imperial flag was adopted by the Chinese Government, and the fact has been notified by the Tsung-li Yamen to the Ministers Superintendent of Trade and Foreign Officials. The new flag is of a triangular shape, and made of bunting of a deep yellow colour, with a blue dragon, courant, in the centre. For vessels of 200 feet and under it is to be eight feet long, and for vessels over 200 feet long, twelve feet. The new flag is to be borne by all Chinese war-vessels and steamers, including those built at the Foochow and Shanghai Arsenals and the Customs' cruisers. Its institution will therefore have a tendency to centralise the components of the Chinese fleet, and subordinate them directly to the Imperial Government through the admirals commanding the several stations on the coast. Thus a blow will be aimed at the independence of the provincial governments, and an end put to the imperium in imperio of cruisers claiming all the privileges of Government vessels sailing under a private flag and being controlled by the Foreign Customs. It may be looked on as part also of the movement instituted a year or two ago by which the foreigners in command are gradually being displaced by native officers.

The inquiry into the extent of the damage sustained by the Hopewell, by collision with the Annie Grey, has been going on for some time before the registrar, R. A. Mowat, Esq., who has now settled the award. The claims made on behalf of the Hopewell included immediate damage and all consequent loss for earnings, storage of cargo, &c. For repairs to the ship and sailmaker's account Tls. 10,655.43 were claimed, and Tls. 9,598.58 allowed; charges in connection with the cargo Tls. 4,367.26 claimed and Tls. 4,054.58 admitted; towage, pilotage, survey, and other fees, Tls. 577.43, of which Tls. 489.09 are allowed; victualling, wages and general expenses Tls. 1,065.42, reduced to Tls. 823.84. The profit on the ship's working is charged at Tls. 900, for the two months lost, but allowed at Tls. 469.50. The total amount therefore claimed is about Tls. 17,365.54, of which Tls. 15,435.59 are allowed. To this the costs of the two actions have of course to be added.

A naval court was held at the British Consulate on the 12th Nov., to inquire into the loss of the steamer Yedo, near Haitan Straits, on the 5th October. The finding of the Court entirely acquits Capt. Garnell of all blame. The wreck of the steamer has been sold at Foochow, realising a little over $3,000.

We hear that the following changes have recently been made in the Consular Service :—Mr. R. J. Forrest, who has left for Swatow, becomes acting Consul there, and Mr. W. G. Stronach proceeds to Chinkiang as Interpreter-in-charge. Mr. A. R. Hewlett has been appointed Assistant Chinese Secretary at Peking. Mr. E. H. Grimani, clerk in the Summary Civil and Criminal Department of the Supreme Court, has entered the Imperial Maritime Customs Service, and leaves for Peking, there to pass a year in the study of Chinese.

At the Supreme Court on the 8th November, before the Chief Judge, Mr. J. L. Brown appeared in support of a motion for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council from the order made by the Court, on the 22nd October, in re Brown v. Hart. Mr. Brown put in an affidavit in support of his motion, but the Chief Judge declined to grant the permission sought.

Capt. Hereira, of the Maria Luz, is to take another vessel from Macao with coolies for Peru, and is to call her the New Maria Luz. The now famous vessel of that name will probably be sold in Yokohama. On Capt. Hereira's arrival in Peru he will, it is said, press his Government to take the matter up and push the claims of the concerned against the Japanese Government for the losses they have sustained. It is said that the steamer Yangtsze, just arrived, will on her return south convey to Canton the Maria Lus coolies, who have been chargeable to the Chinese authorities here for the past few weeks.

The Athletic Sports Meeting, on the 22nd, the programme of which has been before the public for some time, promises to be quite as successful as the other sporting meetings held this autumn. Seventeen events are advertised, giving prizes in every department of athleticism which can be conveniently introduced, but to these must be added the Strangers' Race and some special opportunities which may be given men-of-war's men to distinguish themselves, altogether making up a carte which it will probably take a couple of days to do justice to.

The contracts for the new theatre have been settled, and the piling is being actively proceeded with on the site chosen in Yuen Ming-Yuen road. It is hoped that the work will be finished in time to admit of the theatre being opened by the 1st of November 1873. The amount raised by debentures to defray the cost of the building and fittings is fully up to the estimates.

The Autumn Rifle Meeting of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps has come off, and the Shanghai Rifle Club has held its inaugurating competition.

In May last we noticed a curious expedient by which the Buddhist priests sought to raise money to rebuild a temple at Tientai. It may be presumed that the scheme they then adopted produced a satisfactory result, for it has just been again tried on behalf of a Buddhist temple at Soochow. Last week a wooden erection, somewhat resembling a sentry-box, was erected by a priest, who announced his willingness to attract the interest and move the generosity of the native public by remaining there without food, or drink, or rest for seven days. The place chosen for the experiment was a house in the Honan-road, opposite Smith's market, in and out of which, for twenty hours out of the twenty-four, the Chinese formed in crowds during the period the man underwent his voluntary incarceration. The box was closed all round, with the exception of some very narrow apertures for the admission of air, and the inmate was supposed to stand during the time he was in it, though there appeared to be sufficient room to allow him to sit down. The door was hermetically sealed with slips of paper pasted diagonally, which were only broken yesterday, when the devotee was liberated. The Chinese were rather sceptical as to the reality of the mortification, but though many of them visited the place frequently, and carefully examined the slips of paper and the position of the cage, they could not find any evidence that either had been tampered with.

HONG KONG.

The dates by the present mail extend to the 21st Nov. The outward P. and O. mail of Oct. 4 arrived on the 14th Nov. The following items are from the China Mail :—

We learn that two Chinese merchants at Shanghai named Ho Lin and Fong Chow have suddenly taken a passage to Hong Kong in a steamer consigned to Messrs. Siemssen and Co., without taking leave of their creditors; consequently, two of the latter, who are said to have been defrauded of Tls. 10,000, have sent a telegram to Messrs. Russell and Co., asking that firm to take steps to stop the flight of the fugitives. The matter having been placed in the hands of Messrs. Sharp and Toller, solicitors, Mr. Thomas, managing solicitor of that firm, made an application to the police magistrate late last evening for a warrant. The magistrate having left the office then, the case was referred to Mr. Deane, Captain Superintendent of Police. As the alleged offence was committed in Shanghai (Chinese territory), and the parties were Chinese subjects, Captain Deane said he could not take action in the matter except on requisition of the Chinese authorities. To obviate the difficulty a letter was sent to Captain Lee Boo, Commander of the Chinese corvette Ta An Lan, requesting him to send the necessary authority. We have not yet learnt the result of the application.

Private letters from Peking state that the "Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge in China" have requested the Rev. Dr. Eitel to act as their agent in Hong Kong. We are glad to learn that the circulation of the magazine they publish is gradually increasing, Canton, for instance, subscribing for nearly a hundred copies.

The second of the "Winter Lectures" came off at the City Hall, the subject chosen by the lecturer, Mr. N. B. Dennys, being Chinese Folk-lore. H.E. the Governor and Miss Kennedy, Capt. O'Callaghan, the Acting Chief Justice, Rev. Dr. Legge, Rev. Dr. Eitel, and many other leading residents were present. The lecture was listened to with attention, and at its conclusion the audience expressed their gratification by hearty applause.

We learn that 183 of the Maria Luz coolies have come down from Shanghai per steamer Yangtsze, in charge of two mandarins. They will proceed to Canton in the steamer, and will from thence be returned to their homes. As the steamer will not go to Canton until she has discharged her Hong Kong cargo, the coolies are placed on board two Chinese boats, to prevent their straggling ashore. Each of the coolies is supplied with clothing and bedding by the Government, which pays all their travelling expenses. We understand that the mandarins in charge of the coolies have called on Messrs. Leong On and Chun Kum, with the view of obtaining their assistance in the transference of the coolies to Canton and in generally looking after them while here.

A rumour, extensively prevalent in the Colony, states that Mr. V. Kresser, who has recently arrived at Saigon, is coming up to Hong Kong with funds and other necessary appliances to establish a new bank—whether as a new enterprise, or as a branch of some home establishment, is not known. In any case, it appears that things are moving, though to what extent the rumour referred to is reliable we cannot say.

We are glad to hear that Messrs. W. B. Spratt and Co., of Wanchi have succeeded in again raising the wreck of the German barque Marie, which was towed by the Sir J. Jeejeebhoy yesterday, on to a shelving sandy beach, near the Cap Sing Moon Pass, where it is intended to float and temporarily patch her, by side works.

We understand that Captain Tracey, R.N., late the Commander of H.M.S. Avon, and recently gazetted to a post-captaincy, has been permitted by the Lords of the Admiralty to accept a post in connection with the Chinese Arsenal at Foochow.

The Daily Press has the following items :—It is satisfactory to notice that the Acting Surveyor-General is adopting the sensible plan of backing the Praya wall with concrete eight feet thick, instead of sand, as heretofore. This will no doubt prevent future injury from typhoons.

The Gazette also notifies the appointment of Assistant-Surgeon J. B. Drew, R.N., to act provisionally as Superintendent of the Civil Hospital, and Surgeon of the Lock Hospital, until further notice. Nothing is said as to whether Mr. Scanlan, who it will be recollected was appointed on Dr. Young's resigning, has given up the appointment.

H.M.S. transport Adventure left for Singapore, having on board the left wing of H.M. 110th Regiment. She will return again shortly with a wing of the 80th Regiment.

Mr. Henry Murray, who has for seven years held the appointment of Grand Master of the Freemasons, has addressed an affectionate farewell to the brotherhood. Mr. Murray is returning home for good, via San Francisco.

A farewell reception was given by the officers of the U.S.S. Colorado prior to their departure for home, which is to take place immediately after the arrival of the Pacific Mail. A large number of guests were present, among whom were H. E. the Governor, and Lady and Miss Kennedy, the Hon. Julian Pauncefote, Acting Chief-Justice, the Captains and Officers of the various men-of-war in port, Mr. Bailey, U.S. Consul, Mr. Gustav von Overbeck, Austrian Consul, &c., &c., and a large number of ladies. Admiral Jenkins and the officers of the Colorado received the visitors with much courtesy and cordiality, and a capital dance was got up on board. All left heartily pleased with the entertainment, and we are confident that the good wishes expressed will be heartily shared by all who have had the pleasure of the acquaintance of the officers of the Colorado. The vessel was very tastefully decorated with flags, among which the homeward bound pennant, which will be flown from the masthead after the Admiral has landed at Singapore, where he will leave the vessel to proceed home via India, formed a prominent feature.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Our advices extend to the 29th Nov.; the outward mail from London, Oct. 25, was received Nov. 24 per Messageries Maritimes steamer Amazone. The following items of news are from the Singapore Daily Times:—

We understand the Government have determined to amalgamate the Import and Export and Shipping Offices after Jan. 1, 1873. These departments will be under the control of the Master Attendant, who will be assisted in his duties by Captain Fox, formerly commander of the Colonial steamer Peiho, and at present Acting Master Attendant at Penang. Captain Anderson, the present Assistant Master Attendant, will retire on a gratuity, and Mr. John Cooper, Registrar of Imports and Exports, will retire on pension at the end of the present year.

Captain Burrowes, well known as one of the oldest and ablest pilots in Singapore, is now in custody, charged with having caused the death of a boatman. The facts are briefly that a native boatman formerly in Captain Burrowes's employ went to him with a note from his present master, and some words passed between them, at which Captain Burrowes became provoked and struck the man, who thereupon seized him by the beard. Captain Burrowes then, we understand, struck him a severe blow, knocking him down, and in falling his head came in contact with a stone, which caused death. The examination of Captain Burrowes before the magistrate resulted in his committal for trial at the next criminal session. Captain Walshe declined to take bail, saying application could be made to the Chief Justice, who, being in Singapore, no serious inconvenience need result to the prisoner.

In accordance with the new prisons arrangement, the Pluto has brought up from Penang two long-sentence prisoners to complete their terms of imprisonment in the Singapore prison. These are, Loureiro, the Land Office defaulter, sentenced to two years' hard labour, and D'Mello, the defaulting Municipal clerk, sentenced to eighteen months' hard labour. She also brought five lunatics for treatment in the Singapore Lunatic Asylum.

H.M.S. Adventure, Commander C. Rising, from Hong Kong, arrived on the 25th November. She brings from Hong Kong the head quarters of the 10th regiment, to relieve the 80th, now stationed here, and will carry back the 80th to Hong Kong. Colonel Smith and the officers of the 80th have been entertained at a public dinner in the Hotel d'Europe by the residents here, as a mark of their appreciation of the services and general conduct of the regiment while stationed in the settlements. The Hon. J. W. W. Birch, Colonial Secretary, took the chair. The toasts usual on such occasions were given and acknowledged. In bidding farewell to the 80th regiment, we must testify to their unexceptionally good conduct while stationed here, and we must further utter a growl against the conduct of the home authorities in their treatment of this regiment as well of the 10th. The officers and men of both regiments have just had time to settle down comfortably, and feel at home in both places, and here they are suddenly, without rhyme or reason shifted from one place to the other. The officers and the men of both regiments all lose money by being shifted about in this erratic fashion, and the case is such that we decidedly think they ought to be recouped by the Home authorities. We can see no reason whatever for the move, but probably the Colonial Office conscience has been stirred a little about the scandalous swindle played off on these Settlements, in the matter of the number of soldiers provided for their defence and paid for by them. The 80th regiment is not so strong in numbers as the 10th, even after the reinforcements on the way are counted. This may be the reason of the present shuffle. Whether or no, we denounce the whole thing as a wanton waste of public and private money.

H.M.S. Zebra has been going through some gun exercise, to witness which Captain Denison invited a number of friends, including H.H. the Rajah of Sarawak, the Dutch resident of Pontianak, the Colonial Secretary, and the French and Dutch consuls. We learn that the visitors one and all expressed themselves highly pleased with all they witnessed, and that the practice was very good indeed, both as to the accuracy and rapidity of the firing.

The case against A. R. Joshua, charged with criminal breach of trust, came on for hearing at the Police-court on the 25th Nov. The proceedings have not yet terminated.

In consequence of official intimation from Mr. Fish, the American Secretary of State, the flag of the United States Consulate was hoisted at half-mast on the 26th Nov., as a tribute of respect to the memory of the late William H. Seward.

HIOGO.—Business had been much restricted, owing to the decline in the value of currency, and quotations for all classes of goods had gone against holders.

NAGASAKI.—The news from this port is of no interest.

TIENTSIN.—Letters from this port speak somewhat more favourably as to the state of the market. Prices of Grey Goods were much on a par with those current at Shanghai, but there was more desire to buy, and a generally increased activity.

HANKOW.—Advices report the market without material change. Grey Shirtings had slightly improved, in response to Shanghai advices —7lbs. being worth Tls. 1.60 to 1.73 per piece, and 8½lbs. Tls. 1.83 to 1.92 per piece. 6lbs. T-Cloths were valued at Tls. 1.12½ to 1.30 per piece, and 7lbs. Tls. 1.30 to 1.54 per piece. For 8lbs. 36-inch there seemed little inquiry. Drills were quiet at Tls. 3.00 to 3.13 per piece for 14lbs. and 15lbs respectively. Fancy Goods and Woollens remained dull and unaltered in value. In Tea there had been transactions to the extent of 1,660 chests at Tls. 10¾ to 15 per picul, and the shipments to Shanghai on native account were 1,578 chests and 914 half-chests. The stock was stated at 500 chests. Exchange on Shanghai was 2½ per cent. discount for Bank paper.

CHINKIANG.—There had been an active business in Grey Shirtings, and there had also been some inquiry for and transactions in T Cloths. Good Common Chop 8¼ lbs. Shirtings were quoted at Tls. 1.80 to Tls. Tls. 1.83 per piece, and 7 lbs. Ordinary Mexican T-Cloths at Tls. 1.41 to Tls. 1.43 per piece. A slight demand had been experienced for Scarlet and Dark Blue Long Ells, but it soon ceased.

SHANGHAI.—Piece Goods: A fairly active business had been transacted in all classes of Grey Cottons, but the Woollen market had remained depressed, and prices were lower. Grey Shirtings: Advices from all the outports had been more satisfactory, but the natives seemed to have overbought themselves, and the tendency of prices had been decidedly weaker; closing rates for 8¼ lbs. were Tls. 1.86½ to 1.90. 7 lb. had been readily saleable at Tls. 1.61 to 1.72 for common to good, one sale of Dewhurst's Eagles being effected at Tls. 1.75, since re-sold at Tls. 1-73. A new weight (6 lbs.) had found buyers to the extent of 5,000 pieces at Tls. 1.62. White Shirtings further improved 3 to 5 candareens, 56 reed commanded Tls. 1.67, 60 reed Tls. 1.86, 64 reed Tls. 1.88 to 1.95, and best 64s Tls. 2.15. T-Cloths: Irregularity in prices continued, 6 lb. ordinary slightly declined, and quoted at Tls. 1.13 to 1 13½. 7 lbs. Mexicans placed at Tls. 1.40 to 1.47, very best Tls. 1.55; 8 lbs. 36-inch sold at Tls. 1.62 to 1.70, irregular weights (7¼ lbs. to 7½ lbs.) changed hands at Tls. 1.53 to 1.60. Drills, Jeans, and Sheetings: Better inquiry for Drills, 14 lbs. sold at Tls. 3.04 to 3.05, 12 lbs. at Tls. 3.07 to 3.15, latter figure for very best chop. Jeans placed at Tls. 2.10 to 2.12 per piece. Sheetings difficult to sell, 14 lbs. to 15 lbs. Tls. 2 80 to 3 00, 16 lbs. best Tls. 3.25. Fancy Cottons: Several articles had attracted some attention, but the rates paid had, as a rule, been unsatisfactory. Damasks, Tls. 4.75; Brown Chintzes, Tls. 1.26 to 1.35; Assorted Chintzes, Tls. 1.43 to 1.50; Turkey Red Cloths, Tls. 2.04 to 2.12 for 2¾ lbs. to 3 lb.; Gentian Shirtings, Tls. 2.37½. Woollens: Market remained in a most unsatisfactory position, and sales had been very difficult to effect.

HONG KONG.—The business transacted in Manufactured Goods had been small, and low prices had continued to rule, without any indication of an upward tendency. In Woollens no improvement was noticeable. In Metals, Quicksilver had been bought at higher figures. Values of Rice were unchanged, and the market was quiet.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Inactivity had been the feature of the market, and the only business done had been the purchase of a few small parcels for the California market; settlements amounted to about 1,500 piculs only, and had been made at prices ruling much the same as last quoted. Supplies had come in freely and consisted mostly of common kinds, the stock on offer had increased and comprised most grades. Quotations remained unchanged, but in the absence of any business of importance must be considered almost nominal; during the last few days, previous to the close, however, there had been some inclination on the part of the native dealers to accept lower prices and the market closed with an easier tendency. The export had been as follows:—Per Caller Ou via Kobe 81,186 lbs. to New York; per Japan 141,310 lbs. to San Francisco, 113,331 lbs. to New York, 13,344 lbs. to Boston, 12,285 lbs. to Chicago, and 1,300 lbs. to St. Louis; per Devana to New York from this port, 486,997 lbs. and from Kobe 402,608 lbs. The Lothair was loading for New York.

SHANGHAI.—Black: A small business continued to be transacted from day to day without any noticeable change in values; the further settlements had been 4 456 chests, and a small parcel of 266 chests was reported as shipped. The stock was estimated at 12,600 chests. Green: Business in this market had been much less active than during the previous interval, and the total of transactions reported for the week was comparatively light, the settlements and reshipments of all descriptions having been about 16,700 half-chests. Prices showed no alteration in values, a firm tone continuing. The stock was estimated at 48,000 half-chests.

Digitized by Google

FOOCHOW.—Congous had continued in fair demand, but Souchongs and Scented Teas had found no buyers. There had been only one other settlement of Oolong reported, it being a string of about 1,120 half chests of common to good cargo grades purchased at Tls. 16 short, showing little or no alteration in the ruling scale of values. Arrivals to date amounted to 183,373 half-chests, and the stock was 85,889 half-chests. The s.s. Agamemnon sailed on the 13th November for London, via Hong Kong, taking Congou 521,743 lbs., Souchong 59,261 lbs., Oolong 195,879 lbs., Scented Orange Pekoe 28,400 lbs., and Sorts 2,789 lbs., making a total of 808,072 lbs. of Tea. The Rates of Freight remained as last advised.

AMOY.—Teamen having shown greater anxiety to sell, buyers had entered the market and had cleared off almost every desirable parcel of Tea on offer, at $19 for fair and $21 for good cargo as about an average, with the higher grades in still lower proportion. Only some 9,000 packages remained on offer, and the season was considered as nearly at an end. The steamer Petersburg was on the berth for New York at £4 per ton, and had over three-fourths of her cargo engaged. The Thracian (bark) was also chartered at £2.15s. per ton. Receipts to date were 214,000 half-chests; Settlements about 205,000 half-chests, and stock 9,000 half-chests.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Only a small business had been transacted since the 22nd Oct., the unwillingness of the dealers to accept lower rates, and the absence of any improvement in home advices, having kept most buyers out of the market. The settlements amounted to about 150 piculs, and the unsold stock was estimated at 1,500 to 1,600 piculs. Prices were nominally without change, but for Hank sorts rather easier quotations ruled. Silkworm Eggs: The season was almost over, about 1,200,000 cards having been purchased, and the small remaining stock was estimated at 50,000 more. Quotations:—Good, $2.40 to 2.80; middling and inferior, $1.50 to 2 per card.

SHANGHAI.—Business had continued on about the same scale as reported in our last, the settlements since the departure of the P. and O. mail being estimated at 1,000 bales. Good parcels of Tsatlees had attracted the chief attention, and had commanded full prices; Blue Elephant chop found buyers at Tls. 515 to Tls. 517½, and Golden Lion at Tls. 542, but the lower classes had remained neglected. Yellow Silk and re-reels had been bought to a moderate extent for America at previous rates. Total settlements to date amounted to 42,500 bales, and the unsold stock was 5,000 bales.

CANTON.—Since the English mail little change had taken place in the market, but holders, if anything, were slightly firmer. Very little more of the sixth crop had arrived, the countrymen asking too high prices and the silk being of a poor quality. Settlements for the week amounted to 245 bales, including 10 bales of Loongkong; 200 boxes of Rereels were reported to have been contracted for, but further particulars were unknown. Stock was estimated at 1,700 bales Tsatlee Reel, 50 bales Loongkong, 60 bales Cumchook and Lacklow, and 300 to 400 bales of inferior descriptions. Further than the reported contract for 200 boxes, there was little or no animation in the market for Rereels, and prices remained unchanged. The sixth crop was said to be 1,500 bales, of which 100 bales had arrived on the market.

BANKRUPTCY COURT.

IN RE HENRY THORNTON.—FAILURE FOR £137,000.

The debtor carried on business as a Manchester merchant, at 55, Old Broad-street, in the City, and in Parker street, Manchester, trading under the style of Thornton and Co. He presented a petition for liquidation on the 20th inst., stating his debts at £137,000. Mr. Phelps, of the firm of Phelps and Sidgwick, Gresham-street, City, moved for the appointment of a receiver and manager to the estate. He stated that the business consisted principally in the purchase in Manchester and other places in England of goods on orders received from America and the East Indies, and there were very large shipments of goods on such orders. The liabilities and business engagements were very heavy, the assets comprising goods to the value of £25,000, which had been purchased to complete orders for £30,000. A large quantity of these goods was in the hands of bleachers, scourers, and dyers, and it would be necessary to carry on the business for the present in order to avoid claims for damage by breach of contract. He also read an affidavit from Mr. Rice, the manager of the Consolidated Bank of Manchester, stating, in their opinion, and that of a large number of the creditors, that it was desirable in their interests that the business should be carried on in order to fulfil existing engagements, the non-fulfilment of which would cause a large quantity of goods which had been specially bought to be thrown on hand.

The Court, under the circumstances of the case, granted the application, and appointed Mr. James Halliday, public accountant, of Manchester, receiver and manager of the estate. It was stated that there were some other assets besides the goods in hand, but the value was not at present ascertained. Almost all the creditors are Manchester firms.

M. DE CARNE'S TRAVELS.

A short time since we reviewed a work published by Messrs. Chapman and Hall, recording M. de Carné's experiences with a French exploring party which ascended the great Cambojan river in 1866-7, crossed the mountains of Yunnan, and made their way down the Yang-tze-Kiang to Shanghai, in the early part of 1868. The work has been noticed this week by the Athenæum and by the Pall Mall Gazette, and we subjoin extracts from both the reviews.

The Athenæum says:—An official account of the labours of the Mekong Commission is still under preparation in France. When this volume has appeared, we shall be able to come to some conclusion as to the scientific and geographical value of the task so arduously carried out. M. de Carné furnishes us with hardly any information that is really new, and tells us little as to the countries he traversed which was not already known to those who have paid attention to Indo-China. But if the book is a record of personal travel and experiences, it displays also a distinctly political object and tone, seeking to shed a light on the position and aspirations of the French colony at Saigon, and that light, as we believe, a distorted one. The aim of France in Indo-China is, or was, to extend her territory in the peninsula, establishing an effectual protectorate or supreme influence wherever actual annexation is an impossible course. This policy is barely veiled in M. de Carné's book; he rather seeks to advocate and justify its adoption, and dwells upon the advantages which may be expected to ensue. From these motives he exaggerates the evils of Siamese rule, and the disorganised condition of Annam; depicts Laos as disaffected to Siam; and makes out governors of provinces to be all but independent kings. He repudiates the notion that Camboja was tributary to Bangkok, endeavouring to show that Siam only consolidated her power in Camboja and Laos during recent times, and hinting that a power which has thus been newly put together may as easily be dismembered again by European (that is, French) interference. He insinuates that the English long to annex Siam; and French readers are left to draw the inference that such British rapacity might with advantage be forestalled. Having learnt also that navigation is practicable on the river of Tongquin, the author suggests that France should make a territorial settlement near the mouth of that stream. Inaccurate statements seem, by design, to have been introduced on the subject of the relations between England and Siam. Thus, on page 13, we find:—"It is too well known what any tenderness shown by England to her clients commonly hides, not to doubt the disinterestedness affected in her expression of so much solicitude for Siam. . . . . From Moulmein she already watches Bangkok; and not being able herself to take Camboja, she was willing to enrich a friend (Siam), of whom she expects to be the heir." We wish the writer had given us his authorities for this startling assertion. It is, we believe, pretty well understood in the East, as well as at home, that England has long abandoned all idea of further territorial acquisition. We cannot say the same of the French. England and Siam, after three years spent in a joint survey of the divided watershed, settled the boundary line of their possessions in a treaty solemnly ratified during 1868—a fact of which M. de Carné seems to have been totally ignorant. When you covet your neighbour's territory, send a hot-headed missionary thither; let him be a Roman Catholic one if possible, and instruct him to embroil himself with the civil authorities, and get himself tortured. This effected, you can walk in and take possession with the approval of all Christian Europe. Such is the rule, and it was followed conscientiously by the French when they resolved to colonise Indo-China. But the real object which carried them there was, as they hoped, to turn the traffic between Europe and South-Western China into the channel of the Cambojan river. In furtherance of this view they organised the journey of exploration, in which M. de Carné took a part. M. de Carné imitates previous writers in extolling the early successes which the Jesuits achieved in China. A recent work on Japan has, in our opinion, pointed out the true cause of these triumphs. The Buddhist clergy were gradually solidifying, as the Brahmins had done in India, into a powerful, self-asserting caste. A new creed, a new priesthood, that promised to counterpoise this troublesome hierarchy, was welcomed by the rulers and encouraged to propagate its faith. Too late they discovered what dangerous powers from the West were following in the wake of these pioneers; they strove to remedy the error, and "persecutions" of Christians began.

The Pall Mall Gazette says:—The narrative of the journey of the expedition through the Indo-Chinese peninsula may be useful to English readers, as showing what India would have been if what it pleases some writers to call the crime of conquering it had never been committed. If Buddhism does indeed teach annihilation as the ultimate good of man, it cannot have much influence over these wretched Laotians, or they would do their part towards the attainment of the blessing by wholesale suicide. The best fate that can be wished for them is the extension of the French dominion in Cochin China. The chief interest, however, of M. de Carné's volume will be found in the chapters which deal with Western China. The unknown west of the Empire presents the same external features with which travellers have made us familiar in the East. There are the same ruins of a civilisation long fallen into decay. On the very frontier the commission found themselves travelling along a paved causeway, which reminded them of a Roman road. Only some of the stones, however, remained in their place; others had sunk into the ground or rolled into the ravines. The desolate grandeur of the scenery of Yunan is made more striking by the ruins of vast public works which are everywhere visible. This decay, however, is veiled by a mantle of humble industry. The mountains are sometimes covered to the very summit with rice fields, and their lower slopes look like a vast garden. In the adjoining province of Selchuen towns and villages follow in quick succession; the land is everywhere covered with crops, and not a single acre is left uncultivated. The population, "very dense, devoted to the field and garden, patient of labour, does not neglect even those small deposits of earth which are found among the depressions of the rock, and which seem to have originated in the remains of nests belonging to birds of prey. Patches no bigger than your hand are cultivated at all heights, and one is astonished that without wings the labourer can mount up to these aerial domains." In Yunan, moreover, the Mussulman insurgents have left the same traces of their presence as the Taepings have left in the eastern provinces. The suburb of Seumao, which once contained 30,000 people, had been completely destroyed, and though the town itself had resisted attack, M. de Carné found it deserted by all the richer inhabitants in anticipation of a second siege. The main difficulty which the expedition encountered at this part of their journey was how to convince the mandarins that any one who had the power of leaving Yunan could possibly wish to stay in it. At Tsin-Lin-So hardly one stone is left on another:—"The ragged inhabitants have made caverns for themselves under the remains of their dwellings; beyond the walls the land is uncultivated, and the dead are left exposed in the fields." In some of the villages the sight of European faces sent the women screaming out of their houses in the belief that the rebels were upon them. The conduct of the Imperial troops in the west is of a piece with their conduct in the East. They are a terror to the peaceable inhabitants, and no terror to the rebels. The faintest show of resistance seems to cow them. On one occasion when the members of the Commission were on shore, a mob collected and began pelting the junk in which they were travelling down the Yang-tse-kiang with heavy stones. M. de Carné and his companions, hearing of this, hurried to rejoin their men, "who had had the coolness not to fire, but had courageously landed and seized and led off a prisoner, his hands tied behind his back, amidst the most formidable collection of ruffians I have ever seen, not one of whom had dared to attempt the rescue of their comrade from three resolute Europeans. This simple fact readily explained to me the meaning of the whole Chinese war."

NAVAL AND MILITARY.

The United Service Gazette says that much dissatisfaction has been expressed, not only by officers senior to those lately promoted to the rank of Commander, but also from the juniors, at the apparent favouritism shown by the Admiralty in the selections made by them generally for promotion, more particularly to Commander's rank. It has been repeatedly stated on their Lordships' behalf that the majority of the promotions would be made on the strength of seniority tempered by selection, a statement which facts have lately very much tended to modify. We will adduce the last batch of Lieutenants promoted to the rank of Commander as an instance. In this Gazette Lieutenants G. S. Hand, Seymour Smith, and Albert Markham are promoted over the heads of Lieutenants Hon. F. Crofton, C. S. Woodruffe, A. C. Paget, H. H. Edwards, and Mather Byles. Now, we would ask, supposing that the selection was made on the ground of superior merit, what has Commander Hand done to make his claims superior to those of Lieutenant Paget? In what respect does Commander S. Smith's merit exceed that of Lieutenants Crofton, Woodruffe, and Edwards? or that of Commander Markham Lieutenant Byles'? All these senior Lieutenants left out in the cold served creditably in the Russian and Chinese wars, and some of them have been repeatedly gazetted for services in the Indian Naval Brigade and in Japan, in addition to which all of them have been for several years First Lieutenants, or holding independent commands.

A handsome stained glass window has been placed in the Garrison Church, Portsmouth, by the officers of the 82nd Regiment, to the memory of the officers, non-commissioned officers, and men of the regiment who died since it embarked for China in 1857 up to the present time. The regiment ("The Prince of Wales's Volunteers") is now stationed at Chatham.

Her Majesty's ship Challenger, appointed by Government to undertake the great ocean survey, left Portsmouth on the 22nd inst. shortly before noon. The weather was exceptionally fine, and a considerable number of naval officers and friends of those on board were assembled on the jetty when the corvette steamed away, among them being Admiral M'Clintock.

We learn from Malta that the United States frigate Hartford, Capt. M'Cauley, bound from New York for China, is still in that port, having repairs effected in her machinery, the work being continued night and day.

The steamer Scotland, which sailed from Queenstown on the 11th ult. with drafts of the 10th regiment for Singapore, and of the 80th regiment for Hong Kong, arrived at Singapore previous to the 24th instant.

The Gazette announces that Major W. I. Lutman, half-pay, late Ceylon Rifle Regiment, retires from the service, receiving the value of his commission.

MESSRS. PARTRIDGE AND CO., of Paternoster-row, are the publishers of several books, designed expressly for the delectation of juvenile readers at the Christmas season. They comprise, among others, the "Family Friend," the "Infants' Magazine," the "Children's Friend," and the "Friendly Visitor," and they all present a vast improvement upon the general run of works of a similar character. The type is bold, the illustrations are artistic, and the literary contents are well designed to meet the wants of the class for which they are produced.

MESSRS. CHRISTIE, MANSON, and WOODS will offer for sale at Manchester, early in the new year, the collection of pictures belonging to Mr. John Pender, M.P., known as the Crumpsall House collection.

MANCHESTER AND MILDEW.

THERE are two ways of reasoning out every question that can be raised—from cause to effect, and from effect to cause. In a very brilliant and exhaustive article—through which, however, we regret to find a tone of moral despondency—the Manchester Courier, treating of the question of the adulteration of cotton piece-goods, observes very truly that "there is a moral as well as a material mildew." We will go a step further than our contemporary, and add to his apothegm the corollary that there is an intellectual mildew also. The evidence of the Courier would bear out our proposition—if, indeed, it needed support. After a catalogue of the matter—or foreign substances—employed by certain reckless manufacturers in the production of what is fraudulently called calico, our contemporary introduces us to one Mr. PETER SPENCE (a member, we presume, of the Chamber of Commerce in Cottonopolis). Considering that this gentleman comes before us as the champion of a system which has been refined to a pitch of excellence which might excite the envy of the concocters of the "Maloo Mixture" of inglorious renown, we feel bound to congratulate him on his hardihood—we were going to say "courage," but we won't—which is about the only quality that, to our knowledge, he has manifested—except, possibly, in his goods. The ingredients introduced into the composition of the stuff sold as cotton are thus enumerated. They are "size, China clay, "various forms of soaps, chymicals, and various abomina-"tions" so amalgamated as to cause the smallest possible weight of cotton to bring the greatest possible amount of profit by making "the mixture thick and slab"—as the witch says in Macbeth.

Now Mr. PETER SPENCE'S views on this subject were expressed with as much sincerity and credit as must have attached to the defence of the slave trade by a Liverpool merchant forty years ago. Says Mr. PETER SPENCE, "Speaking seriously"—from which we presume he is a person of uncommon humour and drollery in general—though he will find that others can speak seriously upon occasion as well as he—says Mr. PETER SPENCE:—"Speaking seriously, this "evil of over-sizing could not be got at by sentiment-"alism about temptation on the part of manufacturers or "denunciations of rascality on the part of merchants. The "only sensible remedy was the old Latin maxim—Caveat "Emptor!" Now, in case any of our fair readers should "happen" upon this, instead of columns more generally attractive (to them), we may as well explain that Caveat Emptor! simply means that it is the buyer's business to take care that he is not cheated. We do not know whether what he calls this "old Latin maxim" is Mr. PETER SPENCE'S trade mark—indeed it does seem calculated to "push" trade—but, as this gentleman has thought fit to air his classical knowledge, he cannot complain of our retorting another "old Latin maxim" from our mutual friend HORACE:—

that is, "Whomsoever you know to be guilty of a wrong, take care to have no dealings with." This pointed remark was addressed to the Romans, but Mr. PETER SPENCE may satisfy himself that its moral has not been lost on the Chinese or the Hindoos from the Manchester Courier's remark, "Not a yard of stuff will the heathen nigger buy." This observation does not, of course, convey our contemporary's sentiments, for he sets his face as firmly against Mr. JOHN BRIGHT'S favourite "form of competition" as we have ever done. But it is a tolerably convincing proof of the consequences of such practices as Mr. PETER SPENCE defends, excuses, extenuates—or whatever term he may prefer to apply to his argument.

We have purposely considered this question on the present occasion from the low basis of unprincipled self-interest which was dictated to us. Mr. PETER SPENCE warned us not to be "sentimental," and we think we have not left him much ground to complain of our non-compliance with his request. We confess that we do not altogether relish the descent to the SPENCIAN level—but que voulez vous! Experience, as supplied by the Manchester Courier, has proved that "cheat-"ing doesn't pay"—and we know no more direct road to the SPENCIAN perception. He has viewed the question of adulteration through an entirely false medium; apparently putting morals and national honour entirely out of view as being "sentimental." He is fond of the classics, and therefore, no doubt, quite as much at home in Greece as in Rome; and he may rest assured that he will have to turn himself into a second DIOGENES, and carry a lantern about the markets of Manchester before he will find an honest man who will endorse his theory on the mildew question. It would be an impertinence to remind our readers of the better aspect of the question. All we have tried to do now is to expose the imbecility of the unprincipled arguments by which the restoration of the prestige of Manchester in the Far East is sought to be retarded.

THE SINGAPORE FAILURES.

THE banks have again had a severe lesson. This time it is Singapore, not China, traders who have been the cause of most serious losses to the banks. According to the advices, it appears that JOSHUA BROS., an Indian firm dealing extensively in opium, has had more than legitimate banking facilities, which have resulted, as they usually do, in failure, coupled with fraud and appropriation. It is tolerably certain that if this firm had not received such inordinate facilities from the banks, it would have found its way to the bottom without inflicting a tithe of the injury it has now done. The fallacy of the system of bolstering up was clearly demonstrated here in 1866, and can never attain the end desired. The last, though not the least, patent case is that of GLEDSTANES and Co. But in the case of JOSHUA BROS. we have the most barefaced roguery, obtaining documents from one bank, and pledging the property to another; obtaining the bank's bills on Calcutta as remittances for payment of opium said to be on the way. The circumstances connected with the failure of VELGE and Co. also illustrates the looseness with which banking has been conducted in Singapore, and the escape of the culprit indicates a laxity in the administration of justice. Discounting the bills of Chinese firms must also be very considerably curtailed. How many more lessons do bank managers require, and when will the head offices be properly informed of what is going on at their branches, and take such measures as will render such dreadful imprudence as lately illustrated in these Singapore failures impossible to occur again? With the establishment of telegraphic communication with India and China it was expected that the branches of our banks would be under the complete control of the head office.

THE Peruvian Government, according to advices by the mail just arrived, intends to have satisfaction from the Japanese Government for the seizure of the coolie ship Maria Luz, at Yokohama. The demand is to be backed up by some display of power to exact. The iron-clad Independencia is to be despatched there, as also the corvette Union. Captain GARCIA, the Peruvian Minister, has full powers and instructions on the subject.

Two steamers have been purchased for the China coast trade, the Daybreak and Precursor. The former will be taken out by Captain GIBBONS, and the latter by Captain ROPER. The purchases have been effected through Messrs. ELIAS and Co.

CHAOS IN THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

"TAKEN altogether, the past three weeks have been the blackest ever witnessed in Singapore," says the Straits Times, and with good reason. It would be difficult to imagine a more deplorable picture of demoralisation than the Settlement presents. In the mercantile world we read of scandalous failures, swindling and forgery on a grand scale; and as to public affairs, we hear of nothing but riot, embezzlement, wrongheadedness, mismanagement, and muddle. Surely there is something rotten in the state of the Straits Settlements, which certainly did not come to light, if it existed, when governed by India. In the Land-office embezzlement, in the Treasury embezzlement, in the Post-office embezzlement, in the Audit Department negligence, in the streets riot, in the Police-office paralysis, in the Legislative Council and in the Government a spirit of worry and petty interference, which excites the ridicule of the few, and exasperates the crowd to active resistance. One day we learn that the auditor has so audited the public books that subordinates have systematically and successfully plundered the Treasury for years; the next, when the culprits are brought to justice, that the Attorney-General has prosecuted under an Act said to have been repealed years ago, thus securing, by the stupidity of one public department, impunity for crimes committed through the negligence of another. Coupled with all these feats of administrative ability, comes the report that Sir HARRY ORD has asked for an extension of his term of service, and the leading Straits paper prays for success to his application—lest a worse Governor should succeed him! Happy colony!

It appears that not only Sir HARRY, but his Colonial Secretary, also, Mr. J. W. BIRCH, were absent when the recent disturbance occurred. They had gone on a visit to the Sultan of SALANGORE, in order that his Excellency, as he informed the Legislative Council, might satisfy himself of "the relations of the Sultan with TUNKU OODIN and the "prospect the latter had of effecting a pacification of the "country." But hardly had he landed,—with the grotesque accompaniment of an ambulance party and a stretcher!—hardly had he received his Malay Majesty's assurance of his great confidence in the TUNKU; hardly had he playfully got a native chief to accept a modest German revolver for his handsome kris—like the Homeric hero, when he received intelligence that the peace of his own little dominion was in more immediate peril than that which he was so anxious about in the heart of the Malay Peninsula. An ordinance relative to obstructions on highways, it seems, had been brought into force, and had been so offensively enforced, that a row had broken out at last. A mob collected, the police were pelted, and they ignominiously fled, leaving the streets at the mercy of the refuse of the population of the town. The Assistant Colonial Secretary, who was the representative of the "Executive," and the Inspector-General of Police, appear to have gone to the Attorney-General for advice in this extremity; and the advice given was this:—"I said the Inspector-General ought "to hold his hand; but I told the Assistant Under-Secretary "he ought to be especially careful not to commit himself by "giving any distinct order on the subject." These manly suggestions seem to have been accepted, for the police were nowhere to be seen; and the mob were left masters of the situation, until Mr. SNOWDEN, the senior magistrate, hearing of the state of affairs, called a meeting of justices. Those gentlemen sent a requisition to the commanding officer of the 80th for a company of his men, whose appearance on the scene sufficed to put an end to the disturbance at once, without trouble and without bloodshed. This had been accomplished, when his Excellency appeared upon the scene, and not concealing his irritation at the audacious interference of the justices, he at once ordered his own private secretary, Mr. PLOW, the Postmaster-General, and the Colonial-Secretary, to hold an inquiry into the disturbance.

> A hundred oxen's worth for that of nine—

The results of the labours of this Commission have not reached us, but we cannot but share the distrust prevalent in the Colony of a Commission so constituted. Does Sir H. ORD imagine that their verdict will be accepted as anything but the verdict of three of his most intimate subordinates, accustomed and ready on all occasions to view things in the light in which their superior views them? Who expects from them a hearty denunciation of the piece of legislation which stirred up the Chinese rabble—an ordinance, we hear, which visits with fine or imprisonment even the grass-cutter, who lays down his load on the road side for a moment's rest. They are likely enough to condemn the police, who have no friends; but they may not be slow to find in its incompetency merely grounds for creating fresh offices and passing more harsh Acts. One subject into which an independent tribunal would probably inquire would be, what provision had been made by the Governor for the conduct of the public business, and especially the preservation of the peace in the Settlement during the absence of both himself and the Colonial Secretary—if the absence of both these functionaries was in any cases justifiable. But will the commission trespass on such sacred ground? At all events, if his Attorney-General's advice to the perplexed officials "to hold their hand," and "not to commit themselves," represents his policy, the Colony may well be congratulated on its Governor's absence; for the riot would have been quietly suffered to attain formidable proportions, and would then have afforded apparent justification for all that repressive legislation against Chinese secret societies—to which, of course, the disturbance would have been imputed—which has been one of Sir HARRY ORD's favourite hobbies ever since his arrival in the Straits. Fortunately for the Colony "the Government" was nowhere, and a few English gentlemen, like Mr. SNOWDEN, Mr. READ, and Captain WALSHE, dealt with the mischief in good plain English fashion, and soon re-established the QUEEN'S peace. We trust that the views and opinions of those gentlemen on the whole subject will be given to the world; for unquestionably they invite a degree of consideration which will not be given to the report of the Governor's Commission. To us, their conduct and example seem to teach how much better the Colony would get on if there was less of "government" in it, less of that miserable spirit of petty dictation and interference which seems to incapacitate officials from action when the time for action comes, as well as to spread dissatisfaction in every part of the community.

THE JAPANESE EMBASSY.

The members of the Japanese Embassy were received by M. Thiers, the President of the French Republic, on the 26th inst., at the Palace of the Elysee, Paris. The Constitutionnel publishes the following account of the reception:—

The announcement that M. Thiers would receive the Japanese Ambassadors had attracted a considerable number of persons about noon around the Palace of the Elysee. The usual guard at the Palace, consisting of detachments of the line and of the Republican guard, were in full dress. About one o'clock a battalion of the 67th Regiment, accompanied by two military bands, and under the command of Colonel Landru, arrived and was drawn up in the court-yard of the Elysee. At two the carriages containing the Embassy came in sight; the drums beat a salute and the troops presented arms. The Ambassadors, eight in number, and accompanied by M. Feuillet de Conches, who was charged to introduce them, and Chef d'Escadron Chanoine of the staff, were in three carriages, and were escorted by a detachment of Cuirassiers. As the cortege passed through the grand entrance into the courtyard the music played an Oriental air.

Their Excellencies were received in the vestibule of the Palace by Captains Faye and Salignac Fénélon, orderly officers to the President; they were dressed in European State uniforms of blue dress coats, richly embroidered with gold, and white trousers with gold stripes, and they wore cocked hats, six with white plumes and two with black. M. Thiers received the Ambassadors in the grand saloon, surrounded by his Ministers and Generals, Count de Remusat, Minister of Foreign Affairs, being on his right. Two interpreters had preceded the Ambassadors, and assisted at the reception, which lasted twenty minutes. The Chief Ambassador, Iwakura, read an address stating that its members had been instructed to visit all the nations in Europe, and to establish relations between them and Japan. The address gave particular expression to the wish for enduring friendly relations with France, and offered up wishes for the prosperity of that country. M. Thiers replied that he should consider it his duty to give every facility to the mission of the Japanese Ambassadors, and expressed a wish that the relations between France and Japan should be as close and friendly as possible.

After having taken leave of the President, the Ambassadors were conducted to the staircase leading into the courtyard by Count de Rémusat and his private secretary, Count de Pontécoulculant. The music again played, while the Ambassadors, who appeared highly gratified with their reception, entered their carriages. The drums beat and the cortege left, escorted by the cavalry as on the arrival.

The Japanese Ambassadors visited the Garden of Acclimatisation on Tuesday, the 24th inst., where they were received by M. Geoffroy Saint-Hilaire, President of the Association. Their Excellencies appeared to take great interest in the experiments for breeding silkworms, which are being made at the garden, and spontaneously offered to the directors, through their interpreter, to send him some specimens of the worm from Japan.

THE FRENCH TREATY WITH CHINA.

(FROM A PARIS CORRESPONDENT.)

The French Government is pre-occupied with the subject of the new commercial treaty with China, and has addressed itself to the Chambers of Commerce inviting them to express their opinion on the inland duties imposed by the Chinese Government on silk for export to France, and to say what changes they think should be made in this respect. The mercantile world, moreover, appeals to the Chambers of Commerce to give their advice not only on the points contained in the Ministerial note, but to express themselves fully upon the whole subject, and say what ought to be the terms demanded by France. They complain loudly of the little faith that merchants have been able to place in the conventions signed by Chinese officials, continual difficulties of interpretation as well as of application disarranging all their calculations; hence interminable Diplomatic complaints and vexatious disappointments. The English, they say, have the same difficulties, and like us have allowed their treaty to expire, and are negotiating a new convention. Leaving to the Chambers of Commerce the duty of sketching out the demands that should be made of the Chinese Government, it is argued that so long as treaties are not ratified by the actual signature of the Emperor of China it is impossible to calculate on their proper application: however high the other official personages may be who engage themselves in the name of the Empire, sooner or later their signatures are sure to be disavowed and discussion recommended on the most elementary questions. The young Emperor has now attained his majority, and it is with him only that our diplomatists ought to treat, and the English, fully aware of this, have suspended all fresh negotiations till the time when the Emperor's personal intervention shall be possible. The merchants established at Chinese ports are not at ease; it is evident that the Chinese officials are as hostile as those of Japan are friendly to European civilisation. The hatred of the Mandarins blinds them to such an extent, if letters received may be trusted, that the idea of a hostile manifestation, with force if necessary, is taking general hold of the Chinese official mind; armament and fortification are being ostentatiously carried on. The commercial interests attached to the Far East are too important for the threat of serious difficulties not to cause great concern. It is our business to take care, says a writer in the Moniteur, that our negotiators be not led into signing a worthless paper by the intentional abstention of the Chinese Emperor from taking part in the contract, and we ought to act with England with the greatest energy to prevent this.

HOW WE HAVE BEEN SNUBBED AT PEKING.

(COMMUNICATED.)

It is to be hoped that those whose who have perused the details of the Imperial marriage to hand by the mail will form a just estimate of the suicidal policy pursued by Her Majesty's Minister at Peking in acceding to the insulting request made to him by the Board of Foreign Affairs. In strict accordance with a precedent which time has hallowed, and a pseudo-liberal British Government has endorsed by frequent condonation, the obsequious Ministers of a semi-barbarous child-monarch chose the occasion of his nuptials to put upon British residents at the Chinese capital the greatest slight yet offered for the acceptance of our mandarin-loving representative. So conscious were the Cabinet of the hazardous nature of their attempt—a feeling fully justified by the indignant refusal of the French Minister to in any way meet their views—that in place of writing, they despatched Chung How himself as the bearer of their message, requesting that during the continuance of the marriage festivities all foreigners might be directed to remain within doors. It perhaps requires a special knowledge of Chinese feeling on this matter to realise to its full extent the insult thus conveyed; but to home readers it will be sufficient to say that, stringent as were the regulations regarding the line of procession, all except the lowest coolies were permitted to perambulate the remaining portions of the city. The gentlemen of Her Majesty's Legation and the resident missionaries were in fact placed by Chinese impertinence in the same category as low-caste natives of unsavoury occupation. There was no pretence of any fear lest their presence in the streets should have led to disturbances. As the Chinese well knew, the foreigners in question had, for successive years, freely mixed with the natives upon occasions like the Feast of Lanterns, when in all probability the streets were far more crowded than was the case during the marriage procession. It was simply urged that the sight of foreigners was liable to cause ill-feeling on the part of the odd thousand of officials employed about the Court! Not the unlettered mob, but the literati, the official "friends of progress," would be liable to take offence were a barbarian so seen as to suggest the idea that he was breathing the same air as the "Son of Heaven." Of course this was not put in so many words to Mr. Wade, though, we believe, that something like it was urged in other quarters. But the Chinese, emboldened by the fact that their omission to invite the Foreign Ministers to be present at the ceremony had been passed over without comment, were evidently bent on showing foreigners that they intended to keep them in the position hitherto held, and that any dreams of a more liberal policy being inaugurated by the young Emperor were without foundation. Mr. Wade, of course, saw no humiliation in acceding to any requests made by his much admired friends of the Yamen, and eagerly embraced the opportunity of letting the Chinese see that their wishes were law. Very different was the action of his brother diplomat of France. While admitting, as all reasonable men would admit, that the Cabinet had a perfect right to request that no foreigners should interfere with the line of procession, he repudiated the idea that the presence of the Emperor of China in one portion of the city was a valid ground for confining French citizens resident in another quarter to their houses. The differing action taken by two ministers, who, by a fiction that is eminently Chinese-like, are supposed to follow out a "co-operative policy," has naturally afforded matter for strong comment in China. Mr. Wade's presence at Peking has for some time past been deemed a cause of justifiable complaint to the mercantile community, and our latest advices show that his conduct on the occasion under discussion has, more than ever, turned the tide of Anglo-Chinese opinion against him.

That the Foreign-office will feel particularly pleased with Mr. Wade's latest manifestation of self-respect we certainly doubt However strong the necessity imposed upon its officials of preserving peace with China at all hazards, they are by no means blind to the absurdity, we may say stupidity, of a Minister wantonly humbling himself before the arrogant advisers of the Dragon Throne, when nothing whatever, material or moral, is to be gained thereby. Had Mr. Wade, like his colleague, refused to comply with Chung How's preposterous request, no one would have been the worse for it, and the Chinese would have received a quiet hint that courtesy was at least necessary towards Her Majesty's representative. The action of Mr. Wade calls for Parliamentary investigation.

INAUGURATION OF THE RAILWAY IN JAPAN.

The following description of the opening of a line of railway from Yedo to Yokohama is supplied by the correspondent of the Paris Temps, dated 14th October:—

"I have awaited with impatience the solemn inauguration of the railway from Yedo to Yokohama. Who will not be struck with amazement on reading of such an event as the opening of a railway in Japan; and who will be more astonished than those who know the country best? It is necessary to have inhabited the few ports open to foreigners five or six years ago; to have visited Yedo, accompanied by an escort of two-sworded Japanese; to have taken a rapid glance at the streets of the city whilst keeping a sharp look-out for assassins; it is necessary to have seen the inhabitants kneeling in the mud when such or such a Daimio passed by, and the pompous displays of this aristocracy, to thoroughly understand the importance of the pacific revolution which has just been accomplished here—in the Government, in the laws of the country, in the manners of the people, and the particularly significant character of yesterday's fete. The line of railway opened some few weeks ago between Sinaghawa, a suburb of Yedo and Yokohama, has only just been completed to the principal station in the city itself. It unites the political and commercial capital of Japan with the great commercial port frequented by foreign vessels, and is destined to give a new and powerful impetus to international relations. The Mikado determined to inaugurate the opening of the new line himself, and this was one of the great attractions of the ceremony—to see 'the descendant of the gods,' who had hitherto permitted himself to be seen but very rarely by his own people, delivering a speech and receiving addresses in the midst of a general fete. This, therefore, may be considered as another step taken in the path of progress. The importance of the event was recognised by all, and the attendance at the ceremony was immense.

"At nine o'clock the Imperial cortége left Siro, and proceeded towards the station between two lines of guards (in gala uniform), the carriage containing the Emperor and three great Court dignitaries being preceded by half a squadron of Lancers. No less than an hour was occupied in reaching the station, which was decked out with great taste—garlands of flowers mingling with streamers of chrysanthemums, the insignia of the Mikados. The peristyle was crowded with dignitaries, small and great, in Court dress; the Kuges, or body-guard of the Mikado, wearing long white robes, with variegated paper caps thrown fantastically at the back of the head; the ministers and functionaries enveloped in long mantles of rose, violet, and green crape, with immensely wide trousers hanging about the legs like skirts. The army and navy were represented by general detachments from each, in uniforms, with gold lace trimmings. The resident Ministers of the different foreign Powers were also present at the ceremony. A carpet was laid from the state coach to the Imperial carriage. The Mikado walked through the assembled multitudes—all respectfully bowing low, while the Europeans simply uncovered. The Emperor then got into the train, and was shortly buried in mountains of silk, whilst the few privileged individuals who had been invited to attend the ceremony took their places in the carriages placed at their disposition, apparently ashamed of their modest black coats when compared with the magnificent dresses of their neighbours. At ten o'clock the band of the chapel of the Mikado relieved that of the Japanese marine, and the train at once started for Yokohama. The line, which is ultimately to be continued to Osaka, is thirty kilometres in length, and has been constructed under the auspices and at the expense of the Japanese Government, by English engineers, at a cost of two millions of piastres, or eleven millions of francs—an enormous sum when compared with the cost per mile in France. Such as it is, the new line will render immense services. In half an hour the Yokohama merchant can reach Yedo. The transport of merchandise, which up to the present time has been exceedingly difficult, and frequently quite as expensive, from Yedo to Yokohama as from Marseilles to Japan, is now assured at a reasonable rate. But here we are at Yokohama; here also the station is decked out with flags and garlands, all the shops are closed, an immense number of Europeans press round the estrade reserved for the Emperor, and our ladies appear, to judge from their splendid toilettes, to rival with the Japanese beauties. The band of the French corvette Belliqueuse, just arrived in port, strikes up the air from the Grande Duchesse, "Voici le sabre de mon père," whilst his Majesty seats himself on his throne. Here he is obliged to listen to several speeches. First that delivered in the name of the foreign Ministers, by the Italian Minister as the senior of the resident Ministers, then the address of the merchants of Yokohama, drawn up at a meeting previously held, and read by the president of the Chamber of Commerce in English.

"Half an hour later we re-entered the station of Yedo. The Mikado ascended the throne prepared for him under a vast pavilion of flowers and banners, and listened to the speech of the Minister of Public Works and the address of the deputation of Yedo tradesmen. To each he replied without rising from the throne, by a few words, the text of which was presented to him by one of the kuges at each side of the throne. Perfectly motionless the Mikado reminded one of the magnificent statues in the Bhuddist temples. He is a young man, about twenty years of age, and rather tall; his olive tint of complexion clearly indicates his southern origin, and his features are very regular. He was dressed in a white tunic, and a mantle of yellow silk. His head-dress appeared to consist of a sort of chignon, formed of the back hair and brought to the top of the head, and surmounted by a small silk cap. If I did not fear to be taken for a flatterer I would add that his Majesty is very noble looking. After the fete of the distinguished people invited came the fete of the business and working classes—for in Japan the slightest amount of rejoicing is made use of as a pretext for shutting up shop and rushing off to amusements of some sort. On this occasion, the gardens of Hyamagaten—which extend along the Bay of Yedo—were, for the first time, opened to the public. Here, in a reserved pavilion, a collation was served to the resident Ministers, whilst favourite Japanese dishes were liberally distributed to the people, after which all sorts of games were engaged in, the series of amusements terminating by a splendid display of fireworks.

CHRISTMAS IN THE FAR EAST.

Under the heading of "Christmas Round the World," the Daily Telegraph devoted several columns of its issue on Christmas Day to a series of telegrams from most of the cities or settlements in which British communities exist, or in which English people at home take personal or commercial interest. These telegrams were forwarded not only from the capitals of Europe, but from the cities that form the chain of communication with our Eastern Empire, from China and Japan, from the Australian Colonies, and from San Francisco and St. John's on the Atlantic shore, of the American Continent. The messages were not confined to matter relating to the celebration of the day, but they also conveyed many items of local news. Our contemporary is to be congratulated upon having started and successfully carried through an entirely new feature of journalistic enterprise. We subjoin those telegrams which relate to the Far East and which will consequently be the most interesting to our readers :—

SINGAPORE, CHRISTMAS EVE (4 P.M.).—The British community here hail with pleasure the opportunity of sending, as I now send in their behalf, wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year in the homes of all their friends and of all other English people. A general holiday has been granted for the celebration of our Christmas festivities. Quarrels between Chinese factions have been frequent and bitter of late, and there was fighting in the streets yesterday. Further disturbances are apprehended.

PENANG, CHRISTMAS EVE (4 P.M.).—That your Christmas-day in England may be a merry one, and your New Year a happy one, is the earnest wish of all the English here. The usual festivities are being prepared, but nothing of sufficient importance is stirring to call for remark.

SAIGON, CHRISTMAS EVE (4 P.M.).—All the English colony here join in hearty congratulations to the inhabitants of Great Britain, and wish them a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Every one is busily engaged in preparation and anticipation of the season's festivities. I may especially note that a large plum-pudding is being got ready by the hands of three fair daughters of Albion; and the principal regret which will mar our enjoyment is the dearth of mistletoe. In the way of news there is little to report. Admiral Dupré, the Governor of Cochin China, has returned from a leave of absence, and taken up his residence in the new palace. The municipal elections have been held, the men chosen being generally popular. The weather is fine, and the nights are cool.

BATAVIA, CHRISTMAS EVE (4.30 P.M.).—The English residents here heartily wish England a Merry Christmas, and hope the coming year will prove a happy one. The weather is very unseasonable, being exceedingly dry and hot. The opening of the railway to Bintenhord has been postponed till February. An epidemic fever which has committed ravages in Samarang is now abating.

HONG KONG, CHRISTMAS EVE (4.30 P.M.).—In the name of the English residents here, I have to inform you that they join in sending hearty congratulations to their friends and fellow-countrymen in England, and wish Great Britain a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. The mail leaving for England to-morrow, the out-door fetes by which Christmas is to be celebrated have been postponed until New Year's-day. Festivities are preparing in Canton, Macao, Hankow, and the Northern Treaty ports. Princes Philip and Augustus of Saxe-Coburg, who were present at the City Hall last night, left for Shanghai this morning.

SHANGHAI, CHRISTMAS EVE (4 P.M.).—We wish the dear old country a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. The English residents have taken the holiday time by the forelock, and are enjoying themselves in shooting and pleasure trips up the country. Weather fine and fresh.

NAGASAKI, CHRISTMAS EVE (4.30 P.M.).—The British residents in Japan wish the inhabitants of Great Britain a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. The Grand Duke Alexis is shortly expected to arrive at Wladiwostock. Weather fine and warm.

THE ISLAND OF CEYLON.

Mr. Alexander Brown, of Ceylon, being on a visit to his native town of Banff, consented to give a lecture on that Island under the auspices of the Banff Literary Society. The lecture was delivered in the County Hall. There was a large and highly respectable audience, the principal inhabitants of the town being present. Ex-Provost Duncan, President of the Literary Society, occupied the chair, and there also accompanied the lecturer to the platform Mr. Rust, banker; Mr. G. M. Hossack, solicitor; and Mr. John Forbes, solicitor. The Chairman introduced the lecturer.

Mr. Brown, who was warmly received, referred to prevalent ignorance in this country respecting Ceylon, and said, Sir Charles Wentworth Dilke, author of "Greater Britain," tells you the river Mahawelliganga, which almost encircles the town of Kandy, supplies with water the Kandy Lake. Now, seeing that the lake at its nearest point is several hundred feet higher than the river, I fail to perceive by what process—hydraulic or otherwise—the river could possibly feed the lake. The same authority tells you other most absurd and ignorant things regarding our island.

Little more than a year ago, after the visit to Ceylon of the Duke of Edinburgh, it was discovered that the Government had voted £12,000 to cover the expenses attending the visit to the Island of a son of England's Queen. It was voted by a patriotic council and approved by a loyal people. A first-class London journal took us to task severely for so lavishly squandering the money supplied by the taxpayers of England. Now, so far is this from the fact, that I tell you now, and I tell Sir Charles Dilke, and I think it cannot be too often told, or too widely known, that Ceylon draws not one penny from the Imperial Exchequer, but provides all her expenditure from her own resources, and is the only Crown Colony that does so. Not only so. By handing over yearly to the Home Government £160,000 to pay for the military expenditure incurred on her account, she pays the wages of the troops, costs and upkeep of barracks, and every outlay connected with the regiments employed in and for Ceylon. Nay more. She thus overpays the amount expended by £12,000, which sum the British Government had to refund yearly to that of Ceylon, the latter having been overtaxed to that extent. A glance at the following figures will show that Ceylon pays a larger sum to the mother country for her military protection than does any other British colony. And I may add more than half as much as all of them together. The Straits Settlements pay £59,000; Mauritius, £40,900; Victoria, £40,000; Hong Kong, £20,000; and the Cape Colony £11,500—Total £171,400 contributed by the above colonies, which I believe are all that do contribute materially to the military chest. I do not, of course, include in this calculation India, which is an Empire, or Canada, which is a Dominion. Both these have national debts of their own, and property to represent them. Nor do I include the West India Islands, which contribute nothing, and are a heavy burden upon Great Britain.

Ceylon contributes £160,000, against the £171,000 contributed by all the Colonies before named, or almost as much as the whole put together. Victoria with all her gold, and the Cape Colony with all her diamonds, do not together pay one third of the amount mulcted from Ceylon. Besides not costing the mother country one farthing, Ceylon provides agriculture for her sons, cargoes for her ships, and commerce for her merchants to the extent of £10,000,000 per annum. Yet any little bankrupt West Indian Colony gets a great deal more of her attention and consideration, is petted in fact like a spoilt child, provided with money to import labour, and surfeited with liberal local Government. Just see a report on Jamaica by Sir J. P. Grant, so recently as 1870. In it he states the area of the whole Island as 2,720,000 acres, of which there are in cultivation 492,246 acres; but of these were in pasturage 220,791 acres; in Guinea grass (planted) 110,705 acres; and all that was under coffee were 16,617 acres, yielding 84,000 cwts.; while in sugar there were 47,440 acres—these last two together containing 64,057 acres, being all that are employed in growing produce for export. That will form a fair basis for comparison with Ceylon, always remembering that it is the result of two centuries of British rule.

Well, what has Ceylon to show against this? An acreage of 45 millions, against 2¾ millions; 1,500,000 acres in profitable cultivation, against 64,000 acres; 260,000 acres in coffee, against 16,000 acres; yielding 1,000,000 cwts,, against 84,000 cwts.; and this amount of progress in Ceylon is after 75 years of British occupation of the Maritime Provinces, and less than 60 years of the Kandyan Country. Further, this cultivation is all carried on by free labour. Coolies come over from the Continent of India of their own accord, glad to earn, and return to their country with the rupees provided chiefly by the enterprise of the sons of Britain. No Imperial subsidy brings them there, nor has the British Government ever been called upon to reimburse the planter for his manumitted slaves, for he never had any to release. 200,000 immigrant Tamils do the work of our plantations; 200,000 more find employment in various ways throughout the country, and this is another benefit which Ceylon confers on the Indian subjects of Great Britain, for the Tamil returns periodically to India with his earnings, thus enriching to that extent the presidency of Madras; while it and Bengal are further enriched by the large sums (about 1¾ millions sterling) sent over annually from Ceylon to purchase food for her immigrant population, the land under grain in Ceylon not producing enough for her indigenous population. I say the labourers are free; free to come and free to go, free to engage themselves to one master or another, free to leave his service when tired of it, or to re-engage with him if they prefer, free to settle in the country or to leave it, without let or hindrance from any quarter. Yet the British Government never think it worth their while to have a report on Ceylon, unless it be to impose on her fresh taxation, and then they send a commission! The last they sent has ever since cost us £160,000 a-year, and we want no more on the same terms.

Forty years ago Ceylon was little more than a mere military dependency; and, even thirty-five years ago, four ships carried away all its produce. Since then, the great coffee enterprise has sprung up, and gradually developed itself, till now we frequently see forty ships of large tonnage at one time in its roads; and Ceylon has risen to be the third largest coffee-producing country in the world. The only two countries that exceed her in quantity (and none equal her in quality) are Brazil and Java. Cinnamon also and cocoanuts are among our staple productions. The former was for a long time a Government monopoly, in which state it was a legacy left us by the Dutch. But the trade languished under the restrictions imposed, and, by these being retained too long, it had almost passed out of our hands, an equally suitable spice, cassia, which was found to grow well in Java, having to a large extent taken its place. The too tardy removal of export duties did not revive it, and for a number of years the trade maintained but a bare existence. It has, however, of late years revived; but for the moment is again overdone. Plumbago has also risen greatly in favour of late years, and now a large trade is done in this article. Salt is still a Government monopoly, and is one of the sources of our revenue; although it is hoped the growing spirit of free trade will soon remove the restrictions upon that article, and leave it open for use even as a manure. Cocoa grows well, but has not yet been cultivated as an article of commerce. Tobacco grows freely in several districts of the island, and those who are judges pronounce it very good. Sugar has been tried, but has not been found to answer. Essential oils have been grown to a considerable extent, the quality of which are considered very superior. This produce is almost entirely exported to London. Chinchona has also lately been tried, and the amount of quinine extracted from its bark has been so favourably reported on that it will most likely soon add another to our industries. Silk is attracting favourable attention, successful experiments having been made by amateurs, which are being continued on a larger scale under the fostering care of the Government. Tea has been tried experimentally, and the quality has proved so good that clearings are now being opened on a scale that justifies the expectation that it will soon rival coffee as a staple product. If success crown the intended experiments now being gone into, there is abundance of land in the country, in the most delightful climates, too elevated for coffee, which will be available to the producers of the sister beverage tea. Maize and rice are also grown, but not in quantity nearly sufficient for the wants of the population. Large sums are now being annually voted by the Government to repair old tanks and improve reservoirs and watercources for irrigation purposes, so as to ensure and extend this cultivation, and it is hoped that, by these means, in a few years, enough food may be grown for local consumption. At present, however, although all these industries exist, our great staple, coffee, is king, for of it the exports are equal to four-fifths of the whole exports of the country.

The commerce of a country is, of course, the result of its products; and, as I have stated these as concisely as possible under that head, there is little left for me here but just to note the progress the island has made since it became a commercial country. If we take a retrospect over only a period of fifteen years, we shall find that, during that time, the tonnage of shipping entered and cleared at our ports has increased 100 per cent.; that coffee has increased 140 per cent.; cocoanuts have increased 33 per cent.; cinnamon has increased 180 per cent.; and plumbago has increased 800 per cent. If we go back twenty-five years we shall find our great staple, coffee, has increased during that time over 500 per cent.; for in 1845 it was only in its infancy. In that year we shipped 178,603 cwts.; in 1870, we shipped 1,019,242 cwts.; and as coffee has been already shown to equal four-fifths of the whole exports of the country, we may fairly look upon it as the motive power which has thus far propelled the island's progress.

Ex-Provost Duncan proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Brown, which was cordially responded to. On the motion of Mr. Forbes, a vote of thanks was awarded to the Chairman.

THE NEW JAVA TARIFF.

(SHIPPING AND MERCANTILE GAZETTE.)

We learn that the States General of Holland have recently adopted a new tariff for the Dutch East Indies, and have agreed at the same time to abolish differential duties. This law, it is further stated, will come into operation from the 1st of January, 1874, and will be extremely favourable, inasmuch as under it duty on certain articles of British manufacture which now pay 20 per cent. will then pay only 6 per cent. From the brief announcement which has appeared of this very important amendment in the Dutch law, it would seem that the States General have not only decided upon a reduction of the East Indian tariff, but that it is the intention to open the trade with the Netherlands possessions in that part of the world by the abolition of the differential duties. Our relations with Holland in this matter have long been peculiar, and by no means satisfactory. By existing treaties the Government of the Netherlands have consented to place British ships ostensibly on the same footing as Dutch vessels; but, in effect, in consequence of the regulations of the Dutch East India Company, whose privileges were expressly reserved by treaty, our ships have been excluded from the trade of the Spice Islands, while the Treaty of March, 1824, sanctions the levy of double differential duties in the Dutch ports of the Eastern Seas. This has long been a subject of complaint against Holland. In October, 1837, we concluded another Treaty with the Netherlands, by which national treatment of ships in the direct trade between the countries was mutually conceded, but there has always been a disposition on the part of the Dutch to reserve their colonial trade, but especially the Eastern trade of the Netherlands, to Dutch vessels. In this trade the Dutch flag has at all times enjoyed protection. If, therefore, the new law—which, as we learn, has just received the assent of the States General—provides for the opening of this trade by the abolition of the differential duties hitherto levied upon the foreign flag, the change will prove, no doubt, of great consequence. Our trade with the Dutch possessions in the Atlantic—the Dutch West Indies and Dutch Guiana—is of trifling importance. Our trade with Java was valued in 1871 at about £2,000,000 sterling. If this trade was done in the face of import duties ranging to 20 per cent. and upwards, and hampered by a system of differential duties, it is but natural to expect a considerable expansion under the remissions provided for by the recent law. Hitherto a foreign ship looking for a charter at Batavia for Europe might get one, it is true, but not so long as there was a Dutch ship to compete with her. Notwithstanding, the sugar, coffee, and rice of the Island of Java are products sufficiently valuable and sufficiently in request in Europe to take foreign shipping to Batavia in search of them. Where, however, there is, in addition to differential duties, heavy import charges on articles of British origin, it was impossible that a trade so circumstanced could develop. Hitherto it seems to have contented the Dutch—liberal in other respects, and greatly concerned for the expansion of their over-sea trade—to work the trade between Holland and the Dutch East Indies under the Dutch flag, and to make as large a revenue for these possessions as could be collected by means of a heavy system of import duties. The Netherlands Government and the States General appear to have become suddenly alive to the necessity of changing this policy, and hence the new law. From and after the 1st of January, 1874, therefore, our cottons, linens, silks, &c., will find a market in the Dutch East Indies, from which they have been virtually excluded; and if we read the statement respecting the new law aright, from the same time British vessels will be able to take freights from Batavia, and the other ports of the Dutch islands, on the same terms as Dutch ships. If this be so, we have lived to see the last remnant of the old Maritime policy of the Netherlands swept away—a policy originally prompted by jealousy of England, and which for nearly 200 years was met, on our part, by the adoption of a similar law.

Monetary and Commercial.

A special meeting of the shareholders of the Oriental Bank Corporation is called for the 30th January, to consider the Bill proposed to be introduced into Parliament for the extension of the Bank's Charter.

Further suspensions of firms in the North have been reported, including Messrs. Wiseman, Dunlop, and Co., of Manchester and London, commission merchants in the East Indian trade, with liabilities estimated at about £250,000; Mr. W. H. Glover, manufacturer, with liabilities representing £12,000; and Mr. Isaacs Leech Stott, of Rochdale, with liabilities £49,000. The failure is also announced of Messrs. John Samuels and Co., of Manchester, merchants in the Indian and China trade. The bad and very unremunerative state of the Eastern trade for some time past has been the cause of their suspension. The extent of the liabilities of the firm is not known definitely, but it is understood to be about £90,000. There are wild rumours as to many other large firms.

In another column will be found a report of a meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Bowles Bros., held last week, in Paris. Mr. Robert Bowles will be again brought up at the Mansion House Police-court on the 31st inst., when it is expected the magisterial investigation into the charge of fraud made against him will be completed.

The official liquidators of the London, Bombay, and Mediterranean Bank (Limited) have, with the sanction of Vice-Chancellor Wickens, declared a fourth dividend of 1s. in the pound (making 5s. 6d. in the pound).

At a meeting of the proprietors of the Land Mortgage Bank of India (Limited), the directors' report, which was summarised in our last issue, was agreed to.

The payment is announced of a dividend for the past six months of 10s. per share in the Imperial Ottoman Bank, being the highest amount allowed by the statutes.

A general meeting of the proprietors of the London Joint-Stock Bank is called for the 16th prox., to declare a dividend.

At a meeting of the Lebong Tea Company (Limited) an interim dividend was declared for the six months at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax.

The directors of the Assam Company have resolved to pay an interim dividend of 5 per cent. or £1 per share, to shareholders registered on the 31st inst.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

Very little business has been done in the Markets for Colonial and Foreign Produce since our last issue, owing to the intervention of the Christmas holidays. The market for Coffee will be re-opened on the 7th, and for Sugar on the 2nd proximo.

TEA.

The following is Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rehden's Circular: The arrivals since our last of 11th inst. have been over 15,000,000 lbs.; of this large quantity a very small proportion has been shown, chiefly of such kinds dealers are in immediate want of, say, Congou from 11d. to 1s. 1½d. per pound, and transactions past few days have been on a larger scale. The last telegram as to the export from China is dated 13th inst., and gives 133,600,000 lbs., being about 5,000,000 lbs. over last year to same date. For the Continent and other foreign markets there has been a little more inquiry, without however leading to business. Deliveries for the month will reach 13,000,000 lbs., giving for the twelve months the extraordinary total of just upon 170,000,000 lbs. The imports will reach 180,000,000 lbs.

Black.—No change in dusty siftings or broken leaf, which rule from 3d. to 10d. per lb.; inferior to good flavoury at 11d. to 1s. 1d. have been taken in fair quantity; Sayune and Kaisow kinds 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 3½d., no change; medium to fine Kaisow at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 8d. can at present be bought cheaper than at any time since December, 1868, and we think must be dearer later on, as black leaf of these grades is getting into small compass. Finest Kaisow is of nominal value at from 1s. 9d. to 2s. 3d. per lb. Pakling: No demand whatever, and stocks held by importers larger than usual. Tayshan leaf: Ordinary to fair common has been taken at 8d. to 10d., good common to fair 10½d. to 1s., shippers taking a few thousand boxes at 11d. per lb.; of medium and fine kinds the late supplies of autumn leaf are not so good as past seasons, and are selling slowly from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 6d. per lb. Black leaf: Ordinary to good common at 7½d. to 10½d., no change; preferable kinds at 11d. to 1s. 1d. continue scarce; in medium to fine at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 8d., offers have been 1d. to 1½d. per lb. below views of importers, and but little business transacted; finest closes at 1s. 9d. to 2s. 2d., and extra quality at 2s. 3d. upwards, stock moderate. Souchong: Medium kinds in but little request; fine and finest, small parcels sold at 1s. 9d. to 2s. 5d. per lb. Oolong: No demand. Scented Tea: Canton Capers have been selling irregularly, the supplies offered being exceedingly heavy. Orange Pekoe has been sold at low rates. Foochow Scented Orange Pekoe sells slowly at easy prices, supplies being beyond requirements. Caper at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 4d. per lb. Green: There is no change to advise.

COFFEE.—Public sales are suspended, the markets being closed until the 7th Jan., but privately there has been a fairly active demand at firm prices; Plantation Ceylon has been sold at full rates, viz, 84s. 6d. to 89s. 6d., and Ouvah Native Ceylon at 78s. 6d.; for arrival 1,000 bags Native Ceylon per steamer have been sold at 78s., and 500 bags do. per sailing vessel at 77s. 6d. per cwt.

COCOANUT OIL.—Fine Cochin is steady at £39, Ceylon at £34 10s. to £35 per tun.

CAMPHOR.—200 cases China have been sold at 74s. re-weights.

GAMBIER.—There have been sales of good pressed cubes at 28s. per cwt., and for arrival fifty tons, per December steamer, have been sold at 23s.

GALLS.—The sale is reported of 600 cases China at £2. 17s. per cwt.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS.—HEALTH'S DEFENCE—None save the strongest can with impunity pass through the sudden transitions from wet to dry, from cold to muggy weather, so prevalent during the late autumn and early winter months. Influenza, bronchitis, cough, sore throat, diphtheria, or quinsy will attack those most watchful of their health; but they can readily arrest any of these complaints by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the skin, and adjacent to the affected part, and by assisting its corrective action with appropriate doses of his Pills. This well-known safe and easy mode of treatment efficiently protects the invalid both from present and future danger, without weakening or even depressing the system in the slightest degree.
